Wreckage Shows Varney Pilot Flew Head-On Into Mountain—Mail Is Recovered—Plane Burned.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 30.—(AP) Carrying the body of Walter E. Case, Varney Air lines pilot, who was killed in a plane crash on Bluff mountain, near Washougal, Wash., eight days ago, a party of forest rangers and company officials reached Vancouver, Wash., today. They had marched with a pack train all night long after reaching the wreck late yesterday. A postal inspector recovered the 250 pounds of mail carried by the plane.

Leon Cuddeback, vice-president of the Varney company, said it was apparent Case had flown the plane head-on into the mountain in the dense fog which obscured the course. He was found in the cockpit.

Killed Instantly.

Injuries indicated he had been killed instantly when his head hit the instrument board.

Company officials found the plane badly wrecked. They burned it.

Case disappeared January 22, while flying the Portland-Pasco mail. The plane's clock showed the crash occurred at 7:07 a. m., disproving the many reports the plane had been seen and heard in eastern Washington. Case left Portland at 6:30 a. m. and upon reaching Camas, he was turning back due to heavy fogs. This was 6:54 a. m. at 7:04 a. m. he said he was in the vicinity of Portland and was flying over a fog bank.

A strong wind from the south was driving him northward and he flew into the mountain three minutes later in the belief he was flying over the valley country near Portland.

PORTLAND LIONS FEEDING HUNGRY

A bowl of soup, a piece of meat, bread and coffee and no questions asked to almost 15,000 unemployed and hungry men in the record revealed yesterday by O. F. Tate, executive secretary of the Portland Lions club, which operates a soup kitchen at East Thirty-ninth street and Hawthorne avenue. The overhead expense to the club amounts to $150 a month, but members are paying gladly in their effort to relieve the cardinal wants of those who are out of work and are hungry.

Since the kitchen opened December 5, the club has fed an average of 300 men a day, Mr. Tate revealed.—The Oregonian.

Western Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. Oksa Beesley, 1321 West 1st Street, Oklahoma City, Okla., who says: "Nothing seemed to please Christine. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"Mother used California Fig Syrup so I got Christine some. It relieved her trouble promptly, made her bright and happy again. We have used it for three years."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

HIGHWAY SIGNALS IN FEDERAL PLAN WILL AID FLIERS

News comes from Washington, D. C., that the Oregon highway commission will be asked to paint signals upon the pavement of the principal highways for the guidance of aviators. Cooperation of all highway commissioners throughout the country will be asked by the secretary of commerce for aeronautics.

Highways afford one of the best landmarks for those who fly and when properly marked the roads facilitate their identification from the air. Without being marked, however, a pilot may not be certain whether he is following the road that he thinks he is. The government maps issued by aviators contain the roads of federal and state highways and give their official number. Viewed from the air, highways that stand out conspicuously are made an excellent guide.

Markings asked for the Oregon roads call for the official number preceded by the letters "US" in the case of federal highways, or by the state abbreviation for state highways. Wherever practical the lettering should be done directly upon the pavement, with characters from 10 to 30 feet long.

Baby Planet Is Nearest Earth Today

By Robert H. Baker, Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois.

URBANA, Ill.—(AP)—The outstanding astronomical event of January is the close approach to the earth of the tiny planet Eros. Today, when nearest, it will be only 16 million miles away—much nearer than any other planet ever comes.

Eros is one of hundreds of small planets, known as asteroids, which revolve around the sun, for the most part between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter.

The asteroids are cold, dark bodies like the earth, shining by reflected sunlight. The largest one, Ceres, is less than 500 miles in diameter, while the majority have diameter less than 50 miles. With the exception of Vesta they are invisible without a telescope.

During January Eros will move rapidly south through the constellation Leo. Its course lies a little to the east of the bright Sickle of Leo in the eastern sky rather late on the evening.

It will pass south of Leo into the small constellation Sextans near the celestial equator.

The interest of astronomers in the visit of Eros is not because it allows them to observe its surface; for this tiny planet is probably less than 20 miles in diameter, and even the largest telescope will show it only as a star.

The chief importance of the close approach on this occasion is that it is possible to measure the distance of Eros with greater precision than that of any other planet. On this basis it then may be possible to calculate the sun's distance more accurately than ever before.

The sun's distance is the astronomer's yardstick in terms of which all celestial distances are expressed. It fixes the scale of the physical universe for the mathematician.

The present value of the sun's distance is $2,870,000 miles. It may easily be in error by as much as 20,000 miles, that is to say, two-hundredths of one per cent.

Since the discovery of Eros, in 1898, this is the first really good opportunity to observe it at close range.

The January eastern sky, late in the evening, is pictured here, showing the path of the asteroid Eros through the constellation Leo.

Norma Is Coming Garbo Makes Hit

Norma Talmadge in 'Da Barry, Woman of Passion'

Building a royal palace is just in the ordinary day's work for William Cameron Menzies, supervising art director at the United Artists studios.

He's the most versatile screen architect in Hollywood. One day it's a log cabin for D. W. Griffith's production, "Abraham Lincoln." Then next it's a majestic kingdom for Norma Talmadge's new picture, "Da Barry, Woman of Passion," a Sam Taylor production based on the spectacular career of the famous ston, which comes to the Holly theater Sunday.

For the Talmadge picture Menzies created a film duplicate of a huge palace. The size of the various sets required space on several huge stages.

The cast of Mrs. Talmadge's picture includes Conrad Nagel, William Farnum, Ulrich Haupt, Hobart Bosworth, Edgar Norton and Allison Skipwith.

Linda Watkins

Her striking resemblance to the late Jeanne Eagels gave Linda Watkins her chance on the stage, and today she is Broadway's youngest leading woman.

Twenty years ago she was born in Boston, and eventually came to Barnard college. After attending the Theater Guild school, she was given the leading role in "The Devil in the Cheese." Then came several other leads.

Now she plays the young murderer in the Guild's "Midnight." She spends all her money taking trips to Europe.

BOGOTA WILL REVIVE BULLFIGHTING SHORTLY

BOGOTA, Colombia.—(AP)—The promise that bullfighting on the grand Spanish scale will be revived in Bogota shortly has created much public enthusiasm.

Under new regulations horsemen will be used to weaken the bull by going to a point where the matador will have a chance for his life.

CHILE OPENS NEW COMMERCE POLICY IN FRENCH TREATY

SANTIAGO, Chile.—(AP)—Negotiation of a reciprocal commercial treaty with France, soon to be consummated, is the first major step in the foreign trade policy of the government of President Carlos Ibanez.

Consideration is being given to the possibility of similar contracts with other European countries.

An attempt to get such a pact with the United States came to an end in half about a year and a half ago.

The French treaty is a short-term affair and does not contain the "most favored nation" clause. Chile has virtually given up that clause as a matter of policy, deeming short-term treaties better because trade conditions change so quickly.

Under the new pact, each country agrees to reduce import duties on certain products of the other. For France this means an outlet here for some of her specialized manufactured goods; for Chile it means a favored market for nitrates and other natural products.

PORTLAND VETS HOSPITAL NEEDS OFFICE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Representative Korell of Oregon today asked the house veterans' affairs hospital sub-committee to expedite his measure for a $125,000 administrative building for the veterans' hospital in Portland.

The construction of an administrative building, he said, would permit installation of 80 additional beds on the first floor, and 28 beds on the second floor.
