Miss Norris Will Visit Radio Folk Station KGO Who Interpret Plays

She has caught their voices from the air many times sitting at home in the evening. She has read their letters over and over until she feels she almost knows them. And yet they are to her, these friends of the radio, almost dream people. Soon they will shed their fairy coats and live in reality. For Helen Norris, well known local author, whose radio plays have won national prominence, will leave Monday for San Francisco to visit for the first time her studio friends of KGO.
"I'm making the trip alone," she said this morning. "My first expedition of this sort. I've wanted to go for so long." Her smile expressed a disregard for her entreaties. "I'm going to get along fine, I know. I will be met in Oakland by my friend, Miss Grace Welamiller of New York. She will take care of me. I'm so anxious to meet everyone."
Miss Norris, secretary of KGO, was in Medford last week to extend, again the invitation of the studio people to Miss Norris, whose plays they have broadcast with such pleasure, to visit them in San Francisco. She has completed all arrangements for the Medford author's stay in the bay city.
While in the north Miss Norris will be entertained extensively by the studio group, in which are many names familiar to all radio fans—Howard Milholland, announcer and program director; Grace Michie, whose half hour biography programs and "World Wanderings" are enjoyed each Wednesday and Sunday, and Willa Wilson Church.
Miss Welamiller will accompany Miss Norris back to Medford and remain here for two weeks as her house guest.
