

OVER EMPHASIS FOR GRID GAME FAULT OF FANS

Harvard Quarterback Star Believes Seat of Trouble Is Huge Crowds—Players Unaffected.

By BILL KING
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Although dozens of specialists have re-diagnosed football's ailments and again traced them back to the epidemic of over-emphasis, it has remained for a player, Harry Wood, Harvard captain-elect, to attempt to isolate the germ of this pernicious gridiron disease.

He believes that the stands of the amateur college stadium are the incubators of this germ and that the spectators are more susceptible to it than the players or the coaches.

Play for Fun
"Most of Harvard's over-emphasis," Wood said, "can be found in the stadium and not down on the playing field. Graduates and other supporters of the Harvard team are even more disturbed about the outcome of a game than the players themselves, most of whom play for the fun of the game."

Wood, a level-headed and clear-thinking youth who, as a forward passer ranks with the famed Benny Friedman, has no illusions about football. Though it is just a game, a source of pleasure to him, he has made an extensive study of it. As a quarterback he knows the coach's viewpoint as well as that of the player. He is convinced that neither is seriously affected by so-called over-emphasis.

Wood's idea of the football maelstrom is a game that provides pleasure for the victors and vanquished alike and satisfies every spectator.

Student of Sport
Resident being one of the most versatile athletes Harvard has had in a generation, Wood is also a Phi Beta Kappa. He is a deep student of all sports.

Another source of over-emphasis, he believes, is the colleges that disregard the fact that football belongs to the players. Wood cited the so-called progressive institutions that are always eager to expand every new football idea and have, in the past, forced a large and unwilling majority to follow their example. On this minority, Wood placed the blame for the great stress that has been laid on spring and pre-season practice. He considers this training unpleasant and unnecessary.

FIREMAN FRISBIE FACES TOUGH Foe WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Heavyweight wrestling champion of Australia, Ronnie Muir, came to the United States a few weeks ago to show American fans that Australians are handy in the ring. He will demonstrate in Medford next Wednesday with Ray Frisbie, the 200-pound local pride, as his opponent. In what is expected to be a hard fought encounter. The special event will present Cecil Barrick, local welterweight, and Joe Brantano of O'Brien, Ore., in a 45-minute affair.

Encouraged by his victory a week ago over Jack Romano, ring veteran, at the Armory, Frisbie is looking forward to the next card with some confidence. Little is known of Muir's wrestling style, but it is presumed he is inclined to be rougher in the ring than Romano, making it necessary for Frisbie to rely on a few rough tactics himself, although he prefers to wrestle in a clean manner.

SLOW EMOTIONS HINDER GUARDS, TESTS INDICATE

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa.—(AP) Why a star basketball forward can flash over the court and cage a basket before the guards of his opponents' team can reach him is explained by a psychologist who is also a coach.

Men who play the forward position in basketball have a quicker physical reaction and are more emotional and impulsive than guards, says J. D. Lawther, psychology professor and head basketball coach at Westminster college here.

He learned this by testing athletes with special apparatus. An electric tapping machine showed their physical reaction speed. Forwards could average 240 taps in 30 seconds while guards averaged about 217 taps. Lawther said, "Changes in the electric conductivity of the skin showed why forwards are more emotional than guards. These changes reflect the effect of an outside emotional stimulus upon a person."

Fishing has its attractions, but bird hunting is the weakness of William Schulz, local tonsorial artist and sportsman, he said today in telling of his favorite outdoor pastime.

"I used to be quite a fisherman," he mused, "but I didn't seem to meet with the success I anticipated and came home so many times empty handed that I put my fishing outfit in storage until some distant time when I may give you more exercise and you can see better what you are doing. You hear the whirr of the wings and see the bird in flight, giving you something at which to shoot. You can do a lot of walking and all the time your nerves are more on edge waiting and ready for the kill. You climb over fences, tramp through brush, sometimes feel the cold rain against your cheek and come home with a voracious appetite. I would not miss a bird hunting season for anything, but I'm not so anxious about deer slaying, due to more elements of danger."

"Deacon" Whitsett, another local man, used to have a failing for hunting but during the past few years, his eyes have been going back on him and fishing is his main attraction. He likes to steal away from work to go fishing an hour or two along some peaceful stream, idly casting his hook in the mystic depths of quiet pools for unsuspecting trout. "Deacon" does not believe in fly fishing and has always stuck to angle worms or grasshoppers. Once he caught seven fish with one grasshopper before the bait was too badly damaged to forbid further use.

