

DEATH CLOSES TRAGIC CAREER ALMA RUBENS

Pneumonia Takes Former Screen Star Waiting Trial On Narcotics Smuggling Charge.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The valiant fight of Alma Rubens to conquer narcotic addiction and make a comeback in motion pictures today is ended in death.

Alma Rubens.

to remove the darkest cloud ever to shadow the black haired actress.

Two weeks ago Miss Rubens was arrested in San Diego on federal charges of smuggling and possession of narcotics. She was taken ill with a cold, which developed into pneumonia, shortly after being released from jail under $5000 bond to await hearing and trial.

Had Fairbanks Lead. When, nearly 12 years ago, Miss Rubens played the feminine lead in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Half-Orphan," she was described as Hollywood's newest Cinderella. Her starring roles in such pictures as "Humoresque," "The Valley of the Silent Men," "Guided by the Stars," "Siberia," and "Unseeing Eyes," during the next decade established her as one of the nation's foremost.

Then in January, 1929, Miss Rubens was revealed as a narcotic addict. She dropped out of pictures and soon was confined for treatment at the Spadra state hospital. She was paroled within a few months, only again to be cited for addiction and sent to the Patton state asylum, from which she was released as cured in December of the same year.

Tried Comeback.

After her term at Spadra had been served, Miss Rubens began a comeback. She played in her first talking picture, "Show Boat." During a trip to New York, for a rest that she hoped would prepare her for re-entrance to films, Miss Rubens broke her engagement with Ricardo Cortez, film actor, her third husband. They were married in January, 1926. She said he claimed too much credit for her cure, and forwarded divorce papers here for filing. Although the suit never went to trial, the couple remained estranged. Cortez said two hours before Miss Rubens died he had not been informed that she was seriously ill.

PEDESTRIANS SAY DRAINS WET FEET

During the past week notices were given by the city government to the proprietors or lessees of various buildings in the business section, requesting that spouts from those structures be connected with conductors to carry water from roofs underneath sidewalks to the street gutter.

This reform is in conformity with a decision reached some time ago by the city officials in response to complaints of citizens that water from drain spouts splashed on pedestrians during rains. These notices were served by the police department, and all owners of such offending buildings are to comply with this request by February 1st.

City Superintendent Scheffel reports that he finds that the majority of those owners are conforming with the notice and says that the remedial work should be completed in the required time.

PHOENIX HOME IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

PHOENIX, Ore., Jan. 22.—(Special.) Fire here early today damaged the large dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson when sparks from a fireplace ignited the roof, resulting in burning several holes through the shingles. The blaze occurred during a heavy wind and for a time the house appeared to be doomed.

However, with the early arrival of the Phoenix fire department with its chemical truck, the flames were soon under control. Water from the household force pump aided the fire fighting efforts. The loss was not large and was covered by insurance.

CHINESE WOMAN HANGS SELF IN CHERRY TREE

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Under a cherry tree in her yard police today found the body of Mrs. K. L. Sue, Chinese. They said she hanged herself. In the house, surrounded by Oriental prints and paper-shayanshenims, was a note indicating the woman was dependent over ill health. She was about 40 years old.

Burelson's Expand to Meet Growing Business

Glimpse of Burelson's women's ready-to-wear store at Eighth street and South Central avenue in this city. A successful expansion sale is now under way at Burelson's which will be followed by the addition of approximately 700 square feet of floor space. The shop shown at the left of this photograph will be annexed by this store to meet Burelson's steadily increasing business. Bartlett's Fur Shop will occupy the shop at the extreme left.

agency board at each legislative session will come to a head at the present session, some members of the house expect, because of the personnel of a sub-committee of the ways and means committee, appointed last night to investigate the board.

Attacks on the emergency board were heard at the same time that the public hearing on the Rogue river closing bill was held before a crowded senate chamber and the joint game and fish committee. The two events so far feature the second week of the legislative assembly, though with the expected introduction of power bills plenty is expected before the week-end adjournment. The sessions of both houses today are expected to be short, with several non-controversial measures on the calendar for final passage.

Woodward Chairman

Senator William F. Woodward of Multnomah county and W. H. Strayer of Baker county, the two ways and means committee members who were the most severe in their attacks on the emergency board, were both named on the subcommittee, the former as chairman. With them will serve Representative Homer D. Anzell of Multnomah county, who is chairman of the house wing of the ways and means committee.

