

VESTED CHOIR IS CHURCH FEATURE

The vested choir of the Presbyterian Sunday school has proven a trained success. The girls are being trained in voice culture by Mrs. J. R. Thompson and great improvement has been shown in their singing.

Special effort is directed toward pronunciation and poise. The choir numbers 25, and it is hoped to increase it gradually to about 40. All girls and boys over 10 years of age who are regular attendants at Sunday school are eligible. A special invitation is extended to this age group to join the choir.

SUPERSTITION TO BE SERMON TOPIC

In view of the reports of a widespread revival of superstition in this country, the sermon in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning will deal with the question, "Do people want Christianity, or would they rather be superstitious?"

Monday at 4 p. m. marks the opening of the non-denominational Bible study school, where a course will be presented which will prepare students to pass state examinations in that subject. High school credits will be given if the questions are answered satisfactorily.

The program for young people has grown to real proportions during the last few months. More than 80, on an average, gather in their age groups for discussion and conference concerning problems in which they are interested.

SPECIAL INVITATION BY SUNDAY SCHOOL

A special invitation is extended to all young folks of senior or high school age to join the senior class of the Presbyterian Sunday school. The Bible study and age group problems are a feature of the teaching under Rev. C. B. Porter.

SUCCESS ESSENTIALS

TOPIC OF DR. FUNK

A delightful study in traits of character, and truths that are stranger than fiction, will enter into the discussion of the subject at the English Lutheran church Sunday night. Dr. Funk will give his lecture on "Elements Essential to Success" at 7:15 p. m.

Bishop to Speak

BISHOP TITUS LOWE

Portland arrived in Medford this morning, and will be guest of the First Methodist church tonight and Sunday. The bishop will deliver the address this evening at the sixth annual state dinner in the cathedral hall of the church, and will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Thos. Yarnes, district superintendent, and the Rev. Dr. Alexander Bennett, pastor.

STATES BANQUET AT M. E. TONIGHT

Many Medford people will gather at the Methodist Episcopal church at this evening for the annual States banquet. Rev. Alexander G. Bennett will act as toast master and Bishop Titus Lowe of Portland will deliver the main address.

The following program has been announced for the evening: Invocation, Rev. Dr. Thos. Yarnes; vocal solo, Mrs. Effie Herbert Yeoman, accompanied by Miss Genevieve Brown; violin solo, John R. Knight; toast, "The Home State," by Dr. C. B. Porter; toast to Oregon, by Rev. W. R. Baird; address, Bishop Lowe.

REV. PORTER CONDUCTS WEEKLY STUDY CLASS

Study classes conducted weekly by Rev. C. B. Porter in the Presbyterian church have proven a great benefit to those who attend. The study of the book of Hebrews on Wednesday night is very fine. Mr. Porter being an excellent Greek scholar, makes the study more interesting. The class which follows the prayer meeting at 8:30 has been studying "Pathways that lead to God." Comparative religions is intensely interesting. This class is conducted on Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

CHILD TELLS CORONER OF SHOOTING MOTHER

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—(AP)—I told mamma to look and then it made a big noise and mamma fell down. "Thus Theresa Matters, 5 years old, told a coroner's jury how it was that she shot and killed her mother. Accidental death was the verdict.

CHEESE PLANT IN EAGLE POINT HAS FUTURE PROMISE

In the opinion of C. W. Austin, city dairy inspector, the Eagle Point cheese factory is facing a promising future. He recently made a call at the plant to witness the manufacture of the factory's products.

"The plant is neat and sufficiently complete to turn out a first class article," Mr. Austin said today in recalling the visit. "They are making two kinds of cheese, Monterey and American. We arrived just in time to catch some of the cheese and before going into the press, it was certainly good. We purchased three pounds of it and if you enjoy good things, just try some of it."

"This plant, being the first to commercially manufacture cheese making in the valley," continued Mr. Austin, "is entitled to every consideration and support possible from the dealers and consumers. The plant is receiving good cooperation from producers in trying to supply a high grade milk and that is a big feature."

