Clara Bow Heading Cast in Isis Film

In "Her Wedding Night," which opens at the Isis theater today, Clara Bow is cast as a red-haired movie star who takes a vacation to get away from the men. Then things start to happen. And with Clara in her matrimonial mix-up, are Ralph Forbes, Charlie Ruggles the serious-faced comic, and Skeets Gallagher.

The Tennessee Legislature still insists that evolution is not true in that state. Winston-Salem Journal.

Robert Montgomery at Craterian

"The Man in Possession," which is now playing at the Fox Craterian with Robert Montgomery playing his second starring role, is a delightful and captivating farce.

"A Soldier's Plaything" at Holly

War is not all mud, trenches, battles and barrages for the soldier who finds himself plucked from a peaceful occupation and planted on the front line.

"A Soldier's Plaything," comedy drama, which opens two days engagement at the Holly today, depicts some of the romantic and humorous things that befall American doughboys who landed the night picture of Joe E. Brown's long career.

Joe Brown Starring in Comedy at State

Joe E. Brown, now appearing in "Going Wild" at the State theatre, is a living contradiction to the time-worn "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" adage. To quote Joe, "The fable that a comedian's laugh hides a tear, is as such a thing of the past as horse cars. A comedian nowadays in a comedian, whether he is addressing a paid audience or a group of friends." Anyone with the slightest acquaintance with Joe E. Brown will readily admit that he "is like that." It is a widely known fact that he is equally funny off stage as on. "Going Wild" is easily the fun-

WASHINGTON, D. C. BRIDGE SUICIDE PROVES AUTOIST

WASHINGTON, July 11. (UP)—Washington's "million-dollar" bridge, from which many persons have leaped to their death, has become so famous that police rush there at the slightest mention of the absence of the "suicide."

Recently several police patrols dashed to the bridge, sirens screaming, only to be baffled by the absence of the "suicide."

It happened when Clarence A. Aspinwall, president of a storage company, stalled his car on the bridge. He went in search of a tow truck. A passerby, having read of the number of persons that had jumped from the bridge, decided the occupant of the "dead" automobile had "committed suicide."

He called the police. People came from all directions and soon a line of cars the length of the bridge was tangled into a mass.

Police searched for the body. Soon Aspinwall returned to get his car. He was told a man had leaped from the bridge. He aided police.

Congestion became so bad that the officers ordered everyone off the bridge. In this way, they thought, the abandoned machine would be left. After the bridges had been cleared, they approached Aspinwall's car and began to take down the license plate numbers.

At her castle near Versailles, the Chateau de Villigenis, Mrs. Corey comprises a one-woman track team and does her daily dozen laps on the cinder path.

Speed means nothing, it is duration which counts in the new Corey reducing system. The limbs which once ruled Broadway and may or may not have had some influence upon the marriage of the Pittsburgh millionaire and the New York show girl are as beautifully formed as ever and poundage that refused to budge under massaging and ordinary dieting has gone.

Many have followed her example and at the American Country Club near Paris there is a secluded straightaway for women reducing-runners. There is a stadium, the Stale Elizabeth, at the edge of Paris now reserved exclusively for women.

Only a lunatic could be an optimist in New York--Dr. Stephen Wise. Well, doctor, we still recall what a tough time the police had picking out the seven maniacs that got loose there some little time ago. Maybe it's right, they'll fall there, after all--Nashville Banner.

FORMER BROADWAY BELLE SPRINTING

PARIS, July 11. (UP)—Mrs. Mabelle Corey, once belle of Broadway and married to Pittsburgh millions, is the head of a new school of thought for reducing which is a compromise between nudism and steam baths.

At her castle near Versailles, the Chateau de Villigenis, Mrs. Corey comprises a one-woman track team and does her daily dozen laps on the cinder path.
