

GOLD HILL WOMAN, SURVIVOR OF SEA TRAGEDY IS DEAD

Emma Conkling Hall, wife of George Hall, died at their home in Gold Hill at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, aged 75 years, 10 months, 27 days.

It is probable that Mrs. Hall was the last of those 600 passengers on the ill-fated steamer, Golden Rule which sailed from New York to Ithmus in 1895.

There was no hope for the ship. With some of the wreckage, the crew constructed a raft and the passengers were taken to the island, where they subsisted for nine days on a half pint of water and three or four crackers each.

It was found that the vessel struck a reef that was forty miles off the coast, and the weather was fairly good.

The real trouble, as has been stated, was liquor, for on the evening preceding the wreck, there was a jollification in the captain's quarters and all who attended were intoxicated.

From Ithmus, the passengers came to San Francisco, Mrs. Hall, with her parents settled near Cloverdale, Calif., later going to Washington which was at that time still a territory.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. E. Conder at the Conger chapel at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday. Interment in Medford cemetery.

FINAL RITES FOR MCKINNEY HELD IN CITY SUNDAY

Funeral services for Ivo McKinney, Medford aviator killed in an air crash at Teterboro airport, East-brook, N. J., were held Sunday at the Perl Funeral Parlors at 2:30. The American Legion post of Medford was in charge of the services.

McKinney was president of the New Standard Flying Service, which had purchased last March, and was associated with Russ Brinkley, who brought the body to Medford for the services.

The aviator was well known in the east and 36 airplanes circled in the sky when the body was placed on the train at New York for its long westward journey. Saturday an air circus was in progress at Teterboro as a benefit for the purchase of a fitting memorial to be placed in the Medford cemetery.

Such well known pilots as Col. Charles Lindbergh, Chamberlain, and many others took part. When the crash took place, costing McKinney's life, he was completing the last lap of a five-airplane race. He was leading four other planes and just as he was making his wings-over turn, after leaving the last pylon, he crashed into the ground. He was traveling at a rate of 119 miles per hour and was only three feet from the ground when he started and due to lack of altitude was unable to complete the turn, which was more or less a fancy bit of flying.

Before crashing, in the twinkling of an eye, McKinney had removed his goggles and turned off the switch to prevent fire.

He lived for two hours and died from a fracture of the skull. He had sustained a fracture in the same place in an auto crash some time before and the airplane mishap affected the same portion of the skull.

McKinney's fiancée, Grace Ayres, along with 9,000 other spectators, saw the crash. Her condition was critical as a result of the shock. She was to have married McKinney July 17.

McKinney was known as a "big shot" in the aviation world and known by all the leading aviators of the nation. His success in aviation had not been generally known in this section where he had spent many years of his life. He is also credited with having flown with more passengers than any other pilot in the business.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McKinney, reside in Medford, as well as his brothers, Sam and John, and his sister, Mrs. Sue Colton.

The necessity of a flying service at the Medford airport was told members of the Medford Kiwanis club in session at noon today by Clyde Cook, with a number of Medford businessmen interested in the development of such service at the airport. Mr. Cook painted a bright future for aviation and declared Medford could share in the benefits of aviation development by taking an active financial interest in the formation of the Medford company, now well underway.

He explained the functions of the company and told of a trip over Crater Lake Saturday, a part of the regular service to be given by the company.

Paul Pitman of KPO, San Francisco radio station, entertained Kiwanians with a number of human interest stories as they occurred in the studio where he is known as "Big Brother."

West Linn.—Bids opened for construction of modern sewer system here at estimated cost of $15,000.

This crew will work all summer, in finishing that part of the road between the two lakes, but the market road, it is understood, will not be finished this year.

Notice to the Public. The City Council of the City of Medford will meet in the Council Chamber at the City Hall on Tuesday, June 10th, at the hour of 8 p. m. for the purpose of readjusting the rates of the City Sanitary Service, Inc. All persons interested are requested to appear at said meeting.

E. M. WILSON, Acting Mayor.

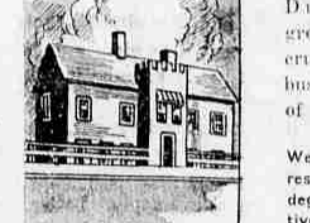

COUNTY DOCTOR IS HALF BAKED

Dr. C. B. Wilson, county health officer, whose piscatorial expertise hitherto had been confined to catching cutfish in the Muddissippi and its side streams, in the south, caught these rainbow trout, and a load case of sunburn on one side of his face, while fishing at Diamond Lake yesterday. DINING-CAR CHEF DELIGHTS PATRONS WITH BERRY OMELET

Features This Colorful Dish on Both Breakfast and Luncheon Menus

A chef on one of the well-known western trains added a new note to his menus by offering a raspberry omelet. The fresh berries, sprinkled with powdered sugar, were placed on the surface of the omelet just before it was folded. Additional raspberries were also used as a garnish. The dish was most inviting and virtually a balanced meal in itself.

Strawberries, peaches, apricots, pineapple and stewed cranberries make equally delectable omelets. Fresh or canned fruit, or jelly may be used. When you use canned fruits, heat them before adding to the omelet. Then, when you turn the omelet on to the serving dish, sprinkle it, as well as the hot fruit garnish, with powdered sugar.

Fruit—fresh, canned or dried—belongs in the diet and plays an important part in promoting health. In making fruit pleasing to the taste, sugar should be added. Often fruit is rejected because it is too tart for the average taste.