TOLO

TOLO, Ore., Jan. 31.—(Sp.)—Rev. D. D. Randall and assistant, Mr. Richards of Medford, are holding church services at the schoolhouse this week, concluding Sunday night. All are invited to attend these services, which are very beneficial.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hamor attended at dinner Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Whitestone and son Alton. Frank H. Ray was in the community Tuesday attending to business. The Pankeys are clearing some more ground which they will put into cultivation this spring. They are cutting winter a bit of wood off of it and next winter it will be dry enough for use.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hamor spent Wednesday in Medford, with their two daughters, Mrs. L. Brock and Mrs. Glenn LaHarr. Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Pankey visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor in Central Point, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. M. Rummel attended the funeral of Mr. Millard in Central Point last Thursday. Al Tracy is home again, having been gone several weeks prospecting on Jump-Off Joe. Mr. and Mrs. John Higgenbotham have sold their ranch and are in possession of the Nye apartments in Medford. We are sorry to lose them from the community but hope they will make a success in their new location.

Two Given Initiation in Odd Fellowship. CENTRAL POINT, Jan. 31.—(Sp.)—The local I. O. O. F. lodge initiated two candidates at its meeting this week, putting Martin L. Pellet of Medford and Virgil Eddington of Gold Hill through the work. A large attendance of members was present from the Gold Hill, Ashland, Medford, Jacksonville and Central Point lodges. Refreshments were served following the lodge session.

TWO GIVEN INITIATION IN ODD FELLOWSHIP

Several orchardists from here attended the meeting of fruit men in Medford last week. Mrs. E. O. Wilson and son Donald visited relatives in Ashland Tuesday.

Ernest Russel is helping with the orchard and farm work this week at the Blanche Gregory place. Warm sunny afternoons are drying the surface of the ground here and men and teams are beginning to work the fields of the higher lands. Should the present weather last for any extended time farm and orchard work will soon be in full force here.

Many who believe in the old adage will be on the lookout next Monday morning to see if the groundhog succeeds in seeing his shadow, which in their belief will cause him to hasten back into his winter quarters for another six weeks.

Several from here attended the funeral of the late Edward E. Praley at Medford Monday afternoon. Mr. Praley had lived for many years on his farm in the east end of the district but was not so well known throughout the community as one would suppose from his retiring disposition and the fact that he lived practically alone.

Those of his intimate acquaintances knew him to be actually a man of his word, optimistic and cheerful in spite of the fact that he was a sufferer most of the time from ill health, kind and considerate with dumb animals, true to his friends, uncompromising with his enemies. Table Rock Community club will meet in regular session Friday night.

Masked Longing

Emile Gluck—short, fat and pompous—gaped as though he had seen a vision and did not believe it. "Mademoiselle Masque, gentleman!" Channing presented them. Colonel Sherwood pressed her fingers. Gluck bowed with a heavy courtesy and the stubby bristles of his mustache tickled Alleen's knuckles. "So you are going to slug for me?" He yelled. "And you come from Paris—a mystery—just like my Parisian Masque?" Instantly, Alleen lifted him. A caricature of kindness, he was thoroughly Continental, and Alleen fancied, kindly. He produced a plush-lined case. "The first bottle of lube—and it's for you!" Gluck presented it proudly. "It's perfectly exquisite!" Alleen enthused. "Capital!" Sherwood was pleased. "Now I feel that our program is certain to be successful. By the way, Sascha Leszinski has written a theme song for our hour. He calls it 'Felix Parfums Masque.' I've taken the liberty to ask him to come to dinner with us."

Alleen's appearance in the crystal room of the Ambassador caused a stir among the diners. Jimmy wondered how long it would be before natural curiosity might become annoying. He had a premonition of a situation almost certain to arise. Then Alleen walked into the lobby, trying to seem unobtrusive as the reporters who had trailed Alleen's taxi hurried in. Knowing Jimmy they all pounced upon him. "What's up?" he inquired. They confessed their troubles briefly. Jimmy registered surprise, then a light seemed to dawn upon him suddenly. "Say, maybe I can help you after all," he said. "I remember now I did have something about this Mademoiselle Masque. Call up the United Broadcasting Company. Ask for Colonel Sherwood—but don't say I told you."