"I'll always stick to bait," Deacon said today, "and the fly fishermen can use all the flies they want. I know a hole up in a little creek above Rich where I've never been disappointed, but I have to walk five miles to get there. Maybe that's why it's all ways so good. You know not everybody wants to walk that far, but if you want to stay two or three days, there's nothing nicer because you have the whole creek to yourself and you can pick out the best hole and then change over to something different if they're not biting so well in that one place."

He tried hunting as a young man, but did not find it as enjoyable as fishing as a boy. Aaron Schollars, now past 83 years of age, said when in The Mail Tribune yesterday afternoon, "I never did use a fly and never had a pole equipped with a reel. He was always content with a willow or bamboo pole with string tied to one end. He used to dig a lot for angle worms to go fishing in the Ohio river and later on came to Iowa where fishing continued to attract him. Once he stuck his pole in the bank of the Rock river, while he was plowing a field and on the second turn around the field he discovered he had caught a run fish, attracted by a baited young frog. He left the pole in the bank and on the fifth time around found that a bass had swallowed the sun fish. When the evening's work was over, he placed his catch in a mill race and upon returning a few hours later discovered that a big catfish had swallowed the bass."

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE AROUSES INTEREST IN BUTTE FALLS SECTION

BUTTE FALLS, Ore., Jan. 22.—(Spl.)—Butte Falls high school basketball teams and the Butte Falls town team are scheduled to play the Sams Valley teams Friday night. These games are attracting attention because of the indications of close scores. Interest centers around the high school boys' teams.

Butte Falls high school and Sams Valley high school both defeated Eagle Point, 15 to 8. The girls' game will also prove interesting, as Butte Falls girls are showing improvement. The town team won from the Medford South Methodists, 41 to 37, Saturday night, and the high school boys won from Eagle Point Friday night, 15 to 8.

Butte Falls town team vs. Poole and Fredericksburg, forwards: Moore, center; Nee and Holmes, guards; with Abbott substituting at forward and Hibbard at guard. Butte Falls high boys are: Washam and Walton, forwards; Turate, center; Clark and Roberts, guards.

Butte Falls girls' team vs. Volma and Zella vs. forward; Cummings, center; Walton, running center; Moore and Roberts, guards. Tuesday night the South Methodist and Butte Falls high teams played a game, with the score ending 24 to 24. Butte Falls town team will play the Standard Oil team of Medford Thursday night.

SHASTA QUINT NO SET-UP FOR TIGER HOOPMEN

Medford Will Find Invaders Hard to Take at Armory Saturday—Frosh Game Is Cancelled.

It now appears that the Mt. Shasta union high school basketball squad, which plays the Medford high school team at the armory Saturday evening, is no mean foe and far from a set-up. Instead, it is heralded as a rip-snorting quint. It will be their first appearance in southern Oregon. It was Wood, considered a weak squad, that the Ashland high defeated, 41 to 34, last week—not Mt. Shasta, as erroneously stated in the local press.

The Californians are coached by Lyman S. Marsters, a former University of Oregon boy, and he has been on the job for three years. Mt. Shasta during this period has taken two state championships, limited division, and reached the semi-finals last year, unlimited division.

In Ashland Friday night and a number of local fans will attend the game to see just what the Burscherites will be up against the following evening.

The visitors have not been defeated this season and have handed their foes some terrific lacerations. Either Mt. Shasta is powerful or their competitors helpless.

Owing to a misunderstanding the Oregon Irons team will not appear in this city February 6 and 7 against the locals. They are scheduled to play the Oregon State Rooks on these dates. This leaves the locals with two more open dates and an effort will be made to fill them with a Willamette Valley team.

GOLD HILL PLAYS ROGUE HI FRIDAY

ROGUE RIVER, Ore., Jan. 22.—(Spl.) Gold Hill high school teams will play Rogue River high school a doubleheader basketball game at the Rogue River gym, Friday night, Jan. 23.

Gold Hill boys have a strong team, having lost to the undefeated Talent five by one point. The Rogue River and Gold Hill girls have stronger teams as they have previously defeated Talent.

WILDCAT CARTER DEFEATS DOLAN

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—(AP) Leslie "Wildcat" Carter, Everett negro, is all even again in his comeback attempt, having toppled the highly touted Portland junior welterweight, Mickey Dolan, in a six round main event boxing bout here last night.

Carter returned to the ring two weeks ago after a long layoff and lost a close decision to Tony Porfillo, Seattle.

Joe Calder, Manila featherweight, easily defeated Midge Westwell, U. S. S. Tennessee in the six round semi-final.

BOWLING COLUMN

In a weird bowling exhibition at the Nat alleys last evening, the laundry team chalked up victories over the Mail Tribune Typos in the first two games, the type slingers scratching out a win in the final contest by three pins.

