

ITALIANS OFFER GAMBLING LURE TO TRAVELERS

Promoters Vision Casinos at Venice and San Remo to Catch Unwary Tourist Dollars.

SAN REMO, Italy.—(P)—There are dreams here of creating two great gambling centers to lure from Monte Carlo and the French Riviera the dollars of those who pursue the path of chance—but they are only on paper.

Venice promoters, who vision a casino here and one at Venice, are discussing the advisability of acquiring Frank Jay Gould, who created Juan-les-Pins, on the French Riviera, to try his hand on the City of Lagoona.

San Remo already possesses a casino, the only publicly recognized gambling hall in Italy. Mussolini granted this privilege five years ago and while it has not attracted the crowds of tourists which its promoters envisioned, it has had moderate success.

Plan Fine Casino

Venice would like to capitalize on this and make of the lido an even greater center for tourists by building a casino that would outshine any other similar structure.

But the word from Rome thus far is that the San Remo experiment has not proved such a success as to warrant any more public gambling establishments.

This has encouraged San Remo and has started another dream, that of turning that place into one of those little independent states whose sole business would be to ease the pain of parting with money.

The outlined idea calls for use of $10,000,000 for a new yacht harbor, polo fields, golf courses, gardens and remodeling the nearby town of Limone into a winter resort. But it is, thus far, only a dream.

The latest step toward invigorating the gambling here was the forming out of the beverage name to Amleto Battisti, an Uruguayan banker. He will try to compete with the noted "Coke" syndicate which recently transferred its activities to Monte Carlo after fleeing from the French 2 per cent tax on liquor.

TRAFFIC JAMS AT AIR PORTS TO BE CURBED

New Devices for Control of Planes Will Be Displayed at National Aerial Conference.

TULSA, Okla.—(P)—An array of new devices for the control of air traffic at landing fields and airports soon will be demonstrated at Tulsa's busy airport.

Some of the new control devices are as simple as the single red-and-green light which guides automobile traffic at the main corner of a country village. Others are as complicated as the synchronized traffic lights of a great city.

All of them will be on display when the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., holds its thirty national airport conference here March 25, 26 and 27.

Several hundred air port managers, constructors, designers, and operators, as well as city and government officials, will be present.

Need Evident

With airplanes landing and taking off at intervals of less than a minute at some of the more important air transport centers, the need for air traffic control around airports has become increasingly evident.

Two-way radio telephone communication, to enable the airport manager to give verbal directions to pilots from the ground, is being installed at many of the larger ports, and several demonstrations to be made here are centered around new radio control devices.

A simpler traffic control device, consisting of a conventional "wind tee" with green and red neon tubes along its surfaces, is another device to be displayed.

Show Field Clear

When the airport manager desires to instruct the pilot to land, he lights the green tubes, which show that the field is clear and indicate the direction of the wind into which he should land.

When other planes are landing or taking off from the field, the red tubes are lighted to show that the runways are not clear.

Technical papers describing important advances of the past year in the design and development of airport equipment will be presented by nationally-known experts.

Record Crowds See "Cimarron" Big Holly Hit

Richard Dix as Yancey.

"Cimarron" on the Holly screen, is even more powerful than the great story, read by millions in America.

"Cimarron," the picture, is all that is gripping in "Cimarron," the story.

Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat seems to have walked right out of the pages of the book. Spectacular scenes abound in the production, but they are a new kind.

Through the wizardry of Wesley Ruggles, director, they transcend mere spectacle and become inspiring flashes which penetrate and make the production as realistic as early Oklahoma itself.

Dix, hero of a score of notable screen roles has never been seen to better advantage. One feels that Edna Ferber wrote her great novel with Dix in mind as Yancey Cravat. Irene Dunne steps to the foremost ranks of the screen's dramatic actresses in "Cimarron."

The shows at the Holly tomorrow will be continuous starting at 1:15 p. m.

A cold does 3 things "Pape's" stops them all

A cold always affects you in at least three ways. Air passages are inflamed and irritated. Perpiration is checked. Bowels are clogged with acid wastes from the mucous discharge. So doctors say you must do three things to be rid of a cold.

Pape's Cold Compound does all three! It reduces inflammation and swelling of the mucous membrane; it induces perspiration; opens the bowels. Chew one of these pleasant tablets and see how quickly nasal discharge stops; head clears; breathing becomes easy. See how that aches, feverish, weak feeling disappears. And "Pape's" doesn't stop with killing cold germs. It activates bowels and removes germs and acid wastes from the system. All drug stores—35c. Just remember "Pape's".
