

AIR CHAMPS ANGERED BY PRESS YARN

One of Hunter Boys Threatens to Jump Out of Plane After Reading Newspaper—Ground Crew Chided for Disclosing Notes.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 3.—(AP)—John and Kenneth Hunter, coplains of the "City of Chicago" which started today on the 520th hour aloft at 7:40 a. m. (est) threatened a half hour later to bring down the plane, which has exceeded the previous non-stop record by almost 100 hours, unless published reports of Kenneth's desire to quit were corrected.

Also with the passing of the 520th hour the offer of an oil company of $100 an hour, now amounting to $10,000, expired. The offer began with the breaking of the previous record.

John Hunter dropped a note today expressing keen disappointment and dissatisfaction because of the partial publication of confidential messages between the brothers.

Yesterday the contents of a note to Walter and Albert Hunter, pilots of the refueling plane, were not made public, but one of the brothers was quoted as saying that Kenneth, the youngest brother, was "getting tired and wanted to land" at 520 hours.

John and Kenneth previously had expressed a determination to remain in the air until after July 4.

Sends Hot Message.
Today's message signed by John follows:
"Walt—Al—Read this to yourselves:
"Say who in the hell put that damn in the paper about Beams getting worried and nervous. Whoever done it had a damn little to do after him crawling around on this ship night and day trying to bring the record to Chicago. Then somebody put that line of slush in the paper. Can't I write a damn thing to you guys without it getting in paper. I only told you that he was hard to wake up and so on. I. This raged plenty of hell between me and him. He came damn near jumping out in chute and it wouldn't take a hell of a lot to make me do the same. Now I want this corrected or this ship will land quick. If he was that way anybody had damn little to do after him staying this long.
"We want this bull stuff stopped and put in right stuff."

THOMPSON CREEK

THOMPSON CREEK, Ore., July 3.—(Sp.)—Miss Oletta Potts of Cottage Grove visited at the home of Mrs. Pauline Elmore of Thompson Creek Thursday and Friday last week. Miss Potts attended the Free Methodist conference in Medford.
F. L. Jordan leaves this week for Monterey, Cal. to work this summer.
A. Hart of Thompson creek left Monday for Walla Walla, Wash., to take charge of a harvesting crew.
Due to change of routes, Monday, June 30, was the last day O. P. Knox delivered mail at Thompson creek.
Miss Berthea Penick spent the week end at the Nelson home, returning to Medford Monday with Mr. Nelson and daughter Evelyn.

SEALS IN HIGH COMPRESSION POWER

MOTORITE is refined to meet the high speed requirements of the new high compression motors. It is the oiliest oil known. It has a great capacity for carrying away and giving up heat. It resists dilution by giving up stray gasoline in the form of vapor. It is entirely free from acid forming properties. It forms NO hard carbon. It seals in high compression giving 200 EXTRA miles of lubrication. Refill with MOTORITE. Only 25¢ a quart at any UNION Station. Tune in Union Oil Radio Program every evening between 5:30 and 5:45 over station KEN.

LAKE CREEK

LAKE CREEK, Ore., July 3.—(Special)—Mrs. Roy Grigsby and children, Donald and Richard, who have been staying with Harry

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem best, most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under whose auspices these Rights have been violated, and the People have been reduced to a state of Oppression and Tyranny.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

pects of bountiful crops in southern Oregon.
"This is the best looking, wide-awake city we have seen since leaving Portland," said Mr. Smeler.

HUBER OCCUPIES FIR ST. LOCATION

F. J. Huber, tailor and haberdasher, is now located in his new store at 15 North Fir street. He moved from the former headquarters, 113 East Main, July 1.
The rooms have been remodeled and redecorated in order to furnish sufficient space for the display of suits and materials. Mr. Huber, who has been in business in this city for the past 10 years and has a large number of customers throughout the Rogue River valley, stated that he made the change because the new place is more convenient and better lighted. In addition to tailoring and selling goods, The Huber store do cleaning and pressing.

