“Lady of Scandal” Shows at Craterian

Ruth Chatterton, as a musical comedy actress, who by heretofore, is adopted into a family of British aristocrats, romps through a series of whimsically comic scenes educating the peasant in cocktails and jazz and then suddenly springs a surprise in the most gripping of dramatic denouements.

This is the actress' achievement in “The Lady of Scandal,” Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of Frederick Lonsdale's celebrated stage play, “The High Road,” which is now showing at the Craterian theatre.

It is a collection of snappy-like wit in dialogue, whimsically clever lines and situations which suddenly precipitate a tremendous dramatic situation as the heroine sacrifices her lover to the woman whose need of him is greater than hers.

Basil Rathbone, delineator of sophisticates, appears in the leading male role opposite Miss Chatterton and Ralph Forbes plays the lover. Both leave nothing to be desired in the handling of two difficult roles.
