

STATE NEED PLACED AT 8 MILLION

Legislature Will Be Asked to Appropriate Funds for Next Two Years—Sum Is Half Million Over Previous Biennium.

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 9.—The state legislature will be called upon to appropriate $8,616,936 of the estimated expenditures for the years 1931 and 1932. It is shown in the annual report of State Budget Director Sam A. Koeer, made public last night. The 1929 legislature appropriated $8,022,369, approximately $594,567 less than the sum to be provided for this year.

The total estimated expenditures for the biennium is more than $86,427,000, the state budget shows, which includes about $12,000,000 in trust funds. The difference between the amount the legislature will be called upon to appropriate and the total expenditures is represented mostly by self-sustaining activities which receive their funds from sources other than by legislative appropriations. Self-sustaining activities, such as the state highway commission, accident commission, world war veterans state aid commission and other agencies, will expend an estimated total of $48,608,176. The remainder is made up from millage levies, continuing appropriations or additional license fees.

Deficit Is $3,091,175.

The net state deficit on December 31, 1930, is $3,091,175.19, which includes the deficiency authorizations of the emergency board for the 1929-1930 expenditures, the report states.

Major capital outlays recommended by the governor during the two years total $492,729, as compared with a total of $422,443 appropriated by the 1929 legislature. The capital outlay recommended is in addition to the ordinary requirements for salaries, operating and maintenance expenses.

The largest item of capital outlay is $225,000 recommended for a new wing and garage building at the Eastern Oregon state hospital.

Other Items Shown.

Other items include $129,000 for construction of the state office building, which has yet to run several biennial periods; $96,000 for construction of a hospital and physician's residence at the state tuberculosis hospital at Salem; $37,800 for construction of a pavilion, dining room extension and equipment at the eastern Oregon hospital at The Dalles; $28,139 for a tubercular ward and hog fuel shed at the Oregon state hospital at Salem; $22,500 for building and furnishing a dormitory at the state institution for feeble-minded at Salem; $15,000 for the extension of the heating plan at the Capitol building to the state office building; $10,000 for a refrigeration plant at the state penitentiary; $20,190 for additions to the supreme court library, and $50,000 to aid in construction of a training school building at the Eastern Oregon Normal school, contingent upon the LaGrande school district providing $80,000.

The department of higher education is requesting in the aggregate the same amount for their functioning during the next two years as was available during the past biennium, approximately $6,397,872, including the deficiency appropriations.

"Moby Dick" Scores Holly Hit

The murderous looking crew that works with John Barrymore in the Warner Brothers and Vitaphone picture "Moby Dick," now playing at the Holly theatre, was hand picked by the star in person, and has probably never been equalled.

For such a voyage as mad Captain Ahab planned—the apparently endless chase of "Moby Dick," the man-killng white whale—the shanghaied men from the dives of the seaports he visited, sailing in the Atlantic seaboard, Joan Bennett plays opposite Mr. Barrymore.

The part of Ahab, avenger of the victims of the white whale is Mr. Barrymore's most superb achievement. His voice was never heard to greater advantage.

The shows at the Holly tomorrow will be continuous, starting at 1:15.

"Masked Longing," Romance of Radio, Starts January 10

When "Masked Longing," Mail Tribune's next serial story, reaches the critics, they insisted the novel was an expose of the much-practiced art of hallyhoo. But the author, Howard Rockey, insists it isn't.

Rockey has spent most of his life behind the scenes in the theater, movies and, more recently, the radio studio. He knows the subtle tricks of "building up" the fame of stars and aspirants, but "Masked Longing" was written solely, he says, to tell an interesting story of the footlights and microphone, not to "debunk" Broadway.

Rockey is the author of a half dozen recent novels, including "This Woman," "Honeymoon's End," "The Chorus Kid" and "Lifelights," several plays and motion pictures.

The first chapter of "Masked Longing" will appear in The Mail Tribune Saturday, January 10.

"Canyon Hawks" Now Playing at Rialto

When little boys jump out of their seats and fairly burst with suppressed excitement when they see Yakima Canutt and Hazel Hatten, it is in what one would more or less expect from small boys seeing a real throbbing western. But when grown men cannot contain themselves and make it apparent that they are living every foot of the film as though they themselves were actually riding and shooting, one is indeed forced to admit that that is a sight worth seeing.

"Canyon Hawks," starring Yakima Canutt, which opens at the Fox Rialto theater today has plenty of excitement.

As the screen combatants struggled in a cloud of dust and a shower of rocks, as guns barked and horses raced down steep ravines, the audience seem to stand suspended in midair, as it were, and the sighs of relief that greet the conclusion of the story with the hero saved and the heroine safe beside him, is indication of the great heights of emotion to which the audience has been carried by the action of the picture.

Most outdoor pictures offer a feast in scenic effects but "Canyon Hawks" supplies a veritable banquet of the most astonishingly beautiful and awe inspiring natural wonders we have ever seen on the screen.

The heroine, Rene Borden, is a delightfully alert, lively young creature, good to look at and charming to watch as she rides over rough trails and faces danger without a quiver. The program also includes another chapter of "The Indians Are Coming" and a Mickey Mouse cartoon.

BILLBOARDS URGE EATING OF BREAD TO HELP FARMER

C. L. MacDonald of Foster & Kleiser company here, as a part of the nationwide advertising campaign to stimulate consumption of farm products launched by the Outdoor Advertising Association of America, Inc., has already posted 42 of the first posters, designed to stimulate more bread consumption and thereby help the wheat situation.

At the suggestion of the federal farm board, through the grain stabilization corporation, the Outdoor Advertising Association of America is backing a nationwide campaign to alleviate primarily the wheat situation, and to advocate greater consumption of farm products generally.

In over 17,000 cities and towns throughout the United States, the Outdoor Association will display 26,000 farmers' prosperity posters, representing a space cost alone in excess of $2,200,000.

The keynote of the campaign will be increased prosperity for the farmer upon whom national prosperity directly depends.

The posters that will go up within the next 10 days carry the slogan "Eat more farm products and you speed industrial employment." "Until the farmer is successful industry will not be fully employed."

This move on the part of the organized outdoor advertising of which Foster & Kleiser company is a member recalls to mind the work accomplished by the industry at other crucial periods in the history of the country, particularly during the days of the great war when millions of dollars worth of Liberty bonds were sold through the help of outdoor space donated to the government.
