MANN'S STORE WILL OBSERVE FATHER'S DAY

Father's seventh anniversary occurs next Sunday, June 16, in the United States and Canada and Mann's Men's department is featuring a special array of ties, socks and other little gifts with which to express kindly thoughts and love for dear old dad.

"Father's Day is being observed more every year and we find ourselves called upon for countless useful gifts of furnishings by southern Oregon shoppers who wish to remember their fathers," Dan Watson, manager of Mann's men's department, said yesterday.

"This date to be kept with dad always falls on the third Sunday in June. Within the past few years its popularity has become so widespread that millions annually observe it in his honor.

Yet this movement began less than a generation ago, its object being to let father know that he was something more to his family than merely its provider, shock absorber and complaint bureau.

In 1910 Mrs. John B. Dodd of Spokane, Washington, suggested assigning a yearly date on which to sing the praises of the world's champion "unsung hero" — dad.

The Spokane Ministerial Alliance and the Y. M. C. A. adopted the idea and it was taken up by allied and other organizations in other cities.

Soon many localities began to have Father's Day, but with varying confusing dates as the movement progressed. Meanwhile, state legislatures were making proclamations of the day, but without uniformity. Delaware leading this advance. In 1914 congress endorsed a national father's day resolution. But by 1917 most of the nation's fathers were "doing their bit" either at home or "over there." These grim, sorrowful times called a halt on the natural expansion of Father's Day. But even then the A. E. F. official newspaper overseas, "The Stars and Stripes," instituted a Father's Day celebration for the American troops in France with the express commendation of General Pershing. After the World War another congressional resolution was introduced in 1919. But a resolution is only a resolution—without the aid of legislation, was the first successful attempt made to observe the day nationally on a given date, the third Sunday in June.

Mrs. Dodd's original idea of wearing a red rose for living fathers and a white rose for those who have passed on, will be carried out as is the long established custom next Sunday.

Next Sunday many a pulpit will hold forth on father and his virtues, so often taken as a matter of course. Dad also will be a stage and screen "idol"—in person—as thousands of theaters are giving special programs for him. Eulogies in his praise will "go on the air" to millions of radio listeners.
