stricken with intestinal influenza here February 9 while he was on his way to Salem to discuss road bills before the Oregon state legislature.

An operation was performed upon him last week but he failed to respond to treatment. His son, James Nathan Hill, called from Washington, D. C., was with his father when death came. Edgar N. Hill, Seattle, a cousin of the deceased, and W. F. Turner, president of the Spokane Portland & Seattle railroad also were present.

Ashes to Maryhill
Hill's body will lie in state here today. Funeral services and cremation will be in Seattle. The ashes will be placed in an urn and taken to Maryhill, a lonely castle standing on a Washington cliff high above the Columbia river.

While Queen Marie of Rumania was in the United States several years ago Hill entertained her and her party and she dedicated the Rumanian room of Maryhill. Several years before Hill was host for the Marshall Joffe's national tour.

Hill's services to allied countries during the World war, in building and directing railroads, was his decorations from France, Belgium, Japan and Germany.

The Canadian government and the United States senate gave Hill special votes of thanks for promoting the "peace portal," in honor of 100 years of peace between the two countries.

Good Roads Advocate
Hill was a son-in-law of the late James Hill, pioneer builder of railroads, and won fame in his own right as a railway executive. In recent years he devoted much of his time toward urging an improved highway system for the country, and supported legislation toward that end.

He was a native of North Carolina but spent most of his life in the middle West and west. On the Pacific coast he was known for his

FIND VITAMIN C IN PEAS, BEANS BY SPROUTING

Dried Foods Gain Properties Fresh Vegetables Under Simple Process Is Discovered.

By Elizabeth Spence, (United Press Correspondent) WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Dried peas and beans can be endowed with some of the valuable food properties of fresh vegetables by the simple process of sprouting them, recent studies by the bureau of home economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have revealed.

Ordinarily dried beans and peas are lacking in the valuable Vitamin C, but the sprouting process in some way produces this essential diet accessory.

Complete absence of Vitamin C in the diet results in scurvy, formerly the dread of sailors on long sea voyages.

Even under less extreme conditions, many persons endeavor their health because of an unperceived deficiency of Vitamin C in their diet. This food deficiency is also thought to be an important cause of tooth decay and of many cases of so-called rheumatism.

Citrus fruits, tomatoes and raw cabbage have been recognized as important sources of Vitamin C for a number of years, but until recently beans had not been considered as a possible source.

To obtain vitamin source from dried beans and peas, the bureau of home economics experimented with several methods of sprouting.

One simple method was simply to roll up a sheet of cheesecloth sprinkled with dried beans, and keep moist until the sprouts were an inch long.

Sprouted seeds, long used in Chinese dishes, have a very mild flavor and make up into very tasty dishes.

When the town banker (Clive Brook) asks Bancroft to withhold publication in his paper of

Her Mother's Lucky Find

WHEN we find that some slight adjustment makes a marvelous improvement in a child we wonder why we hadn't thought before to give the child this help.

A good example is the experience of Mrs. X. Erickson, 1675 West Blvd., Los Angeles, Cal. She says: "My little girl was doing fairly well but I noticed she didn't eat like she should and didn't seem to have much energy."

"I wanted to do something for her, and my mother recommended California Fig Syrup, so I gave her some. Mary improved so much I wonder why I didn't do something for her stomach and bowels before. It relieved her sluggishness, gave her a good appetite and plenty of energy."

To point up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and assimilation, there's nothing more effective than pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise its use to open the bowels during colds and children's diseases, or whenever had breath, coated tongue, headach, listlessness, etc., warn of constipation.

The genuine always bears the name California. So look for that when buying. At all drugstores.