Watson of the laundry quint dusted off 515 pins for high match total for the evening, dividing game honors with Neel Newland when both rolled 150 in the last frame.

Bull Riding Is Healthful Avers Texas Cowboy Who Rode Animal to New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Here's the tale of a Texas cowboy who took the bull by the horns and held on all the way from Brownsville to Brooklyn bridge—just for the ride.

He's Ralph Sanders, of San Benito, Tex., and the bull's name is Jerry. They moved down Broadway the other day with 254 days of travel behind him and 2700 miles of sage brush, sand and snow under their feet.

They had a 32-inch pair of steer's horns for Mayor Walker and a letter signed by Chief of Police J. T. Armstrong, saying they left Brownsville on May 12, 1929.

Let Sanders tell it: "I just wanted to ride a bull. It's something that ain't been done before on such a large scale and I wanted to see if I could do it. I was all run down—my health was pretty poor—so I bought that old bull and started out. I gained 12 pounds and now

I'm as strong as the bull. When I left Jerry weighed 910 pounds and now he weighs exactly a thousand.

"It took 95 days to train that bull so as to make him a good riding animal. I tried to get fellows to ride along by me in an automobile, but they wouldn't stick. I had five different guys and they all quit. The pace was too slow for 'em, and they couldn't stand the pressure."

"Jerry walked all the way. He wore out seven pairs of steel shoes. We crossed the Allegheny and the Ozark mountains. It was pretty slow going up in that snow. Bull riding is sure healthful, though. I feel better than I've felt for five years."

NEW MAT CHAMP PINS FRENCHMAN WITH BODY HOOK

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Taking the first and only fall of the match, Ed Dan George successfully defended his newly acquired claim to the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world last night, when he vanquished Henri de Glane, French mat giant.

After 21 minutes and 7 seconds of fast and furious wrestling the former University of Michigan athletic star, who recently defeated Gus Sonnenberg for the title claim, pinned the Frenchman's shoulders to the mat with a body hook and half-nelson.

During the brief, but hectic struggle de Glane suffered a fractured shoulder and was unable to continue, losing the match by default.

In the semi-final Joe Malcewicz and Fred Meyers wrestling one hour to a draw. Steve Strelch defeated Chief Mohawk in a one-fall, opening match.

PORTLAND TEAM GETS CASTOFF MOUNDSMAN

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—(AP) President Bill Klepper of the Seattle Indians announced here today he had traded pitcher Andy House to Portland for Joe Casacarla, also a hurler, whom he sent on to Baltimore Orioles for "Stuffy" Stewart, a second baseman.

Klepper said he was informed Stewart was one of the four best basemen in the International league. Boss Klepper said he had grown tired of waiting for House to "arrive."

Sport Briefs

ST. PAUL.—Bobby Jones and Jimmy Johnston are all squares. Jimmy invited Bobby to catch a lot of bass last summer. Bobby induced him to stay longer than he intended, promising plenty of quail. The bag was two birds.

DETROIT.—Because of a costly scratch, Ralph Greenleaf is unable to do his stuff in pocket billiards for a while. When he was trying to open a window in a railroad car his right hand went through the pane. Seven stitches were taken.

BUCK HILL, FALLS, Pa.—A ski jump of 500 feet! Such is the hope of Carl Messelt, skiing professional, and Halvor Garos, glider pilot. They plan to wear wings

COUGAR CENTER IS SCORING STAR OF CONFERENCE RACE

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Amassing a total of 46 points in the past week, Huntley Gordon, Mt. Vernon sharpshooting sophomore center on the Washington State College basketball team, took the lead of the northern division Pacific Coast conference scores with 48 centers. Ken Fagan, Oregon State guard, who led the pack last week, held down second position with 39 points.

John Fuller, University of Washington sophomore ace, dropped to sixth place with 37 points. Claude Holsten, Cougar forward, rang up 45 tallies and moved into third position, with Rod Ballard, Oregon State forward, and Hank Swanson, Husky center, following him with 40 and 38 respectively.

Oregon State still holds the northern division "bad boy." Buck Grayson, who had 12 personal fouls marked against him last week, added a lone personal, but gave way to a team mate, Ed Lewis, who overstepped the rules 15 times.

BOXER SIGNS UP FOR LONG SPARRING BOUT

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 22.—(AP) Eddie "Cowboy" Anderson, Chicago featherweight, will meet Miss Babe Matthews of Omaha in the ring just before he puts on the gloves with Billy Vaughn tonight.

Two Georgia oak trees, one in Athens and one in Oxford, own themselves, having been thus deeded by former owners for "love and affection."

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting
Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause. Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 80 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a right money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Jarmis & Woods invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.
