

TALENT, SAINTS CLASH TONIGHT ON HIGH FLOOR

Victory for Irish Would Break Three-Way Tie With Phoenix and Sams Valley for Lead.

St. Mary's and Talent high school basketball teams play their final game tonight at the Medford high school gymnasium. It promises to be a fast and hard fought contest. Talent has a slight advantage, having defeated the St. Mary's quintet on the Talent high floor January 27, the only team which has been able to beat the St. Mary's squad so far this season in a conference game.

St. Mary's team is out for revenge and has been practicing hard in anticipation of the clash tonight.

For team work and fast breaking offense, St. Mary's will have an advantage in the combination of Smith, Dick Lewis and Roy Lewis, among the best secondary high school players seen in the southern Oregon conference.

A large crowd of rooters will accompany the Talent aggregation to Medford to witness the contest and St. Mary's will also be well supplied with a big rooting section.

St. Mary's, Phoenix and Sams Valley are now tied for the lead in the southern Oregon secondary basketball conference, each team having won six games and lost one.

The Talent maidens and St. Mary's academy girls' team will have their fling in the preliminary, which will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m. These teams had a hard struggle in their last game, Talent winning by a small margin.

WRESTLING COACH IN SPECIAL EVENT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Harry Elliott former University of Oregon wrestling coach, is expected to demonstrate his ability to advantage when he meets John Brees, eastern Oregon wrestler, at the Army next Wednesday night in the special event preceding the final match between Henry Jones, Provo, Utah, and Ray Lyness, Seattle. Elliott is well known in Medford and southern Oregon from past performances, both as a wrestler and referee.

He has been developing some new holds which he will probably introduce to the fans Wednesday night. Brees is regarded as the welterweight champion of the eastern Oregon section and has been winning matches with such regularity he is said to be eyeing Elliott as another workout. However, fans who have seen Elliott in action have different ideas on the subject, and are expecting a hard fought battle.

Jones is the former holder of the world's junior welterweight championship belt and is anxious for a win over Lyness to pave the way for a championship match, which may be held in Medford if the attendance at the next card is promising.

A young buck deer which wandered down too far from the hill country discovered its mistake too late. Walking across the Pacific highway near the Jackson Hot Springs Saturday morning, it was struck by an automobile driven by J. Arant of Ashland. The deer was almost instantly killed. Deputy Game Warden Roy Parr was notified and the carcass was turned over to charity. This is the first fatality of its kind reported this year and the first to have occurred on the valley floor for sometime.

The state game commission is beginning a program to centralize its hatchery equipment, according to a recent report made by Matt L. Ryckman, state superintendent of hatcheries. Instead of building new small hatcheries to supply the various counties of the state, the old establishments are to be enlarged and improved. A number of new ponds, flumes and pipe lines have been installed at the McKenzie hatchery near Eugene. A new electric pumping system has also been installed. This was done by the city of Eugene as compensation for the flooding of ponds which had been operated by the state in river sloughs. They became flooded when a dam was constructed across the stream.

Another step in the direction of centralizing the hatchery work was the construction of the Fall River hatchery, 35 miles from Bend, replacing the Tualum hatchery, abandoned because of water conditions. In the winter, freezing temperature stopped the flow of water and in the summer the water became too warm for fish life. The new location is fed by large springs, which have never been subject to freezing. Centralization, Mr. Ryckman pointed out, aids in solving the problem of providing fish food. Small fry need such food as liver, lungs and spleen, but is not always available locally and spoils quickly in hot weather. At the present, the commission in renting cold storage space near the hatcheries or having the food shipped by express or truck. The hatchery is then at the mercy of the shipper, the common carrier and the weather.

At one time, it was thought that the county should have its local hatchery to properly supply the streams and lakes in the immediate vicinity. Modern devices have largely overcome the old transportation problem, and distance does not mean the loss of fish if once meant due to lack of oxygen in the water. Trucks are now equipped with three tanks of oxygen, attached to a pump which distributes air through the water.

