

Bend Ski Artist Sets New Record in Crater Lake Rim Trek

EMIL NORDEEN IS PERMANENT OWNER OF CUP

Forty-Two Miles Covered In 4 Hours, 35 Minutes—Jacobson Only Other Finisher.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Feb. 23.—(AP) Emil Nordeen of the Bend, Ore., Skyliner, was awarded a huge silver loving cup last night by virtue of having twice finished first in the 42-mile Fort Klamath-Crater Lake rim and return-ski race.

Nordeen romped up the rim and back yesterday in four hours and 35 minutes, a considerable reduction of last year's record time of five hours and 56 minutes. The Bend skier is now permanent owner of the cup.

One Other Finishes. The only other man to finish the long course was Manfred Jacobson, McCloud, Cal., who beat Nordeen to the finish line by a few seconds last year.

Two others entered. Ivar Amoth, Bend, broke a skill at the lake rim and Oliver Lockett, Fort Klamath, dropped out after 22 miles. The race was the headliner of the winter sports carnival sponsored by the Crater Lake Ski Club every year on Washington's birthday. More than 4000 spectators turned out.

Girls Win Relay

One of the novelty events was the women's express relay race on skis. The Ericson trio, Ila, Peggy and Winnie, of Fort Klamath, placed first, covering the half-mile course in two and a half minutes.

One Amoth, Bend, was first in the 16-mile race, time, 1:26:40. Alice Pearson, Portland, was second, T. A. K. Beaglund, Portland, third; Vernon Packett, Fort Klamath, fourth; R. L. Leake, Crater Lake, fifth; and M. Biscoe, Fort Klamath, sixth.

Wet snow made jumping events hazardous. John King, Bend, was awarded first in the class A event.

ROPE SKIPPER TO TRY FOR RECORD

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Today was skipping day for Chester Levere, 41, and he planned a record.

For years it has been his custom to break his rope skipping record on the day following his birthday anniversary. Last year he skipped 15,999 times in two hours, 35 minutes and 15 seconds.

"And you can't tell the world," he said, "that I'm not advertising anything either."

With Rod and Gun

Reports that Chinook salmon were coming up the Rogue river and had reached Grants Pass were prevalent in Medford last week, but a visit by several local anglers to the stream yesterday revealed that the fish had not yet made their appearance. The salmon are not expected for another two or three weeks. However, quite a number of steelhead were seen in the river. The season on steelhead is closed until April 15.

The two-headed trout, the subject of mention in this column sometime ago, is still alive, report of a party of Medford visitors today, after having seen the freak yesterday at the California state fish hatchery in Mt. Shasta City. The trout has lived for 18 months and has long exceeded its expected life span. It is still as active as it was last summer but has shown no growth. It continues to be about two inches in length with the heads joining each other at the gills. As soon as one head stops eating and begins to waste away, the freak will die, hatchery attendants say, and that is apt to happen most any time. In a trough at the other end of the hatchery building housing the freak, there are about 20 small two-headed fish, just hatched from the eggs, but all are expected to die as the old egg caved from which they emerged.

One local deer hunter made the suggestion today that all does and fawns be caught and equipped with cowbells to identify them from the bucks. He pointed out that in this way hunters would not have to worry about shooting at anything that had a bell ringing around its neck. He said this would save considerable game slaughter by hunters who shoot because they see the noise, but he failed to offer any method how to catch the bell-footed does and fawns to place the bells on them.

Judging from the number of pellets brought to the county clerk's office for county collection, the population of Jackson county continues to be large and in some districts is increasing. Some county residents have made a half dozen trips to the clerk's office this season and plan to make more before the end of next month. Most of the coyotes are trapped but some are shot by ranchers as they make raids on poultry flocks. William Grievoy of Prospect brought in a belt of a coyote he shot from his yard last week just as it was about to raid a flock of turkeys. It was one of the largest animals killed this season. A number of trappers, unable to obtain good results in their quest for fur-bearing animals have devoted most of their time to coyotes to collect the bounty on their pelts and have been meeting with better success than in trapping for the former.

Reports say that in the western states over 5000 sheep and cattle are killed by predatory animals every 24 hours and is the strongest argument why predators should all be destroyed. Poisoned meat has been used with some success, but the use of poison has been frowned upon as it makes innocent animals as well as coyotes and wolves suffer. There are some interests that would give coyotes mercy on the grounds that they dispose of rodents, but this stand is continually meeting strong opposition from cattlemen, ranchers and settlers.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 23.—(AP) After romping along through the first half of the basketball season with a perfect record of seven victories, Jefferson high school's male basketball broke last week and the school started the second half with their first defeat to Franklin. So, the Portland high school league seems to look as though it were staging more of a contest and less of a horse race.

While the Quakers, a second division team, were giving the league leader a lesson in the effects of over-confidence, Commerce was back knocking Grants out of second place and down alongside himself in a tie for third. Benson landed in second place by defeating Roosevelt.