Patriotic Radio Program July 4

Gold Medal "Fast Freight" radio program for Friday, July 4: Music with a geographical flavor will be heard on this program over stations KJJ, Los Angeles; KOL, Seattle-Tacoma; KFRG, San Francisco; KFPY, Spokane; KFBK, Sacramento; KOIN, Portland; KML, Fresno; KDYL, Salt Lake City (7:30 p. m. Mountain time) at 4:30. The selections refer to many regions of the country and include "Hello Swane," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" and "Carolina Moon," sung by the quartet; "California, Here I Come," "Maine Stein Song," "St. Louis Blues" and "Underneath the Texas Moon," played by the "Fast Freight" orchestra, and in conclusion the Spanish, Egyptian and Irish versions of the "Stars and Stripes."

LOCAL TEST ON ENDURANCE OF PLYMOUTH CAR

Lee Cathey, well known automobile stunt driver, has signed a contract with the Plymouth dealer of Medford to conduct one of the most severe motor tests ever staged in this country. At two o'clock Thursday afternoon, July 19, Cathey will begin his 50-hour economy non-stop run from this city at the wheel of a Plymouth. Medford dealers who handle Plymouth motor cars, and will sponsor the endurance event, are Eakin Motor company, Mendocino River valley, stated that he made the change because the new place is more convenient and better lighted. In addition to tailoring and selling goods, The Huber store do cleaning and pressing.

Sheriff Ralph Jennings will place the official seals on the motor and radiator cap of the Chrysler so that no oil or water can be added during the entire 50-hour drive, which will end Saturday, July 12.
Lee Cathey has conducted similar economy and endurance tests in many of the large cities of the United States and is known as one of the foremost test drivers in the country. Other local Medford firms will co-operate with Mr. Cathey and the Plymouth dealers in staging the remarkable 50-hour run.
Bell Hop Killed.
McMINNVILLE, July 3.—(AP)—Max George, Portland bell hop, who was injured in the automobile accident which killed two and injured two others, died in a hospital here early today. Earl Knott, district attorney, said there would be no inquest.

What you expect you get with Anheuser-Busch Budweiser Barley-Malt Syrup. LIGHT OR DARK RICH IN BODY NOT BITTER.

July 7-13 NORTHWEST AMATEUR BAND CONTEST $3,000 IN CASH AND MERCHANDISE PRIZES. 30 bands will compete—30 bands will play en masse under Clay Smith of Chicago, nationally famous band master.

Jantzen BEACH Portland's Million Dollar Playground.

GOLD HILL

GOLD HILL, Ore., July 3.—(Sp.)—O. C. Stanwood returned Thursday from Portland, where he went to receive medical attention. Mrs. Geo. Hammerley and children, Billy and Jeanne, are spending the week at Diamond Lake. Mr. Hammerley will spend the Fourth and week end with them and all will return to this city the first of next week.
Ray Wyatt of this city was fined $25 and costs in Justice Reed's court last week for fishing without a license.
Mrs. H. D. Reed returned Friday from a 10 days visit in Portland with friends.
Among those from this city to attend the house-warming given Mr. and Mrs. John Badish at their new home in Jacksonville Friday evening were Mrs. Maude Robinson, Mrs. M. L. Stichel and the Misses Bertha and Eva Coy.
J. M. Lively and John Marston, Jr. were Medford visitors from this city Saturday.
Mrs. Minnie Sargent and son Melvin left Tuesday morning by motor for a trip along the coast. Miss Bertha Coy, school clerk, was in Medford Saturday calling on County School Superintendent Carter.
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robinson were Medford visitors Thursday.
The writer of these items wishes to correct an error in the last item. It is George Dorman of this city who is ill and not Charles Garman of Central Point, as stated last week.
Sprague Reigel of Medford was a business visitor here Tuesday.
Ernest Lyman and brother and party of Central Point were dinner guests at the Rogue Nook Inn Sunday.
Dan Sheldon of Butte Falls was a visitor in this city the fore part of the week.
Mrs. M. L. Stichel was a Medford visitor Wednesday.
Mrs. Ray Moore of Marshfield is visiting at the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dol Moore of this city.
Joe Blair, accompanied by Joe Lewis and family, left Thursday morning for a week or ten days in California.<