Villa-Hart Wedding Is This Evening

Leading the social events of the week is the wedding of Miss Virginia Villa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Villa, and Robert C. Hart, son of Mrs. Anna Hart, which will be solemnized at 7 o'clock this evening in the beautiful garden of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stewart, Genesee street, Rev. Wm. B. Hamilton of St. Mark's Episcopal church officiating.

Miss Villa has been the inspiration for many affairs in local circles since her arrival on Medford from Marysville, Cal., where she was instructor in the city schools. The wedding this evening will be attended by relatives and a few friends of the bride and groom.

Bohls Leave Tomorrow For Portland Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bohls and son Edward, and daughter Gloria, have Woodlawn orchard near Central Point today for their home in Portland. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. DuBoune, who recently purchased the Bohls orchard in this valley will occupy it at an early date. The Bohls will be greatly missed in social and club circles, in which they have played an active part. Mrs. Bohls as a member of the local group of Oregon Mothers has done much to advance the educational interests of the community.

McMaths Return From South

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McMath and son Barton, and daughter Flora, have returned to Medford from a two weeks' motor trip through southern California and Mexico. They enjoyed several days at Tia Juana while away.

Dixie Club Enjoys Picnic on the Rogue

Thirty-five southerners of Medford gathered at Four Oaks, country place of Mr. and Mrs. John Peter at Shady Cove on Rogue river, yesterday for the last session of the club before adjournment for the summer. There was a picnic with a typical southern dinner of fried chicken and all accessories, served cafeteria style, between 5 and 6 o'clock.

Swimming was enjoyed by many members prior to the dinner and others spent the afternoon lounging on the natural beach and beneath the large trees which skirt the river.

The next meeting of the Dixie club will be held the last Saturday in September when Miss Dorothy Berry will be hostess to the group.

Guests of Soilers Over Week End

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Watson and son, Eddy, of this city were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Snider at their cabin at Shady Cove over the week end.

Dick Isaacs Sunday Host

Dick Isaacs entertained several friends at his father's country home, Big Rock lodge on Rogue River over the week end. Swimming and fishing were enjoyed.

Is Guest Here

Miss Betty Bernan of Portland is guest in this city of her sister, Mrs. M. H. Swannam this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hansen and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wakefield were among Medford people who spent Sunday motoring to Crescent City.

Vacations Call Residents Away

Vacation time is here, and each day sees another member of Medford society leaving for beach, mountains or busy cities to spend several weeks. Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Howard left Sunday for a two weeks' motor trip and will spend several days at Diamond Lake and other resorts. Mrs. Alice Coppen plans to leave tomorrow for Oakland, Cal., where she will spend two or three weeks combining business with pleasure.

Mrs. Hill to Give Luncheon

Mrs. Georgia Hill of New York City, who is in the city representing the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, is giving a luncheon in the private dining room at the Hotel Medford Tuesday at 12:15. Civic leaders and those interested in the work are cordially invited by Mrs. Hill to be present at the luncheon.

Elliot's Entertain

Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Elliot entertained a group of friends at their cabin at Shady Cove Sunday. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bronner and daughters, Fredericka and Louise, and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Matthews and son George.

Vacation at Pelican Bay

Mr. and Mrs. John Peter and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith will leave Medford by motor tomorrow for Pelican Bay to spend the week at the Smith cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Tollefson

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Tollefson, Mr. and Mrs. L. Alvin Tollefson, the Misses Peggy and Justine Miller, Merleand Tollefson and Jack Murray were among the local people spending Sunday at Diamond Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Palm

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Palm returned to this city from spending a two weeks' vacation at Bendon.

FLOWER LOVERS LUNCH TUESDAY WITH MRS. HILL

"Share your flowers and fruit" is a slogan carried out by the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, an organization for the spreading of "sunshine, happiness, cooperation and friendliness" among the people in the community, of which Mrs. George B. Hill of New York City is special representative.

In order to give the local people an idea of the work sponsored by the guild, Mrs. Hill is meeting a number of the civic leaders, those interested in flower beautification, and education in gardening, at a luncheon tomorrow noon at 12:15 in the private dining room of Hotel Medford. Reservations are to be made by this evening.

Mrs. Hill is only stopping in Medford for a short time en route to Portland where a guild was organized last September, and is anxious to see what can be done here.

Having attended the special meeting of the Garden club Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Hill expressed satisfaction in the program being carried out by the club, and especially the contest now in progress for the children's gardens.

KIWANIANS TOLD PROGRAM AHEAD IN DEVELOPMENT

A. H. Danwell, executive secretary of the Southern Oregon-Northern California Development Association, outlined the plans of the association at today's luncheon of the Kiwanis club, stressing the importance of the organization's efforts to the future of southern Oregon. Other speakers filled out the remainder of the program.

Mr. Danwell told of the mineral conference to be held at Grants Pass July 13, followed by the agricultural conference here this fall and the timber conference at Klamath Falls. An imposing list of speakers are being obtained for the three sessions.

C. C. Lemmon, recently returned from a trip through Washington, reported that pear and apple crops look good in the Yakima and Wenatchee districts, but said that the cherry crop had suffered somewhat as a result of frost.

In the absence of Charles Butterfield, president, who is at Astoria, Carl Y. Tengwald presided.

In the course of the luncheon, he told of the success of the annual Oregon National Guard encampment and Camp Clatsop and thanked the club for the ice cream it had ordered for the members of the local companies. He also compared business conditions between Medford and Astoria.

The attendance prize was won today by J. G. Fowler.

MANSFIELD SUES STAGE OPERATORS

The suit of A. J. Mansfield of this city against the Southern Oregon Stages, for alleged damages totaling $26,500, was underway in circuit court today, with the morning session occupied with the securing of a jury.

