Musical Talent of Child Visitor Shown in Recital
(By Mrs. E. E. Gore.)
"You are being paged," piped Miss Marjorie Westcott to her accompanist, Mrs. George Andrews, as she prepared to sing her encore after an intermission following tea and a delightful program of songs at the home of Mrs. L. A. Salade, Jr., Thursday afternoon.

Miss Marjorie, who lives in Chicago, is the niece of Mrs. Salade and Mrs. Marjorie Peasley, and with her mother, Mrs. Westcott, is visiting in Medford. She is now 11 years old and has been studying voice, piano and languages since five years of age. She sings in French, Italian, German and Swedish, while her English diction is faultless. Her voice is exquisitely placed and lovely in quality and her phrasing and interpretation are controlled by artistic feeling.

Hanna Butler, her great-aunt, is also her teacher. The "Bell Song" from Lakme, with its difficult sustained notes reaching "E in altissimo," were marked by singular beauty and clarity of tone.

Nothing is more universal than the longing on the part of parents that their children shall have self-expression through music, and nothing is more elusive and subtle than bringing such talent to flower. It seems that once in a long time, through forces over which we have little control, the destined essence of this longing is concentrated in some fortunate child and a Yehudi, a Rieci, a Marjorie, is the result.

Marjorie's voice is a coloratura-soprano of exceptional range and beauty and all that childish simplicity.

About 60 guests enjoyed Mrs. Salade's hospitality.
