Professor Einstein tells the universe how it is made and scientists ask, is his stuff too deep for us, or is he just answering questions in fairy story fashioned as his ancestors did, when they wrote the book of Genesis, some time ago, and explained everything easily, packing it all into one week.

Einstein gets rid of the ether—he does not need it in his universe. But he does not answer Newton's question, "How can separate bodies of matter draw each other with no element connecting them? In plainer words, how could you lead a cow unless you had a rope fastened to her? The ether is Newton's rope, hypothetical, that attaches one body in space to another, making gravitation possible.

Professor Einstein says men thought of matter first, earth, horses, rocks, themselves, and only began to think about space in which they, and matter exist. You know, from the learned Jeans, that all matter in the universe, compared with the space in which it floats, is like one grain of dust, floating around in a big railroad station.

Now, says Einstein, space has become the important thing, and matter is secondary. Matter once seemed to be filling up space, eating it up, as it were. Now space has turned and is eating up matter. Make something substantial out of that, and you will think like Einstein.

That deep one is working on equations that, he hopes, will prove the cosmos, which means everything there is, is all one. Electro-magnetic phenomena, gravitation and geometry are all the same.

A microbe, studying a big building, might discover that roof, foundation, electric wiring, furnaces, soil pipes, elevators, telephones are all one, all having come from some corner of the architect's brain.

Einstein may reach the conclusion that somewhere, there is a cosmic architect, and that all comes from one corner of his brain.

That would be embarrassing

BANK ASSN. DELEGATES IN SESSION

Agricultural Committee Report By Courtney Is Heard — Barnum Says Sound Principles Must Continue

With registrations rapidly nearing the 200 mark, attendance at the 25th annual convention of the Oregon Bankers' association, opening here today, is reported to be as good as any in the history of the organization and may even be better. A breakfast conference at 8 o'clock this morning at the Hotel Medford began the day's activities and was followed by the opening session of the convention at the Masonic temple.

This afternoon was to be spent in various ways by the visiting bankers, many of whom took part in the golf tournament at the local links and others were guests of the Medford Chamber of Commerce which arranged a scenic tour of the valley. Tomorrow's program will include four speakers and the reports of the auditing, resolutions and nominating committees. Officers for the next year will also be elected and installed.

A report today of the agricultural committee of the association by Eugene Courtney, chairman, of Woodburn revealed the extent of the banker-farmer work carried on in Oregon.

Report Given.
In part, the report is as follows: "Not only was good work accomplished, but out of the 240 banks of the state, 235 filled out a questionnaire giving information on their activity, which made it possible to 'measure' and score such activity.

"A key banker has been appointed to represent the agricultural committee in each agricultural county, and most of them are functioning.

"The reports also reveal strong financial support of agricultural work ($21,959); a large attendance of bankers at various agricultural meetings (623); and of greater importance, 565 farmers, boys and girls working on appropriate projects under the leadership and with the encouragement of the county agent and home banker.

"It is to be remembered, however, that this year's work does not stand alone. It is the result of a steady growth in a long-time banker-farmer program.

"Varying conditions in the state makes necessary and possible a wide diversity of adaptable projects.

Barnum Talks.
The address of the forenoon, delivered by E. Barnum of The Dalles, carried the keynote that present sound banking principles must be continued. He did not discuss chain or group banking, but paid high compliment to state and government supervision of banks. He referred to the federal farm board in commendable manner and indicated that while the government has no place in carrying on a business of entering into its interest in farm affairs had many benefits. However, it could not regulate prices, the law of supply and demand controlling this and supplying the only sound basis for market values.

CHI REPORTER DIES AT HAND OF GANGSTER

CHICAGO, June 9.—(AP)—Jake Lingle, a reporter for the Chicago Tribune was shot to death in the midst of a crowd of race fans in the Michigan Boulevard tunnel of the Illinois Central railroad today.

Lingle had just emerged from the eastern end of the pedestrian tunnel leading to the Randolph street terminal in the railroad when his assailant fired several shots. He fell dead, struck in the back of the head. The assassin fled to the street and disappeared.

Lingle was reputed to be one of the city's best informed newspapermen in gangland affairs. He had been a member of the Tribune staff nearly twenty years.

Of late Lingle had been assigned to dig up information for his paper on the latest revival of guerrilla warfare among the gangsters, and the supposition was that some enemy in the underworld had been incurred by his activities.