Mansfield alleges that on March 9, 1929, while driving a coupe on the Clatskanie road, he was forced into the ditch by a stage approaching from the rear. He alleges that the stage gave no warning, and that the rain wiper of the stage was not working. The Mansfield car, it is alleged, was swerved about and as a result the plaintiff suffered numerous and serious injuries.

The defense sets up a claim of contributory negligence.

Mansfield seeks $10,000 personal damages, $10,000 punitive damages, $500 for auto loss and $100 for medical services.

Laughing Talkie At Craterian Today

Jack Oskie, the personification of wise-cracking American youth, has been getting better and better in each succeeding picture. It is therefore nothing short of unalloyed joy to see and hear the irrepressible Jack, in his most recent "wise guy" role, that of Marcus Perkins in "The Social Lion," which opened at the Fox Craterian theater yesterday, and pleased the adults and those not

A NICE GIRL COMES TO TOWN

By Myrtle Greig

SPONSOR: The break-up of one romance leads to another, or Mary Lou Lettice when she comes to town for a visit. She is courted by Raymond Whitehouse as "Tommy" and he becomes engaged to her. Mary Lou then attends a round of parties with Tony Titherington, a young suitor. Tony's attention is to be around the world, and he seeks success because of a young suitor. She seems particularly interested in Tony with whom Tony goes and "kisses girls" but he favors her. Tony decides to take Mary Lou for her inspection in the hope that she will approve of her. Aunt Ethelberta, an eccentric spinster, is courted with Mary Lou at first but takes time to be sure she knows that Mary Lou is "reasonable" and knows a few things about gardening.

Chapter 14 A DILEMMA FOR TONY

IN the dining room, delightful with its old fireplace and antique furniture, Mary Lou met the other two members of Miss Titherington's household.

Mrs. Fawcett, the elderly widow of an Indian army colonel, lived with her as a companion. She and Miss Titherington once had been schoolmates. The other inmate of "Hain Green Cottage" was a Miss Pitts, a maid of all work. She was a buxom country girl.

The informal atmosphere soon made Mary Lou feel quite at home, much to her surprise. Her nervousness disappeared as Miss Pitts served lunch.

"I suppose you and Tony see a great deal of each other in town," Miss Titherington said, as the first course was being cleared away.

"Oh, yes, Mary Lou and I are great pals," Tony answered for her. "Playtime pals. Dancing together, rides together, you know."

Was it Mary Lou's imagination, or had he deliberately stressed the words "playtime pals"? Miss Titherington appeared to notice it, too.

"I hear this season is fairly jolly in town," she said.

"Not half as jolly, I'm sure, as the seasons used to be in India before the war," Mrs. Fawcett began.

Miss Titherington looked depressed.

"You must bring Mary Lou down for a week-end," she interrupted, addressing Tony.

"Great," he said. "I'll do it."

"Have you taken Mary Lou up yet?"

"Not yet," said Tony. "I'm going to ask her to go up with me some day next week."

Mary Lou's eyes shone excitedly. Oh, it was to go up. Will you really take me, Tony?"

"Sure," Tony told her.

"Well, you can have your flights," said Miss Titherington. "Nothing would induce me to go up in one of those abominable contraptions."

She reached for a little Swiss cowbell and rang it sharply.

"You can clear away," she said to Miss Pitts. Then to Mary Lou, "Come along with me. I'll take you around and show you the garden."

Miss Titherington talked volubly in gardening matters and seemed pleased with Mary Lou's intelligent comments. Some time later, as they stood in one of the hot houses inspecting some tomatoes, Tony's aunt remarked suddenly:

"Tell me, child, are you playing about with my nephew, or are you seriously fond of him?"

Mary Lou wished Miss Titherington wouldn't insist on asking such embarrassing questions. What was her idea, anyway?

"W—why, I—I'm fond of Tony, surely," she stammered.

Miss Titherington nodded.

"That's what I wanted to know. I've always been fond of him myself, yet I can't understand any girl's wanting to marry him. But then," she chuckled, "I don't suppose we ever can understand why anyone should want to marry our relatives."

His aunt's disposition was so genial at tea time that Tony decided to broach the subject of his contemplated flight as soon as possible. There was an opportunity when Mrs. Fawcett ured Mary Lou upstairs to see a collection of Indian brass ornaments.

"Look here, Aunt Ethelberta," he began. "I'm dead keen to start preparations for that flight around the world. Remember, I told you about it some time ago?"

"I remember," Miss Titherington's mouth shut like a trap.

Tony coughed nervously.

"And—I—I'd be most awfully grateful if you would help me out—"

"Help you out? What can I do? I'm no mechanic. What are you driving at?"

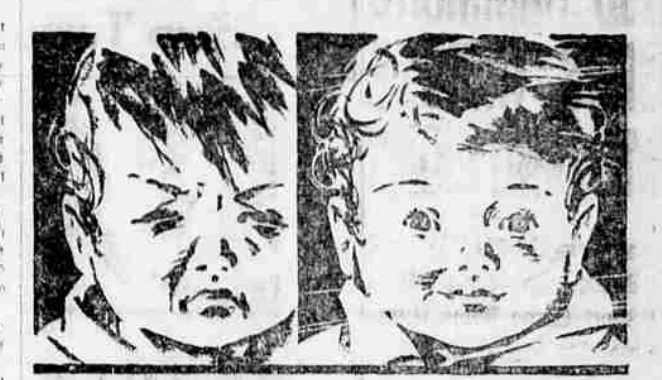

"It—it's about the expense," he began again, this time more diffidently.

"Well, why on earth didn't you say so in the first place?" snapped Miss Titherington.

Tony swallowed twice in an effort to get control of himself.

"I was only trying to be tactful, you see."
