WARN MERCHANTS WOMAN SWINDLER MAY COME HERE

The Medford police warn merchants to be on the lookout these busy Christmas shopping days for check swindlers, and to be especially wary of cashing checks for any stranger who tenders a check much in excess of the charge for the amount of goods purchased.

Reports come of check artists' doings in various parts of the state working various schemes, to get a few or many dollars, and local druggists are especially warned to watch for a slender woman, about 25 years old, who left Kelso and Longview, Wash., recently, headed for western and southern Oregon territory.

Her method is to call on drug stores, making a small purchase and presenting a check for $5. She has a fair complexion, blue eyes, brown hair and wears a blue dress and a close fitting dark blue coat with a brown fur collar.

Medford Man Was Friend Of Buffalo Bill Cody In Pioneering Days of West

(By Eva Nealon)

"Hunger and thirst are terrible things. And I've known plenty of both. I traveled to Oregon over the original Lewis and Clarke trail," W. H. Williams, 78, a tall sinewy man with keen eyes and something of the stealth of the American Indian expressed in his walk and manner of approach, told members of The Mail Tribune staff yesterday as he leaned over the copy desk to discuss his trip across the plains and appreciation of "The Big Trail," recently shown at the Fox Craterian theatre.

His resemblance to the early American was soon explained.

"I was raised in the Dakotas among the Indians," he continued. "I couldn't speak any but the Indian language until I was seven years old. I knew no other. At the age of 11 I was interpreter for the government. The Indians would come in and sign a treaty and then go right back on the warpath. That's the way of the Indians." He smiled and the glint of his eyes became keener.

"William F. Cody and I were old chums. We traveled the range together for many years. We talked six Indian languages. Each Indian tribe has a different lingo but they all understand the same sign language. But they seldom get together to use it. They are generally at outs."

Speaking of the Oregon country and the Rogue River valley in particular, Mr. Williams said, "I went through here first in '78, en route to California. I was scouting for the government then, going out from Fort Laramie, Wyoming."

Mr. Williams is now located at the Rainbow auto camp on North Riverside. He likes southern Oregon and plans to stay here.

BOY SCOUT HIKE LATER IN MONTH

Plans were being completed today for a Boy Scout hike December 29-31 for first class scouts, it was announced today. About 20 are expected to make the trip.

The boys will go to Lake o' the Woods by way of Butte Falls. They will ski to the Boy Scout camp, where they stored supplies last summer. About 20 scouts of the Klamath council, under the leadership of Oscar Hoover, will also be at the camp.

Wm. Lee Bricker, local scout executive, and Mickey Franklin, assistant scout master of troop 13, Ashland, will accompany the scouts of Crater Lake council.

Wedding Bells

Announcement was made in Medford today of the marriage of Sylvia Paul and Warren Akers, who are now making their home in the Palmer apartments. They were married in Grants Pass Saturday and were accompanied by Nohn Carper and Rosa Akers. Mr. Akers operates the shoe shining parlor at Brown's.

GOLD HILL BOYS HAD RUM, CLAIM

Three Gold Hill young men, Arthur Biles, David Biles and Ray Wyatt, are in the county jail charged with possession of moonshine following their arrest yesterday by the sheriff's office in wooded country near Gold Hill.

They are accused of having attempted to run away from the officers when the latter came to a small cabin where the boys are said to have been making their headquarters. They started running, each carrying a five-gallon keg filled with alleged moonshine, but they were soon overtaken by the officers. No still was found.

MYRTLE CREEK FARMER IS SLAIN BY OFFICERS

WALSENBURG, Colo., Dec. 11 —(AP)—Jake Farber, of Myrtle Creek, Ore., was shot in the Colorado and Southern railroad yards here today by three Pueblo officers who took into custody two escaped convicts from the Colorado penitentiary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Miller and children were guests Sunday at the Tingleaf home at Eagle Point.

The difference is due to the fact that pupils ordinarily graduating in January will carry subjects the second semester in order that they might participate in the commencement exercises.