Another upset came when Lincoln, six times defeated, threw Washington to a loss.

JEFFERSON LOSES FIRST CAGE GAME IN PORTLAND RACE

LOCALS POINT FOR LITHIANS FRIDAY NIGHT

Clay And Shell On Medford Crisp List As Crucial Contest For Championship Nears.

Medford high school basketball squad starts drilling this afternoon for the first game of the annual series with the Ashland high team next Friday, with two of its mainstays crippled. Shell, guard, sustained a sprained ankle in the Klamath Falls game last Friday and Clay is still limping from a bad knee and strained tendon. Clay may get into the Ashland games, but Shell is out for the season.

Both are fast and heady players and their loss will be keenly felt. Medford needs but one of the Ashland games, to clinch the district championship and the right to attend the state tournament at Salem. The misfortune that has befallen the Burgheites has raised the morale of the Lithians and they will put up a hard battle to win the local title at their weakest. Medford's only advantage is playing on their home court.

Ashland Has Menace. The only menace on the Ashland team is Howell, mountainous center, who can wild in the Grants Pass game last Friday. He was not good in the second half under close guarding and Grants Pass all but tossed out the Grizzlies. Howell has some close guarding and some close refereeing. Because of his size, valley referees have made allowances for his errors, but there will be none of that with Ralph Coleman, who regards a foul as the foule.

To take the place of Shell, Coach Burcher has White and Walker, both dependable.

Coach Bliss of Ashland claims he has a special offense and defense for the Medford style of play, which he has been keeping under cover all season, to spring at the finish. It will have to work better than any displayed in conference games so far.

The largest crowd of the season will see the Friday night game, with fans from all over the valley in attendance.

OREGON SENSATION. The University of Oregon enjoyed the sensation of last week's play by triumphing over Oregon State college at Eugene 19 to 32. The two will finish their private battle with two games—Friday at Corvallis and Saturday at Eugene.

Oregon took two games from Idaho at Eugene last Monday and Tuesday, 25 to 27 and 32 to 21. Washington State completed Idaho's dismal week Saturday by taking the long end of a 35 to 25 score. The California Bears won the right to play for the coast championship by defeating Grant, 46 to 22 Saturday. The same night U. C. L. A. won from U. S. C. 36 to 22.

HUSKIES PLAN PLAY-OFF WITH CALIFORNIANS

One Win Needed During Coming Week To Clinch Northern Division Hoop Championship.

(By the Associated Press)

With the expectation that it would win at least one of its four games this week, the California team of Washington today was going ahead with plans for a Pacific coast basketball play-off in Seattle with the University of California, winner of the coast conference, southern division title.

Play-off contests are slated for March 6, 7 and 8. Washington State contends are still in the running for a possible tie with the Huskies, but to accomplish it they will have to defeat the Huskies today and Wednesday at Pullman and Washington college at Eugene 19 to 32.

KIWANIS GOLFERS COMPETING TODAY

GAMES WERE UNDERWAY this afternoon at the Medford golf course between Kiwanis club teams from Medford and Ashland. The players were paired off as follows:

My All-American pick included seven of the A. E. selections: Singson, Baker, Ticknor, Carides, Schwartz, Pinckert and Macaluso. "My All-Southern selection, published two weeks prior to the release of the Associated Press All-Southern, was identified with All-Southern, G. E. Whittle vs. Jay Buckingham; G. E. Carson vs. J. C. Thompson; Will Dodge vs. Pat Layburn; Lewis Dordt vs. C. C. Lemmon; E. W. Bortolotto vs. C. M. Kidd; Dr. Burdick vs. Dr. Goldsberry; John Enders vs. Ted Baker.

Portland Chess Prodigy Beats 31 Simultaneously

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 23.—(AP) Three years ago William Duke, a chess buff, burst amply into the silent confines of the Portland Chess and Checker club and angrily demanded his 17-year-old son.

"Arthur is wasting his time here when he should be home studying his lessons," the father declared. "Arthur departed his name hurriedly."

SPORT SLANTS

Challen Cain refers to him as the "Man from Homosassa." The ball players call him "Old Daz." His relatives call him Arthur. All things considered, he is the greatest right hander in baseball today. Dazzy Vance has gone down to Homosassa, Fla., to rest in shape for another baseball campaign, "down where a fellow just naturally stays outdoors," he says by way of ballooning the locality, "and gets young again."

"Old Daz" will celebrate his 38th birthday next March, but he completed one of his greatest seasons with Brooklyn in 1930 and he will again be the highest paid pitcher in the National League when the barrier is sprung in April.

Vance was the most effective twirler in either his league last season, although his record of 17 victories against 15 defeats was not so impressive as that of Robert Moses Grove, the American league leader, or of some others among the top-notchers. Most of Dazzy's defeats, however, were of the hard-luck variety.

