

Medford Showing Against Indian Quint of Interest Upstate

CHEMAWA TILT HOLDS KEY TO TIGER'S ABILITY

Locals Viewed As Sure Bet for State Tourney—Seating Capacity at Salem May Be Increased.

The upstate is watching with more than usual interest the basketball games the coming week end between the Chemawa Indians and Medford high school. It will give them a line on the strength of the Medford team and just how much of a factor it will be if they win the southern Oregon championship and go to the state tournament. There still remains the Ashland games. The Lithians have shown nothing to date that makes them cinches for the district title. They had the time of their lives defeating Klamath Falls.

The Indians will arrive Friday afternoon by auto stage and will bring plenty of reserves. They also have two teams of about the same ability, and the Friday and Saturday games out to bring out two full houses to see Burgher's proteges in action.

Salem Evening. Salem has started fretting about losing the state tournament and steps are underway to increase the seating capacity of the Willamette University gym by the addition of balconies. This will be welcome news to local fans, who in the past have been able to see important games only by using a shoe-horn to get in.

The Salem Statesman has the following to say on the subject: "Portland is gunning strong for the tournament and is even offering to build a new gymnasium in order to handle larger crowds. The last game in Portland which Jefferson high played drew 2400 paid admissions. This is more than the present capacity of the Willamette gymnasium. Jefferson is now almost sure of coming to the tournament. If Jefferson does come, a large following from Portland will come down to see the Portland team play.

A good crowd from Portland can be expected as two Portland teams will compete in the tournament. Many Portland fans have stated that in the past it has been an uncertainty going to Salem to see the home teams play. Entrance to the gymnasium was never sure as capacity crowds were in evidence at all the big games. Driving 50 miles and then not getting to see a game is a bit perturbing to the Portland fans.

Plans are being drawn for two additional balconies to be placed at each end of the gymnasium, and a report as to the cost of these will be made soon. With the return of Dr. Doney, president of Willamette university, a meeting of the executive committee will be held Wednesday at which time definite action will be taken concerning the balconies. Both Keene and Cary are of the opinion that if the two balconies are not installed for this tournament, that Salem will bid good-bye to future tournaments and that Portland will in

Jack Quinn, Oldest Player In Majors, Joins Robinson

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Two days ago "Old Jack" Pincus Quinn, who dates his professional baseball pitching back to 1903, asserted he was not old—even in a game where much depends on such things as stamina. And today he had a berth on the hurling staff of the Brooklyn Robins to prove there were others who believe as he does. The oldest active player in the major leagues was nonchalant as he talked of the contract offered him yesterday by the Robins. He expected some club to grab him up after being released during the winter by Connie Mack. And he came here to get in condition for the training camp grind, just as he has for several years. "Yeah, I'll give 'em a fling for another year," the old master said, "and I believe I've got enough stuff to show 'em that I'm not through."

PROSPECT CAGE SQUAD TO PLAY SAINTS FRIDAY

Clash Will Be Staged at Medford High Gym—Talent Invades City Monday Evening.

Prospect high school basketball team will play St. Mary's squad at the Medford high school gymnasium Friday, February 13. A large crowd of rooters headed by Jim Groves will be on hand to help boost their team.

One of the best games of the season is expected as St. Mary's have been practicing hard and are trying out new formations to work against the Prospectors. George Smith and Dick Lewis are going strong at forward for St. Mary's, due to their clever team work with the help of Lageson and Bob Lewis, Prospect will have a combination to work against that will be hard to beat. Keith Estes and Wilson are in their first year at the St. Mary's institution and are showing remarkable improvement at guard for first year men and in the next year or two should be real ball players.

Prospect girls will do battle with the St. Mary's maids in the preliminary game which will start promptly at 7:30 p. m. Mr. McDonald of Ashland has been secured to referee both games. Monday evening at 7:30 will be another fast game for the St. Mary's boys, when Talent high will be here in full force. Talent is another runner up in the conference, tied in first place with Phoenix St. Mary's, Sams Valley and Prospect. The game Monday will also be played at the Medford high school gymnasium, as the St. Mary's gym is far too small and not a regulation floor.

PETE BOSTWICK HELD GREATEST AMATEUR RIDER

Cousin of Tommy Hitchcock Lives for Thrills Steeplechase—Will Ride in Classic.

By Orlo Robertson. NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—G. H. (Pet) Bostwick, 169 pounds of riding energy, is a colorful personality the United States has contributed to the English turf.

