PHILLIES SWING POWERFUL BATS AGAINST ROBINS

Floundering Team With Weak Pitchers Has Best Offensive—Giants Make Big Gain.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
Philadelphia's National League club, one of the most powerful arrays of sluggers in the National league, has been floundering thru the season going from bad to worse as pitchers failed to hold the rival batters in check, but every so often the Phillies burst out with an exhibition of hitting that holds forth more than one ray of hope for their fans.

It was a rather dismal crowd that assembled at Baker bowl yesterday to watch the Phillies swing their bats against the league leading Brooklyn Robins with every prospect of meeting their twelfth straight defeat. Things were different at the end for the Phillies gave an effective demonstration of why they are leading the National league in hitting and came out with a 12 to 7 triumph.

Giants Gain

The New York Giants, who seem to be threatening the leaders in a serious way, made a big gain against the Boston Braves by an 11 to 5 decision. It placed them five games behind the leaders and only three back of Chicago.

The Pittsburgh Pirates did still better with their third straight one-run victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and their fifth successive triumph, moving out of the second division into a tie with the Cards for fourth place by a 4 to 3 win.

With five games on the cards, the American league had one of its days when pitching counted heavily and batting comparatively little. Wes Ferrell of Cleveland and Ted Liza of Chicago were the outstanding in a unit performers, each winning his 10th victory of the season. Ferrell had a great duel with Ferrell and Cantrell of Detroit and finally triumphed, 6 to 3.

Lyons Stings

Lyons held the St. Louis Browns to four hits in the second game of a doubleheader and won it 1 to 0 after Garland Braxton had pitched Chicago to a 16 to 2 victory in the first.

George Barnshaw of Philadelphia pitched another four-hit game against Washington, but he developed a streak of wildness in the ninth inning and Moose Grove had to come to his rescue to give the Athletics a 4 to 3 victory.

The New York Yankees downed the Red Sox, 14 to 13, in a game full of hits and errors. Lou Gehrig's 33rd homer made with the bases full in the seventh inning, gave the Yankees the decision altho they were out 17 to 12, and made seven of the 13 errors.

Don Moe Analyzes Golfing Success of American Players As Due to Study and Effort

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—American golfers beat British golfers because they pay more attention to form, take longer interest in the scientific angles of the game and, generally speaking, try harder, Don Moe, Portland's youthful wizard of the links and youngest member of America's victorious Walker cup team, believes.

The tall, bronzed University of Oregon star has arrived here after taking part in the western open at Chicago and the American open tournament at Minneapolis. With him is Vincent Dolp, his fellow townsman, also an entrant in the two middle west tournaments. The Portland boys left by boat for Seattle, en route home.

"English golfers are the best sportsmen I've ever encountered," Moe said, describing his impression of the Walker cup matches. "But successive victories by invading American teams are forcing them to adopt the American style of play in self defense. This calls for closer attention to the development of form, a feature in which the English players have shown weakness."

Don Moe, Portland's youthful wizard of the links and youngest member of America's victorious Walker cup team, believes.

BUSH LEAGUERS ENTER DISPUTE ON SUNDAY TILT

Apparently the valley bush league is in the throes of dissension following a game played at Grant service station last Sunday between the Jacksonville Pirates and Kenwood. The latter won by a score of 16 to 4, but the Pirates claim that it was not a fair victory, inasmuch as most of the team was made up of Talent players. Now the losers claim they played Talent instead of Kenwood.

However, A. D. Hall, manager of the Kenwood team, was called at the Mail Tribune news room this morning and wanted it emphatically understood that while Talent men may have been playing on the team, it was Kenwood, nevertheless, that defeated Jacksonville. The Jacksonville team, through its manager, Louis Puhl, continues to claim they suffered defeat at the hands of the Talent nine.

Kenwood further claims that it holds second place in the league much to the chagrin of Jacksonville which also claims second place and does not relish the idea of being relegated to third position. Talent is accorded first place.

PETE CERKAN AWARDED TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

Bob Stevens, Oakland, 169, won a decision over Jack Ryan, 164, of Salem, Ore.

FATHER OF MARANVILLE DIES SUDDENLY AT 72

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Five days after he had attended a baseball celebration honoring his son, Ward E. Maranville, 72, died suddenly at his home.

The father of Ezzit Maranville, shortstop of the Boston Braves, retired from active service in the police department a month ago.

STARS IN FRONT AS DUCKS YIELD EASY VICTORIES

Keating, Newly Acquired Pitcher Bombed for 12 to 4 Win—Seals Take Third From Sacs.

By the Associated Press
Hollywood, having downed Portland, 12 to 4, for their fifth straight win last night, lead the league. The Stars jumped on Keating in his first start for Portland after being traded to them by Sacramento, and were never headed.

San Francisco held a record of three straight victories over Sacramento, as they won yesterday, 9 to 5. Curtis Davis scattered the Senator hits, while Wingo's four-bagger in the first started the Stars off, and six clean hits in the sixth won the game for them.

