Ye Smudge Pot (By Arthur Perry)

All danger that the legislature will accomplish anything worth while, has passed.

European diplomats, at the L. of N. sessions are pondering the probabilities of another war.

F. Wortman of Phoenix reports a fender entered his henhouse, and stole 10 chickens, leaving six tough old roosters.

An upstate farmer stooped over and was bit by his mule. Both ends of a mule are dangerous.

One of our leading Fresh Guys, informed one of the Older Girls she was bit off her neck-section.

The pioneer lady reading back of Trail, who burnt a bush of biscuits last November, is no longer mad about it.

F. Bardwell, the fruitman, is rearing a mustache, and your C. is sincerely sorry that he pulled his 44 off his neck-section.

NO ALMOND FAILURES (Mt. Vernon Record) A newly wedded young man came in yesterday to talk.

The song of the robin is blending with the wild wails against taxes. All nature is awakening.

Both Almee Simple McPherson and Clara Bow are behaving themselves as far as the public knows.

Frederick Fry, the musical artist, attacked his backyard with a shovel Sunday and is the No. 1 kitchen gardener of the year.

There is considerable activity among the motorcycleists. A motorcycleist, in off his neck-section, can't pack seven young ladies on the rear seat, as do the juvenile drivers of aged 4s.

FRANK ENOUGH (Burnett (Tex.) Review) The wild geese, ducks and sandhills are appearing in the small bodies of water in Burnett county, and winter is here at last.

"The Rogue river fish issue for years has been prosecuted with religious fervor," says the Pendleton East Oregonian.

"He told the police he gave his wallet containing $700 to Lucy for safe keeping, who resigned the loss of the money in a movie.

More Planes Than Pilots BATON ROUGE, La.—(By Louisiana) has more airplanes than pilots.

Records of the aeronautics branch of the United States Department of Commerce show 181 airplanes in the state, and only 91 pilots.

Do You Remember?

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY (From files of the Mail Tribune.) February 10, 1921. Court Hall, in a Riverside, Cal., hospital following an operation, recovers rapidly.

Building boom predicted for city this spring. Sheriff Terrill refused to kill unlicensed dogs, per instructions of the county court.

State has spent $1,400,000 on Jackson county highways. Want ad in Mail Tribune, seeking home for month-old baby, brings 150 replies.

Bill raising pay of Jackson county officials passes legislature. Launch drive for clinical laboratory in city.

Roseburg fears a lynching, following arrest of murderer. TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY (From files of the Mail Tribune.) February 10, 1911.

Saloons at Grants Pass to open Monday, and will test "home rule law." G. P. W. Pasch, merchants claim Josephine county residents come to Medford for liquid refreshments and other commodities.

Legislature defies "will of people" by passing the Hume Rogue river fish bill. Local fishermen angered by action.

Ross Kline has received his five-passenger, four-door Reo "35," which was said to be the wonder of the Portland auto show.

Papers filed for railroad down Rogue river to the sea. "Knockout" Brown gives Champion Ad Wolgast severe trouncing in Philadelphia ring.

Harry Ling, foreman of the fire department, has a severe case of grippe which he caught at the firemen's banquet.

LEARNING TO SAVE By Alice Judson Peale. Children are generally taught to save either through being made to drop their money into a toy bank, which they are under penalty not to open, or through having it deposited for them in a savings bank.

The difficulty with this plan is that it entirely ignores what the child thinks and feels about it. Five dollars received as a birthday present from some generous uncle, then immediately whisked out of sight and into a savings account, is apt to seem just five dollars lost so far as the child is concerned.

If parents insist upon carrying a savings account in the child's name, they should try to make the whole business seem as real as possible to him.

They should take him along to the bank and let him push the money across to the teller with his own hands, and watch the teller write the figure to his credit in his book.

He should know, too, that no one but himself will ever touch his money, except in some very great emergency when his parents may use it for him.

The best way for a child to learn to save, however, is through receiving a regular allowance, of which it is understood that he must put away a certain part. But by far the larger portion should be his to spend, partly for necessities and partly for pleasure.

Unless there be this margin for pleasure spending, we need not be surprised if the child resents the whole business of saving, and if he likewise gets into difficulties through spending, not only his own money, but that of others, which he appropriates for himself because he feels that he has been unfairly dealt with.

Vatican ceremony. Who, a few years ago, would have thought that a pope from the Vatican, would be able to talk to the whole world?

If you ever become well acquainted with a lady named Guillermina Guerrero, or one like her, don't grudge with her affections. Maximino Aceval did that, in Mexico City. Guillermina dressed herself as a boy, found faithless Maximino in another cabaret, dancing with another girl, followed and shot her.

Opera. Like Cavalleria, or Pagliacci, represents no exaggeration. The Latin temperament feels everything, especially neglect, strongly. Those that know say the affections are as violent as the life. It must be an exciting life.

People in New York, greatest state in population, are too busy to add to population as they did once. The birth rate has fallen 30% in sixteen years. Birth control advocates say the state is getting "fewer and brighter babies," but that is not convincing.

To offset the decreased baby crop, the general death rate is at its lowest for all time. Of 1,000 population, nearly 11.7 die in a year. Deaths from tuberculosis are diminishing steadily, thanks to science. On the other hand, cancer and diabetes rather more and more victims.

The Moderation League, Inc., makes a depressing report on prohibition. Drunkenness has increased, "remarkably" in states dry before 1920. Drinking among boys, girls and young people generally has increased steadily, the largest increase taking place among boys from fifteen to twenty-five years of age.

In Washington, arrests for drunkenness are eight times as numerous as before prohibition started. Prohibition was "a noble experiment," but it is not yet working smoothly.