This 21-year-old cousin of the famous Tommy Hitchcock has millions that mean only money to buy more and faster horses. He quit college because he saw "no use sitting in school when one can sit on a horse and get some-where." His greatest punishment is to be denied the privilege of riding a horse of a friend in a race. He shuns publicity until he has "done something." Scores Five Victories.

The steeplechase season still is young in old England, but already this title of a jockey, as steeplechase riders go, has scored four times aboard jumpers from his own stable and once astride Victor Emanuel's Nucle 2nd, an outstanding American favorite to win the grand national at Aintree March 27.

Peter may be surprising staid turdism of England, but not so here in America. His friends are even predicting that when the leader of the grand national thunders past the judge's stand, young Bostwick will be aboard flashing his broad grin, because he had "done something." He is slated to ride Bangle in the steeplechase classic.

Greatest Since Stone. Expert horsemen say Pete is the greatest amateur jockey the United States has known since the days of Harry Stone. Of Pet, it has been said, "Heaven on earth is a stable of horses." Only five feet, two inches tall and usually weighing about 195 pounds, he has remarkable arms and shoulders—prime requisites of a real jockey. He has what horsemen call a perfect seat astride a thoroughbred and ideal hands.

Although young in years, Pete is a veteran of the saddle. He has been riding since he was seven years old, appearing in numerous horse shows almost before he could get his two legs across his mount.

BAR BOAT FISHING LOWER M'KENZIE

SALEM, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The measure closing the McKenzie river to boat fishing from its source to a point 19 miles above the Leaburg power dam, was passed by the house Tuesday. Another bill, amending the so-called "Gasoline Cowboy" bill, to permit bona fide producers to sell direct through the use of special tags, was also approved. The original bill was designed to curtail slaughter of stolen livestock while the new one includes poultry provisions.

With Rod and Gun

The deer population in Oregon during the past ten years has shown a steady increase, according to a recent report by Art M. Fish, chief of law enforcement for the state game commission. Greater effort in combating predatory animals, the buck law protecting the female of the species, reduced seasons, bag limits, rigid enforcement and the general trend toward law observance are given the major credit by Mr. Fish for the increase. He conservatively estimates that at least 19,000 deer were killed during the open season of 1930—believed to be the most successful deer season ever enjoyed by Oregon hunters. The 1929 state legislature shortened the season by five days and made it unlawful to kill deer with less than forked horns. The bag limit was reduced to two black-tail deer or one mule deer and one black-tail deer. Newly constructed and improved highways, together with modern rapid transportation, have made it possible to reach many hunting grounds that had been inaccessible in previous seasons.

Reflecting credit on activities of game wardens on duty in Jackson county, this county from the date of October 1, 1928, to September 30, 1929, returned to the state the sum of $241 for fines as a result of game violation cases. There were 79 arrests with 74 convictions. Imprisonment was effected in two cases and seven cases were continued for sentence. Five cases were dismissed. Deputy Game Warden Roy Parr of Ashland was principally responsible for the record. Since those figures were compiled, Deputy Warden Ed Walker, formerly of Roseburg, has made his headquarters in Medford. Deputy Parr resides in Ashland. During the same period there were seven arrests in Josephine county with fines totaling $359. Baker county in eastern Oregon held the low record with two arrests and total fines of $59.

From October 1, 1929 to September 30, 1930, three mountain lions were killed in the county with bounties amounting to $75 or $25 for each animal. During the same period, 1438 Chinese pheasants were released in Jackson county in addition to 48 Golden pheasants, 41 Hungarian partridges, 30 wild turkeys and 12 guineas. The turkeys were released in the Prospect and Evans creek sections and are reported to be showing good progress. The partridges were liberated near Ashland in a section particularly adapted to their type of bird. The largest number of pheasants were released in Benton county, 2868, and the smallest number in Lincoln county, three birds. In several sections no birds were released. The total for the state in that period reached 24,944 pheasants.

Research work of the Oregon

Experiment station at Corvallis revealed that Chinese pheasants are active in eating insects. The stomachs of 139 birds were examined during the course of one year. Such injurious forms of insects as grasshoppers, alfalfa caterpillars, weevils, leaf beetles, wireworms, cucumber beetles, plant bugs, leaf-hoppers, false wireworms, and cut-worms were found after a careful examination of the stomachs. Over 750 grasshoppers were found. One bird contained 44 grasshoppers, one field cricket, 52 grasshopper mandibles and one cutworm. The red-legged grasshopper is regarded as one of the most destructive in Oregon and they formed the pheasant's principal diet. Over 117,000 weed seeds were also found in the stomachs and an average of 800 seeds for each bird.