Egg-taking activities must necessarily be conducted at the source of supply and are therefore separate from the hatcheries in most instances. Nevertheless, this seasonal work, requiring men experienced in handling ripe fish, is conducted as an important part of the hatchery department. Eggs must be held until they are eyed, and then, if the temperature is sufficiently low, they may be moved safely for a period of ten to twenty days. This permits them to be shipped to the various hatcheries where they will hatch and the fry will develop to six or eight inches before liberation.

At the present, reports Mr. Ryckman, most of the rainbow eggs are taken from Crane Prairie and Diamond Lake, with the eastern brook eggs coming from East Lake and Pauline lake. As a safety measure, in case the present egg-taking locations might become depleted, the commission has closed Cultus lake and North Twin lake for rainbow and eastern brook eggs. To keep Diamond lake up to its present high standard, the commission is hatching and returning to the lake about 15 per cent of the eggs taken from it. In the past two years, there has been no difficulty in securing all the rainbow and eastern brook eggs that the hatcheries can handle, according to Mr. Ryckman's report.

HUSKIES NEED ONE GAME FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Plans Under Way for Series With California Quint to Determine Pacific Coast Title.

(By the Associated Press.) The Washington Huskies need only to win one of their four remaining games to clinch the north-west division championship of the Pacific Coast conference series. The mathematical possibility of their losing seems so remote plans are being made for holding the coast championship meet at Seattle next month with the Huskies facing either California or Southern California for the title. The two southern schools are in a tie and will wind up their regular schedule next Saturday.

The Huskies nosed out a 45 to 42 victory over the Washington State Cougars, Friday night and pulled another out of the fire Saturday when Neil Nelson, sub forward, scored a field goal in the last two minutes of play to defeat the Cougars, 24 to 23.

Oregon State won two games from Idaho, 37 to 24 and 47 to 46, and as a result tied with Washington State for second place in the conference race.

Oregon and Oregon State renew their civil war at Eugene Saturday night. Preceding that the Webboos tackle Idaho at Eugene in a two-game series tonight and Saturday night. Washington State and Idaho meet at Pullman Saturday night.

The standings:

W.	L.	Per.
Washington	11	1	.917
Washington State	8	5	.615
Oregon State	8	5	.617
Oregon	2	9	.182

PRINCETON AND HARVARD PEACE PACT HITS SNAG

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A possible complication in the recently resumed athletic relations between Harvard and Princeton appeared today in the decision of Yale Athletic authorities to end its football season against these two rivals in alternate years instead of having Harvard as a final opponent annually.

Whether it was the beginning of a move toward the revival of the old "big three" in football or an action which might hamper friendly relations remained in doubt as the action met with strong undergraduate criticism from Harvard.

The experiment of playing Princeton after the Harvard game, which has brought the Yale season to a close on the traditional Saturday before Thanksgiving since 1909, is to begin this year. The revised Yale football schedule calls for Yale to meet Harvard November 21 and Princeton November 28. The Nov. 14 date, originally allotted to Princeton, is left open. A three-year period has been set for the alternate arrangement. It is to be continued after 1933, "unless and until altered by mutual consent."

Stockmen and farmers in the Klamath basin are also wishing for more snow in the mountains, that would insure better range feed and plenty of irrigation water for next season. The snow fall in the Cascades is far below normal, there being only 60 inches at Crater Lake at this time.

Gentlemen:

I am interested in selling public health to the citizens of my community. You are interested in selling cigars to all America. Apparently there is no joining of interests here.

However, when I noticed your interesting advertisements which pointed attention to the evils of spit from a public health standpoint, and what had been done by you to prevent spit tipped cigars, I recognized that there was a union of interests.

You are to be congratulated for fighting the spitting evil as you do, not because it is going to sell more cigars, but rather that it is going to make healthier citizens. I do not care how many more cigars you do sell. I am interested in public health.

You can use this letter if you want to for publication.

Very sincerely