Avengeing the banishment by an umpire of Buzz Arlett and Manager Zambach in the ninth, Oakland came from behind after two were out in the last period to defeat Los Angeles, 5 to 2, and were tied with the Seals and Angels in third place.

That Seattle can play better than cellar baseball had been proved today, and as a result the Indians were above the bottom rung. Two homers and the bang-up pitching of Frank Lamanski were features yesterday when Seattle trimmed the Missions, 8 to 1.

The Missions dropped from first place in the standings and Fern Pelletie added a defeat to his record.

In spite of the fact that Pat Malone and Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs were at the ring-side, Delbert Lee Humphries could have announced the batter's other night at the ball park: Al Singer, pitcher; Sammy Mandell, catcher.

In the first inning Mandell's left hand reached out and caught a hot ball, "high and wide." Sammy immediately went into a trance and stopped a lot of wild pitches and wound up flat on his back in 1 1/2 minutes, 46 seconds, very fast time on any champion's finish, at least, was strictly on the level. A good time was had by all who bet briskly on Singer, giving long odds beforehand.

WALTER JOHNSONS WIFE DEAD AFTER TRYING AUTO TRIP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A long series of misfortunes for Walter Johnson, one of baseball's best loved figures, culminated today with the death of his wife, Hazel Roberts Johnson.

Johnson, manager of the Washington Americans, was in uniform yesterday for the game with the league leading Philadelphia Athletics when a phone call came from physicians at Georgetown hospital.

He left the park hurriedly and shortly afterwards his big frame tumbled into his wife's room. He was told her condition was serious, that a recent automobile trip from Coffeyville, Kansas, through the intense heat had sapped her strength but a long rest would probably restore her to health. She was completely exhausted, however, and early today she died. She was 36 years of age.

The doctor of Johnson and his wife was prophetic. She was the daughter of former Representative E. E. Roberts of Nevada, and also was an athlete.

With Rod and Gun In Rogue Valley

By Ernest Rostel and Dick Green

The claim advanced in this column a short time ago by an old time southern Oregon resident that light burning or the regular burning of underbrush is of great benefit to forest land for fire and game protection is questioned by officials of the Crater National forest headquarters here.

Proponents of this method believe it would be instrumental in future timber growth and would encourage grazing grass.

Removal of the brush would not accomplish these results, but on the contrary, say the foresters, would bring on a situation far worse than that presented by the brush. It is not a useless weed growth and it has important functions in the economy of the forest, including as the most important that of serving as a nurse cover to young forest trees. When land, brush soon begins to take possession, with perhaps grass first. In the course of a few years, seedling trees spring up here and there, rather sparsely scattered, under the cover of the brush, often working in from the sides of a wide area from seed trees beyond brush.

At the time the large private holdings of timberland were acquired in California 20 to 30 years ago, public opinion in the pine region regarded fire as a benefit rather than a detriment. Tradition credited Indians with periodic burning of the forest; the crude forms of agriculture, such as grazing, employed fire to induce the growth of forage; in fact, nearly every industry of the early days used fire promiscuously.

The simple needs of the population for wood were not seriously affected by forest burning, and forest lands as a source of timber were in the people's mind only to a very small extent. With evidence of past fires in the forests, and the fact that splendid forests had persisted through these fires, it was logical for the timber owner also to argue that periodic burning was not only desirable, but necessary as a protective measure against the terrifically destructive crown fire, which many of these lumbermen had learned to fear in the lake states.

The establishment of national forests in 1891 found the practice well founded. Exclusion of light burning was regarded as something preposterous and leading to crown fires in the national forest land. The brush upon a hill is described by forest officials as similar to a protecting seal on a wound. Bare soil is likened to a wound on the earth's surface, and the brush as a protective covering. If the covering is removed continuously, erosion results.

It is sometimes alleged that presence of brush makes game difficult to hunt and of game, especially the deer, is not so plentiful as when the brush is removed. If the brush is attractive as a home, if the brush is destroyed, the game is driven to more protected land.

A hunter does not enjoy the hunt on open plains or barren rocks, and furthermore, say the foresters, the brush gives the game a fighting chance for self-preservation. The killing of the American buffalo on the western plains is cited as an example.

A forest official today made the following statement:

"That the burning of brush will prevent a great fire sometime sweeping the country is a dangerous fallacy. Every brush fire recurring on a slope is hotter and more dangerous than the last, for after each fire not only does the brush return, but beneath it is the accumulated dry rubbish from former fires, which adds greatly to the fury of the flames. A fire set at any time to burn out the brush may start the dreaded conflagration which may sweep beyond control, and each brush fire which does not, only increases this hazard.

"Burn off the brush and brush will return as long as soil is left to support it. Keep fire out and Later out comes corn, callous, roots and all. Guaranteed to never fail. Ask druggist for O-Joy Corn Wafers—six wafers for 10c.

the forest will eventually return. "Burn off the brush to help grazing and rob the country of its two great future sources of wealth—its timber and streams. "Burn off the brush to get the game easier and drive the game away by destroying its home, and the fish by drying up the water in which they live. "Burn off the brush for doubtful present needs, and leave the country desolate for the future."
