

GIRL STUDENTS OF HIGH SCHOOL ARE AMBITIOUS

Survey Shows 75 Working to Defray Expense — Many Tasks Undertaken — One Has Three Jobs.

College men who work their way through universities and colleges of the nation by doing odd jobs about town and campus have nothing on girls of Medford high school for ambition.

In a survey completed today by Miss Maurine Carroll, dean of girls, figures show that approximately 75 girls of the local school are working whole or part time on jobs about the city. They range all the way from ushering at theatres and waiting tables in restaurants to taking care of children while the parents are away, or playing a piano for dancing classes. The money earned by some of the girls is enough to pay their way through high school, while others make enough by their work to keep themselves in spending money and foot part of the bills for necessities.

One Has Three Jobs
One of the outstanding girls at the high school also holds three jobs down town—collecting, ushering, and clerking in a store.

Thirty-five girls are working for room and board plus wages, ranging from $1 a week to $15 a month, the survey shows. These girls are entirely self supporting. Ten girls usher at the different theatres in Medford. After school hours and in the evening 25 girls earn money by taking care of children for Medford people.

Clerking in stores and serving at lunch counters pays from 25 to 40 cents an hour wages to girls. Three find employment on the local newspapers and eight play the piano for physical education classes at the high school or dancing classes downtown.

12 in Cafeteria
Twelve girls are employed by the school cafeteria and are paid for their work and another dozen earn pin money serving at parties and luncheons about the city. Training received in their clothing classes is put to use by several girls who work in alteration departments of the various stores and some making garments in their own homes.

Office work and typing jobs are available for a number who want to make practical use of their commercial training.
Miss Carroll acts as an "employment bureau" for the girls who want part time work and the townspeople who wish help. She keeps a file of applications made by the girls and places them in homes about the city. At the beginning of each school year meetings of girls are held by classes and employment questionnaires are filled out to give data on the girl what she wishes to do in the way of work. Recommendations and a record of her work are also filed for future reference.

VOLUNTEERS HALT LOCAL ACTIVITIES WHEN FUNDS FAIL

Although local headquarters of the Volunteers of America were closed today because of the lack of funds to carry on relief work, an effort is being made to continue the non-sectarian mission and Sunday school under local auspices. It was announced this morning. A meeting will be held tonight in the hall over the Toggery to discuss ways and means of carrying on the work. Capt. F. W. James will preside and all interested persons are urged to be present.

Rev. H. W. Savage of Berkeley, Cal., has volunteered to give a sermon this evening. The name of "Good Hope" has been suggested for the mission.

The withdrawal of the Volunteer post from relief work has been necessitated by lack of funds. Capt. Ida N. Speiss, in this city from Portland to complete details for closing activities opened here in June, stated yesterday.

The Volunteers of America were not included in the Community chest and activities here have been financed by the Portland fund and individuals in southern Oregon who have contributed to the cause. Capt. Jessie F. Stark, through Captain Speiss, voiced here appreciation yesterday of the splendid cooperation Medford people have given the organization and regrets that the closing of the post has become necessary. She expressed appreciation of the work volunteered by Captain and Mrs. James, who have carried on the Medford post without compensation.

Although the Community chest board feels that the work of the Volunteers of America in this city is a duplication of work which could be carried on by other organizations, the Volunteers, she stated, still feel that there is need for their relief work in Medford, and will return to this city whenever the need is felt by others.

There will be no representative of the Volunteers of America in the field after today and local citizens are warned against anyone who may solicit funds in the name of the organization. Any meal tickets sold to local people, that have not been used, should be mailed to the Volunteers of America, Portland, where money will be refunded.

The clothing which the local post has on hand will be turned over to the Red Cross for distribution. The Sunday school and mission will be continued, according to present plans. But the soup kitchen and all other activities the Volunteers have carried on here will be closed. The Sunday school has reached 41 enrollment of 44 children and the mission an attendance of 50.

Since opening in Medford in June the Volunteers of America, according to the report prepared yesterday, have furnished meals to 415 people, beds to 30, garments to 200 and shoes to 90. Thirty-one families have been cared for, and everything given them free of charge; 11 baskets were distributed on Thanksgiving day and 24 on Christmas.

Captain Speiss was enthusiastic yesterday in her praise of the friendliness of the Medford people and stated that the Volunteers of America would not permanently abandon the plan to carry on a post in this city.
