METHODISTS WILL HEAR ADDRESS BY NOTED REFORMER

DEETS PICKETT, research secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Morals of the Methodist church, Washington, D. C., editor of the "Clip Sheet" and other publications, will speak in the Medford Methodist church Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Pickett is known to be an eloquent orator and a recognized authority on all phases of temperance, before the "walking encyclopedia" having become acquainted with conditions as they actually exist by making various investigations in all parts of the country.

Clarence True Wilson depends upon Mr. Pickett as his right hand man. Both these reformers appeared before the congressional committee inquiring into prohibition, and the Wickersham commission.

ROSEBURG FAMILY OWNS OLD BIBLE

A Bible printed in 1746 is in the possession of E. R. Boyce of this city, who obtained the book several years ago when a family residence in New York state was razed. The Bible was printed in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1746 by Richard Watkine, "The Master's Printer," according to the inscription on the fly page, and came into the possession of the Boyce family shortly after it was printed.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

SYNOPSIS: An unknown murderer has looted over a stone cottage in the Dutch garden of Ashland. A girl is brutally crushed in the scorching splinter. Marjorie Blake had found the body of her aunt shortly after she and Dr. Netherston talked to her there. Evelyn Drake, her sister-in-law, the nurse room with her niece, Lionel Duckworth, when Marjorie reports her discovery. Also near the garden at the time is Major Graham, hopefully in love with Miss Querdling, Green, the chauffeur who with Joe Allen, a discharged gardener, is suspected.

Chapter 10 THE CLOAKED WOMAN JIMMIE and Richmond followed the maid into Evelyn's and Marjorie's room. They were there, dressed in simple black frocks. Their likeness to each other was remarkable, although Marjorie seemed tired and worried.

The superintendent's reply to Marjorie's question concerning the case was noncommittal. "It is your sister I want to talk to." "Do you mean alone? She is still very upset." Evelyn glanced anxiously at Marjorie and then moved toward the door, Jimmie Haswell slipping out with her. "Leave them together for a moment or two," he whispered. "Richmond is a bit severe, but not a bad sort." He hesitated. "I wonder if you would let me see Mrs. Frater, the cook?"

"Why, of course, but—" she checked a surprised question and showed him the kitchen door. He tapped before he opened it. "May I come in? I have called with a message from a friend of yours." A young woman was standing alone in front of her range. The kitchen was a most attractive place, its open windows overlooking the gardens.

"It was Mrs. Wade who told me about you," began Jimmie. "She was so sorry you had been ill and hopes you are all right again." Mrs. Frater flushed with pleasure and Jimmie continued, "You weren't really as bad as the doctor thought, were you?" She looked at him a bit oddly. "Praps I wot: praps I wot." "Miss Querdling wished you to stay in bed and the doctor told you to, but you didn't want to," continued Jimmie. "How long was it after the doctor left that you got up and went out?" Her blush told him his surmise was correct. "I went out directly 't doctor left me," she said. "But when he asked why, she told him crisply and defiantly that it was her own business." "Or is it Alf Collett's business?" Jimmie ventured smilingly, and when another flush confirmed his suggestion, he explained, "Mrs. Frater, you know that about the time you slipped out of the house your mistress was killed. You know we have been trying to discover who was in the garden at the time. Don't you think it would have been wiser if you had told us you were there?" "I wotn't asked."

"But if it is discovered afterwards what will people think? Would it not be better for you to tell me just what you did—better for Alf as well as for yourself?" "Keep Alf out o' it. He never went near her. No more did I."

She told her story in a straightforward manner. She had an appointment to meet Alf, her sweet heart, at a gap in the lane fence, and filled it when the doctor left. They had not been together long, and before the meeting she had gone back to bed. Soon Janet came up and told her about the tragedy. Alf, she was sure, had gone home, walking, since he had no car. "I see," Jimmie said. "Now, Mrs. Frater, will you go now and put on the cloak you wore that night and walk out of the house just as you did then? Follow the same path, and come back."

Talent Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Walters Tuesday with an all day meeting. The day was spent in quilting. A delightful dinner was served at noon.

Wayne Parks and Dorothy Kerby, two well known young people of Talent were married February 24. Miss Kerby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kerby of Wagner creek district and Mr. Parks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parks of the Parks Groceries here. Both young people have a host of friends in this community who extend congratulations. Miss Kerby has lived in the vicinity all her life. Mr. Parks came here a year ago from the Philippine Islands where he was in the U. S. army. The wedding took place in the court house with Judge Alex Sparrow officiating. Only near relatives witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Parks will make their home on the tract owned by Mr. Chenoweth west of Talent.

Mrs. Larson is spending the week with her sister in Medford. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manning were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hakkerup Tuesday evening.

BENSON DANCING PUPILS PRESENT CRATERIAN ACTS

(Contributed) Pupils of the Eve Benson Dancing Academy appeared at the Fox Craterian during the Gold Bond program this afternoon at 1:40. Four very attractive numbers were presented. "Tack in the Box," by LaMarie Beck as the dainty little French maid who along with her dancing, executes the dancing with excellent technique and the necessary pantomime. Little Rae LoPetry interprets the clever little Jack who pops out of the box, does various acrobatic stunts and does not want to go back into his box again. A very entertaining number.

"Miss America" was well interpreted by Maxine Vaughn, in patriotic style and costume. "Indian Dawn"—a special request number.—(Which is very gratifying to the young dancer and her instructor)—was rendered by LaMarie Beck. She endeavored to execute all the characteristic beautiful movements required in a dance of this type. Little Gretchen McAllister and Rae LoPetry were right on the spot, ready to tap with all their pep and accuracy. They rendered two short skits, earning much applause. This little team is steadily climbing high in the art of the dance.

An international aeronautical exhibition will be held May 15-31 in Stockholm.
