FAIR AND COOLER, as the weatherman might say after glancing at this beautiful barometer. Here is lovely Loretta Young, film star, giving us that "come-along-in-the-water-s-fine" look just before taking a plunge.

HER GOLDEN LOCKS may have fooled you, but this is Clara Bow, red-haired "It" girl of the screen, ready to leave her Beverly Hills home for Nevada, where she will recuperate from a nervous breakdown.

SPIFFY CHAPEAU!—This is the kind of headgear little girls in Bali get when they become good dancers. The one shown above is made of gold handiwork.

BELLS OLD AND NEW, SYMBOLIZING AMERICA'S INDEPENDENCE.—Most famous of the nation's relics is the famed Liberty Bell, above, which hangs in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. Mayor Mackey of Philadelphia is shown tapping the bell with a hammer. Below, Rev. Dr. Herbert Burke, rector of the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge, Pa., is shown inspecting three of the bells for the Valley Forge Carillon, where bells to represent every state in the Union will be hung.

A PRETTY NOSEY FELLOW, this grotesque character, but kids in Karlsruhe, Germany, like him just the same. The figure represents "Dwarf-Nose," a character in one of the fairy tales of Wilhelm Hauff, and it is one of the few fairy tale characters ever to be perpetuated in stone.

NO SLOWING DOWN AT THESE CORNERS!—This is how the placid waters of Virginia Beach, Va., look when a speedboat drags a couple of aquaplaners around a bend at a mile a minute. One of the aquaplaners, as you see, has suddenly disappeared from sight.

POPULAR VISITOR at Virginia Beach, Va., this summer is Mrs. Norman Gehre, above, of Maplewood, N. J. Here she is shown in a happy mood on the sands of the smart Cavalier Beach club.

MMI MMI! HOW'D YOU LIKE TO TAKE A WALK?—Well, if you do, you might join this ambitious crowd of 300 young men, for they are competitors in the annual English national 20-mile road walking championship. Here they are shown hustling off from the starting line at Enfield.

"NOW THIS WON'T HURT A BIT." as the alligator dentist is saying to "Big Bill," one of the huskies at the Los Angeles Alligator Farm. Here Carl Link is shown filing down a pesky bicuspid, while his patient, said to be 125 years old, holds on for dear life.

TAKES A PAKE to comb his whiskers. This rickshaw man in Ceylon vows not to apply the scissors until his countrymen are granted independence from England.

HOW THEY GRADUATE IN CALIFORNIA—No stuffy halls will do for seniors at University of California when they take degrees. Instead, they chose the famous Hollywood Bowl at Los Angeles, in which to hold impressive open-air Commencement exercises. This photo was taken as the 982 graduates awaited their sheepskins.
