SYNOPSIS: Because the old actor, Tony Latour, had loved Harriet Noel, he encourages the theatrical aspirations of Pierre Dhaovau, child of her unhappy marriage. Now the motherless boy lives with his domineering step-brother, Bruce, and Bruce's wife, Ann. Tony fears that Bruce and Ann's father, Martin Bevis, will persuade Pierre to invest in a mine the money his actress-mother had left for his theatrical training. Hoping to steel the boy's determination, Tony reads to him a play showing what Pierre's experiences might be should he yield to them. On the eve of Pierre's departure for dramatic school, Tony reads the play to Ann. Her father enters the first scene and scolds Tony for interfering. But when Martin mentions Harriet's name, Tony's anger mounts.

Chapter 15

NO TIME TO LOSE

BOTH Martin and his daughter, Ann, remained speechless, while Tony, as if he were speaking lines in a play, continued:

"You have said enough, Martin Bevis. Please confine your criticisms to me. I have become so accustomed to the yapping of our Orchard Hill poodles, and the squalling of our village cats that I am no longer disturbed by your noise."

Martin, cowed by the dignity of the old actor, but stung by his words, could only mumble, "Huh! You think you're somebody, don't you?"

"I won't have you quarreling like this," said Ann.

"I know I am," returned the old actor proudly. "And I advise you, sir, to discuss things which come within the limits of your intelligence."

At this Ann asserted herself. "Stop it, both of you! I won't have you quarreling like this in my house. You two have been friends since your school days! For two pins, I'd give you both a spanking!"

Old Tony relaxed from his theatrical pose and Martin turned away mumbling.

Ann continued: "You have no right to talk to Father Tony like this, Pa—you know how he loves Pierre."

Martin faced his daughter. "We all are fond of Pierre, but you don't seem to appreciate the situation. Your husband, Bruce Carey, is a natural-born financier, who'll be on Wall Street some day, if you'll encourage him a little. Right now he's too big for the Orchard Hill First National. And Pierre a soda jerk in the Owl Drug Store! That's the limit of his business ability. You can see how far he'll get with the money his mother left him. Pierre'll just throw his money away on this New York school learnin' to act.

"If Pierre would let Bruce invest his money in this Red Butte, Nevada, mine, Bruce would make a fortune for Pierre, himself and you.

"You're just like your mother—always raising a howl whenever I've had a chance to get in on the ground floor of a good thing and make real money, and look at me now—stuck in a dinky bank, bookkeeping for 40 years! I've got to go back down to the bank and work to-night because my balance is off 39 cents. That's the sort of a financier I am!"

His voice and manner were so hopeless that both Ann and Old Tony were touched.

"Never you mind, Pa," the young woman said comfortingly. "You have not made a million dollars but you have been a wonderful father and there's not a man in Orchard Hill that's more highly thought of inside the church and out."

"That's true, Martin," said Old Tony in the same vein, "and you have raised a daughter that is worth more than all the gold ever mined. I'm sorry that I spoke so unkindly."

"That's all right, Tony," returned Martin heartily, "I guess I was a little brush myself. You see, this Nevada gold mine proposition is a chance in a lifetime for Bruce. I don't want Ann's husband to turn out the same kind of a failure I am."

"Who is this Nevada promoter who is offering Bruce such a golden opportunity?" asked Old Tony.

"He's a mining man in Red Butte," Martin answered. "Bruce knows him. If the proposition wasn't all right Bruce would be the last man in the world to want to go into it."

Ann spoke thoughtfully. "I tremble sometimes to think what Bruce's determination to be rich may lead him into."

"You don't need to worry," Martin returned. "Bruce is too smart to be anything but honest. He'll be one of our leading financiers some day—you'll see."

"Pierre is a great artist soul, Martin," Old Tony said earnestly. "The ability to make money is not the only mark of worth."

"I know money ain't everything," returned Martin. "But it wouldn't hurt Pierre's soul none if he was to help Bruce to get a start. 'Tain't like we was wantin' him to give his money to Bruce. If you was a dutiful wife, Ann, you'd persuade Pierre to help Bruce."

"Now, Pa—" said Ann, interrupted as the front door closed and Bruce Carey appeared in the archway leading to the hall. It was evident from his manner that he had important business on his mind.

Before entering the room he hung his coat and hat over the stair rail, calling out as he did so: "Supper about ready, Ann? I've got to go to Camden to-night—7:40 train. Get a move on, will you?"

Ann sprang to her feet. "My goodness, I forgot about supper! But you have plenty of time. There's no need for such a rush."

"Much you know about it," Bruce retorted. "Isn't Pierre leaving on the 8:15 train in the morning?"

"Yes," said Ann.

"Yes," returned Bruce, "and I can't get a train back here before eight o'clock. If I talk business with Pierre I've got to do it to-night—see?"

Ann went into the kitchen and began preparing supper.

Old Tony said, "How do you do, Bruce?"

Bruce answered with a cool stare and a gruff, "Hello," then, pointedly turning his back, he said to Martin: "Our old boss would pick this evening to send me to Camden with some papers for Fuller, the president of the Farmers' National."

"It's business that has to be in Fuller's hands when the bank opens tomorrow, I suppose," returned Martin.