Real effectiveness on the mound is measured, not by what teammates do to the opposition, but by what the pitcher yields himself—namely, runs. Vance yielded an average of only 2.61 runs per nine inning game. Grove's mark was 2.69 runs as the American league leader, and Vance's nearest National league rival, Carl Hubbell of the Giants, showed an allowance of 3.57 runs. This leaves a big gap between Dazzy and the rest of the field.

Vance, in 35 games, struck out 173 and issued 55 passes; Grove struck out 214 and walked 60 batters in an even 50 appearances. "The figures make a very good argument for Vance when it comes to any discussion of his contract terms for 1931."

Carl Watters, sports editor of the Meridian Star, writes: "In your Sport Slants I notice where you mention writers whose All-American picks came close to being identical with A. E. counterparts. My All-American pick included seven of the A. E. selections: Singson, Baker, Ticknor, Carides, Schwartz, Pinckert and Macaluso. "My All-Southern selection, published two weeks prior to the release of the Associated Press All-Southern, was identified with All-Southern, G. E. Whittle vs. Jay Buckingham; G. E. Carson vs. J. C. Thompson; Will Dodge vs. Pat Layburn; Lewis Dordt vs. C. C. Lemmon; E. W. Bortolotto vs. C. M. Kidd; Dr. Burdick vs. Dr. Goldsberry; John Enders vs. Ted Baker."

The Pacific Coast league batting averages for 1930, recently compiled for winter's fun, furnish a number of good reasons for the major league scramble for player talent.

COAST PLAYERS YANK MATADOR GET CHANGE IN BALL DURING COMBAT

Half Dozen Pacific Stars Expected To Earn Regular Berths In Majors This Season.

(By the United Press) Several future major league stars are expected to be among the Pacific Coast league's 1931 contribution to the big show.

At least half a dozen players who were prominent in the Pacific Coast league last season promise to win regular berths in the major league coming season.

Los Angeles sent up a quartet of promising players, three of whom are slated to win regular jobs. Ed Raecht, pitcher, formerly with the Pacifics, is considered by many the outstanding Coast league prospect of the last few years. He won 26 games and lost 12. The Chicago Cubs gave cash and seven players for him in a deal that approached $100,000.

Moore Now Ripe. Manager Jack LeVelle of the Los Angeles club believes outfielder Johnny Moore, who batted .342, is the Pacific Coast league player most likely to become a sensation in his first season. Moore has had a previous trial with the Cubs, but LeVelle thinks he is now ripe for Hornsby's team.

The Braves give cash and outfielder Jim Melch, who will be remembered as the player who figured in the sensational Hornsby deal a few years ago, for Wes Schulmerich, a big, broad-shouldered fellow who looks like a wrestler.

The other Los Angeles player sent up is Frank Sizemore, second baseman, drafted by the Cincinnati Reds.

The New York Yankees picked up a pair of promising plums in outfielder Myril Hoag and Shortstop Frank Crossett.

Pair Come High. The Yankees gave $75,000 for Hoag, who batted .327 for the Sacramento club, and more than that sum for the Frank Crossett, who will not report until after the 1931 season.

Johnny Verzut, who batted .303 for Oakland, is another player many believe will make the McGraw grade.

Cleveland has picked up a pair of excellent prospects in Pitcher Howard Craghead, who won 21 and lost 21 for Oakland, and Pitcher Ray Thomas, who won 14 and lost 20 for Sacramento. Thomas led the Coast league in strikeouts with 217. He is a former University of Southern California football player.

Sheely Gets New Trial. Coming back for another tryout is Earl Sheely, veteran first baseman, who has had previous trials with the White Sox and Pirates. Sheely, who batted .304, was drafted by the Boston Braves.

Brooklyn landed a good player in Ernie Lombardi, big Italian catcher, who batted .379 for Oakland.

The Athletics purchased four players from Portland—Pitchers Herbert Lamb and Hank McDunald, Catcher Paulsano and Outfielder Bob Johnson. All are youngsters. Paulsano, 26, being the oldest, and McDunald, 19, the youngest.

Martin Owen, who can play every position in the infield but who is likely to be tried at Detroit stop, was purchased by Detroit from Seattle.

Sidney Franklin Saved From Possible Death In Mexican Ring When Rival Comes To Rescue.

(By the United Press) NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Sidney Franklin, felled by a black bull, nursed a wound of right leg today.

The Houston artist-matador was saved from possible death in the arena here yesterday by Marcel Lalande, Spanish bull fighter and Franklin's rival for the 10-tactical chess of a holiday weekend.

Franklin killed four bulls. The fifth, the black one, gored him when he slipped on soft sand. Franklin struggled to his feet to renew the combat, but Lalande, seeing Franklin's leg was bleeding, rushed to the rescue.

A moment later the American fainted and was carried from the ring. Lalande finished the bull, but Franklin returned before the next fight was concluded to receive an ovation.

Franklin has suffered several injuries since he left commercial art for the bull ring in 1923. He was gored in Lisbon August 12, 1925, and in Madrid March 16, 1926. He was tossed in Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, May 14, 1926.