The reporters made a dash for the telephone desk and Jimmy slipped upstairs. "Your public relations counsel," he announced with a swagger as he entered Alleen's impressive suite. "I've started the little roll rolling. Nothing to do now but wait for the papers to come out!" Max Klein arrived later, bringing the evening papers. "What name is she going to use?" he asked. "Mademoiselle Masque," said Channing. "Nothing more." "That's an idea," admitted Klein. "But I'll get out sometime." "I doubt it," Channing said. "Sherwood's the only outsider who knows the truth and Sherwood isn't going to tell the sponsor of the program."

"Emile Gluck?" Klein was chuckling. "If that guy don't find out I'm a Chinaman! When he pays for public, he wants his money's worth. By the way, what about that telegram?" Have you two heard any more? "Not a thing," said Jimmy. "Well I'll bet you do. What's her name—Adrenalin?—won't miss a name like that. Not if I know the dame!" "Not if you—what?" Jimmy exclaimed. "You mean you've found out who she is?" "Well, maybe I know what I know," said Klein. "That's again, maybe I don't. You stick around old Papa Klein, and you might find out something."

Klein's prophecy that another telegram might arrive annoyed Jimmy. If one came he resolved to open it and say nothing to Alleen about it. But there was no wire and Klein had gone without elucidating. Whatever he had in the back of his mind, the producer proposed to keep there. Alleen herself was keyed-up like a child. She was stunning in her black velvet gown. As a final precaution, Alleen made sure that the porcelain mask was properly adjusted. The smile on its features challenged the whole world to guess who she might be. More visitors were announced.

Nora Nolan, the maid, opened the door and Alleen stepped over the threshold of a new adventure. been called to the bedside of his father who is seriously ill. Mr. Wharton reports his father as improved. George Lyman is very ill at his home. Mr. Lyman and his son Ernest took a trip to Klamath Falls Wednesday and Mr. Lyman became ill while on the trip. Seth Coy and William Reed have returned to their homes in this city from the Oregon Caves, having completed the tunnel work that Ernest Hoss contracted. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Nelson of Hill, Oregon, January 25, a son. Mrs. Nelson was formerly Miss Mae Childers of this city. Mrs. Mae Decker of Ashland, accompanied by her son, her brother and wife were dinner guests at the Rogue Nook Inn Sunday.

Bellas Walker was unable to be at school Wednesday on account of illness. Mrs. Myerly was a business visitor in Medford Wednesday. Mrs. Glen Spurling was a Grants Pass visitor Tuesday.

Bill Martin had the misfortune to break her arm while roller skating Sunday. Jill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Martin. Mrs. R. L. Cook and Mrs. Tiny Althers were Medford visitors Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Reed spent Sunday in Medford as the guests of friends. Mrs. M. L. Strickel, Mrs. W. G. Davis and daughter, Marlyn, were Ashland visitors Tuesday. The town girls basketball team were defeated by the high school girls Wednesday afternoon. Gold Hill public library days have been changed to one day a week and hereafter will be open each Monday from 12 o'clock to 9 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wharton and family of Medford spent Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pickard.

Hillaboro—Minter bridge over Tuallator, three miles southeast of here, to be replaced by new structure.

Will Alleen's debut be a success? Follow her first appearance on the 11th tomorrow.

Alleen hummed the air at first. Then her voice drifted into the words, and soon the feeling of the song took possession of her. Leszinski looked up at her soulfully. "Mademoiselle, as you sing it, I am proud of my little song. The night the whole country hears you—50 million people will call your voice divine!" Alleen's appearance in the crystal room of the Ambassador caused a stir among the diners. Jimmy wondered how long it would be before natural curiosity might become annoying.
