

Local and Personal

County Agent's Office Quiet Place
The county agent's office has been a quiet place so far this week as County Agent R. G. Fowler left Saturday to attend the convention of national county agents in Chicago, and County Agent L. D. Wilcox has been laid up at home with a cold, which centered in his throat. This situation enables Mrs. Gladys York, the office stenographer, and clerk, to give orders and directions to herself between short rests from trying to catch up in back work.

Council Meeting Tonight
The first city council meeting of the month will be held this evening, at which much routine business and one or two matters of importance will be considered.

Cochran Still With Pacific Mutual
This paper was in error last night in stating that J. H. Cochran had resigned as representative of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company. He is still agent for the company but not general agent for southern Oregon and northern California, as before. Mr. Cochran has written insurance in Medford for 27 years, ten of that time with the Pacific Mutual, and has had the honor several times of being a "top notcher" in writing insurance in this state.