"Yeah," Bruce replied, "but outside of banking hours my time's supposed to be my own. The First National doesn't own me body and soul like it does you."

Suddenly Bruce turned to Ann and demanded imperiously:

"Where is Pierre? I'm going to talk business with that would-be actor."

Tomorrow an untimed entrance by Bruce brings confusion to Ann and Pierre.

NEW WASHINGTON SCHOOL EMBODIES LATEST FEATURES

The new Washington school building on the corner of Peach and Dakota streets, which displays to the city a concrete exterior of modern style, housing 19 rooms and an auditorium, is taking on a look of completion and occupancy today.

Supplies stored in the old play shed on the corner of Main and Oakdale, razing of which was completed yesterday, have been moved to the new building, construction of which is moving rapidly along under the leadership of Sig Ash, contractor.

The boiler, formerly in use at the Junior high school building, which threatens to become a haunt for bats, only, was moved into the new Washington school by E. P. Power yesterday afternoon.

In less than two months the steps of the new building will resound to the trudging of feet, which formerly ascended the stairs of the old brick building, no signs of which remain where the county court house will soon be constructed.

The new building, one of the most modern to be constructed in the state, will offer many features, beneficial to the education of all types of children. A special room is being provided for instruction of typical children. It will be directed by Miss Gertrude Watsling, who has already accomplished much in the Medford system through presenting special work to children in this classification.

In addition to the 15 regular rooms the structure includes a library, principal's office, health room, store room, lavatories and auditorium.

One room is being arranged as a lunch room to be used for that purpose until pupil growth demands turning it into a class room, E. H. Hedrick, superintendent, stated yesterday.

The auditorium, which is 80 by 60 feet, will be used as an entertainment center and gymnasium for physical education classes. It includes an adequate stage for presentation of all school programs.

Twelve rooms will be used for regular school purposes. There will be no enlargements in the teaching staff for the new building this year, Mr. Hedrick stated. There will be twelve regular teachers and one special, composing the staff. They will care for the same work carried on last year in the old Washington school and the annex, where the overflow, realized each year, was housed.

SISKIYOU FOREST PORTION CLOSED

SALEM, Ore., July 16.—(AP)—First proclamations under the recently enacted closure law were issued yesterday by Governor Julius L. Meier, closing five areas in three national forests to all travel. The order becomes effective today, Lynn A. Cronemiller, state forester announced.

The five areas, three in Mount Hood, one in the Santiam and another in the Siskiyou national forests, represent a very high fire hazard.

The Siskiyou area includes about 1200 acres on Grayback creek about five miles northeast of Holland.

HARD FIGHT AHEAD FOR PROHI FORCES

CORVALLIS, Ore., July 16.—(AP)—For Christian forces interested in temperance and prohibition, the hardest battle of all lies just ahead, R. E. Close, superintendent of the Oregon Anti-Saloon league, told the Oregon Presbyterian synod here today. He spoke on "Menaces to Prohibition." The Oregon synod is in session here.

"The wets, encouraged by recent apathy of the dry forces, have organized and now are active in Oregon in three groups," Close said.

BURGLARS ENTER STAYTON STORES

STAYTON, Ore., July 16.—(AP)—Three places of business, including the postoffice, were burglarized Tuesday night and prowlers were frightened away from a store at Kingston, near here. Net profits to the prowlers were $57.25, some checks, later recovered, and papers both valuable and non-valuable. Entrance in every instance was gained by smashing locks and breaking doors. Deputy Sheriff Sam Burkhart of Salem and Hoby Smith, city marshal, are investigating.

FRENCH MODELS PERISH IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

GENOBLE, France, July 16.—(AP)—Two young women models employed by a Parisian dressmaking house were killed yesterday with the pilot of an airplane bringing them from Cannes. The plane crashed into the side of a mountain.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the reason. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. ©1931, Carter Medicine Company.

CENTRAL POINT GRANGE HOST TO SAMS VALLEY GRANGE FRIDAY NIGHT

Central Point Grange meeting July 3, was marked by the absence of many members altho practically all officers were present.

Worthy Lecturer Mrs. Lathrop introduced Mrs. Fred Cummings, president of the Medford Garden club, and Mrs. Leland Mentzer, a member.

Their organization is sponsoring beautification of the state highways, and Mrs. Mentzer gave a short talk outlining the program and urging the Grange to cooperate as much as possible. A prize of $500 will be awarded the county doing the best work.

The meeting was opened for regular work by Worthy Master A. M. Tyrell.

The dance committee reported a very good crowd at the last dance.

Grangers were reminded that Sams Valley Grange will give the program for July 17.

Names of chairmen, and the dates for August and September programs are posted on the bulletin board. Members are asked to be sure which group they belong to.

Mrs. Alma Meyer of Lake Creek was present to help with organization of a juvenile Grange. Eudora Bohnert was elected juvenile matron. The charter and instructions will be here for the next meeting so that work will begin immediately.

All named on refreshment committees for July 17 are asked to get in touch with Olva Hesselgrave chairman. The way to the hearts of Sams Valley Grangers is well known, so Central Point must show its appreciation of their program through the refreshment committee.