The two senators made their attack on the board the previous night when it was discovered that during the last two years the emergency board has allowed deficiency appropriations of more than $500,000 in addition to appropriations made by the legislature of 1929.

Ask Rogue Survey

A series of joint memorials asking congress to appropriate funds and authorize surveys of the Rogue and Umpqua rivers in Oregon were introduced. The Rogue survey is asked to determine feasibility for power sites and construction while the Umpqua river survey is in view of additional harbor improvements.

publican national committee and an administration adviser.

The former, one of the staunch supporters of national prohibition himself would not say Mr. Hoover favored any other revision or had any other idea for modification in mind.

Did Not Close Door

"I just simply say," he explained "that Mr. Hoover did not close the door to any revision when he rejected this substitute amendment because it would throw prohibition forever into politics."

The law enforcement commission said in its conclusions:

"All the commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

"Section 1. The congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of into or out of the United States and all territories subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes."

ments against the bill cited government reports for 1929, which stated that salmon was not depleted, and added further that commercial fishermen could not catch steelheads, and closing the stream would mean throwing more than upon the unemployed fish and destroying county industry.

Declains Monopoly.

He expressed charges of holding a monopoly by statements showing he was not the only company operating canneries on the Rogue. Reasons he gave for what shortage there was in the fish in the upper Rogue in 1929 were pollution of streams, warm water of irrigation ditches, and that governmental agencies took out of the Rogue for shipments, more than 20,000,000 eggs.

W. E. Beak, president of the Gold Beach chamber of commerce, presented a petition signed by 22 of the 33 business firms, not commercial fishing businesses, opposing the closing. Ben T. Osborne, executive secretary of the state federation of labor, stated labor was opposed to the closing of any streams. Arthur of Gold Beach, added to Beak's statements that residents did not favor closing the stream.

Sheriff J. A. Turner of Curry county attested to Roderick Macleay paying some $15,000 taxes in Curry county, and that there have been no arrests the past year of commercial fishermen for violating laws.

Quotes Scripture.

George B. Chenoxyth, who quoted the scriptures and assailed the proponents of the measure as demanding the legislature to do what the people of Oregon refused to do when they defeated the measure at the general election by 5900 votes, received the only demonstration of the evening, which he declared "you can not legislate fish up the river." He stated Curry and Coos counties voted against the measure by better than a three to one vote.

L. A. Lilleqvist, Marshfield attorney who aided in drafting the new game code, closed the argument for the opponents by urging legislation of construction, rather than destruction. He urged that the legislature employ experts to study the situation to enable the state to pass laws regulating fishing in order that there would be enough fish for both sportmen and commercial interests. Of 250,000 tourists in the state of Oregon last year, it was pointed out angling licenses were issued to only 6000.

Vining Is Heard.

Proponents argued that the people of the state closed the stream for two years in 1911, and that the fight has been continued since that time. In their rebuttal, it was pointed out that the stream was of far greater value to all the people of the state as a tourist attraction than a commercial stream. The idea for the protection of the stream was colorfully presented by Vining in the final address of the hearing.

AUTO AND TRUCK HIT ON HIGHWAY

An auto wreck, which occurred yesterday at the foot of Sexton mountain was reported this morning by C. T. Parker of this city, whose auto figured in the collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker and young son, Horace, and Mrs. Bess Dewey were en route to Marshfield, when turning a corner of the highway just below Sexton mountain they met an auto truck, which they said was traveling on the wrong side of the highway. Mr. Parker states he turned his car to the other side of the highway, endeavoring to avoid a collision, but the machines met with a crash. The Dodge Mr. Parker was driving was badly damaged and so was the truck. Mrs. Dewey was knocked unconscious, but suffered no permanent injuries.

TALLULAH'S PARENTS IN NARROW ESCAPE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Representative and Mrs. Bankhead of Alabama, early today were carried to safety down a ladder from their blazing home on Nineteenth street.

Other than shock of exposure in the freezing weather, they were unharmed.

Their daughter, Miss Tallulah Bankhead, who recently returned to this country after attaining stardom on the stage in England, was in New York visiting friends.

Springfield—Local mill of the Booth-Kelly Lumber company resumed four-day per week operations.

Asks: What Is ACNE? Big Ugly PIMPLES

Yes! That's the simple answer, but Acne is more than just a big pimple — better to call it a big stubborn pimple.