Word that Lingle was marked for death had already drifted along the grapevine of newspaper gossip a week ago.

Early Reconciliation Newly Instated Rumanian King and Estranged Princess Forecast—Joint Coronation Probable.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 9.—(AP)—An early reconciliation between the newly instated King Carol II of Rumania and his former wife Princess Helen, today was forecast in official circles, when Carol returned their son Michael, to his mother. Joint coronation in October of Carol and Helen was predicted.

It was pointed out that, with the first interests of the country in mind, and strengthened by the intimate needs of the son for a father and mother in the same domicile, Carol and his former wife undoubtedly would adjust their viewpoints to the situation.

LONDON, June 9.—(AP)—Mme. Magda Lupescu, former companion of Carol during his exile in France, is reported by the Inter-lake correspondent of the Sunday Chronicle as taking her parting from Carol very much to heart.

"Ours is a union of love," the correspondent quoted her as saying. "There is deep pain in every thought of final separation. I am an exile, an outcast, extirpated from the land of my birth, the land I love. Carol is my only happiness. And now I shall see him no more. My grief is almost too much for me to bear."

STANDARD BOX WEIGHT TALKED FOR NORTHWEST

Sherer and Reter Return From Conference With Shippers, Rail Officials—Will Report.

Paul Scherer, representing the Fruitgrowers' league, and Raymond R. Reter, representing the Rogue River Traffic association, have returned from sessions of the Northwest advisory committee, held last week in Spokane, at which railroad officials and shippers of the Northwest were in attendance.

Steps were taken for the securing of a standard fruit box weight for the three Pacific coast states, California has a 50-pound weight allowance, and Washington and Oregon a slightly higher weight. Equalization of this weight as proposed would result in financial and other benefits to the fruit growers of Oregon and Washington.

The Rogue River Traffic association has had the weight question under discussion for several months. Standardization of fruit grades and packs are also proposed.

Another matter coming before the shippers and growers at the session was the recent decision of the supreme court of the United States, on the Hoke-Smith resolution. This has a bearing on the pending Northwest rate case in which the Rogue River valley is interested. Scherer will make a report to the executive committee of the Fruitgrowers' League, on the latest developments on the rate case.

Shipments Increase
Scherer also reports that the carload shipments out of the northwestern states show an increase, a hopeful sign of industrial activity.

Important fruit meetings of this week include a visit of Southern Pacific officials, including William C. Fitch, head of the Perishable Freight department, for the annual conference with local shippers and growers, when plans for the coming shipping season will be discussed.

At the Thursday meeting of the Rogue River Traffic association, David R. Wood, chairman of the Winter Pear committee, will present Prof. Hartman's recommendations for the Bose pear market in Detroit, and the expansion thereof. It is understood that the Detroit market has offered to take 100 cars of the 1930 crop. Last year they handled 20 cars.

URGE FARMERS PRESENCE FOR DRAINING TESTS

Demonstrations Scheduled On Williamson Tract 10 A. M., and Scherer Orchard 2 P. M. Tuesday.

Drainage demonstration tests will be held tomorrow, by the county agent's office, assisted by Arch Work, assistant drainage engineer of the department of agriculture, and Prof. M. F. Lewis, head of the irrigation department of Oregon State college.

The first demonstration will be held at the Williamson tract on Beal Lane at ten o'clock in the morning. The second test will be held at the Paul Scherer orchard, near Tolo at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Practical tests of tile laying and other drainage features will be made, along with a thorough discussion.

E. W. Carleton, president of the Fruitgrowers League, has issued a statement urging orchardists and others interested in drainage matters to attend the demonstrations. No drainage problem of consequence exists in the valley at present, but it is the common fate of irrigation districts, and sooner or later will be a local problem. The purposes of the tests is to forearm the growers and farmers against it.

The county court is expected to take action shortly, for a continuation of the drainage survey, under way in the valley for the past year. The work was launched through the joint efforts of the Oregon State college, the department of agriculture and the county court, at the behest of the Fruitgrowers League.

Professor Lewis declared the drainage problem is becoming more and more a problem throughout the state, and orchardists and farmers are correspondingly interested. He said the survey of Engineer Work, "shows that the water table in the Rogue River valley is dangerously high and, now is the time to take preliminary precautionary action."
