Coffee forms 70 per cent in value of all Brazilian exports and over-production coupled with the drop in price has created a serious situation. To remedy this partly, an export tax of ten shillings a sack has been placed on the better grades, this revenue being used to buy up and destroy inferior grades. More than half a million sacks of such coffee are due to be burned or dumped at sea.

Senter Lindoifo Collor, minister of Senter Lindoifo Collor, minister of commerce and labor, has forbidden for many flowest-type coffee or of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith, or other the order of Mrs. The order than the order of Mrs. Ernest Smith, or other than th the shipment of lowest-type coffee from the plantations. Later, accord-ing to the local press, other grades will be banned until stocks are made will be canned until stocks are made comparable to the grades of Colom-blan and other coffees. Brazil then can go to the world markets with a type of coffee equal to the best. The coffee situation is the key to economic conditions throughout Brazil. Sao Paulo, for instance, devoted itself to coffee for years and the Paulistas were the richest residents of the republic. Fewer American motor cars are being sold and all luxury business from abroad is about at, a standatill.

The provisional government early prohibited the importation of silk, ivory and similar articles, seriously hitting the French. In retaliation, France recently denounced its commercial agreement with Brazil and may put an import tax on coffee from this country. Importers Dodge Risks

Figures for the first quarter of this year, the latest available, show that Brazil's exports fell off 37 per cent from the same period of 1930, and that imports dropped 44 per cent. In American dollars the exports this year were, approximately, $65,000,000 as against $105,000,000,000 in 1930, Imports this year were $80,000,000, as re house guests of Dr. and Mrs. Fink Cole and little daughter, Norma Jean, of Enid, Okla., Simports this year were $80,000,000, as re house guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. OF CONCENTRATES

Purchase of California Grape Beverage Basis Growing By Leaps and Bounds-Boon to Grower

SAN PRANCISCO—(UP)—Despite reported threats of Al Capone and protests of ardent prohibitionists, sales of grape concentrates, a byproduct of California wine grapes sold for making "grape beverages" in the home, are increasing trementations. Donald Conn. managing director of a grape concentrate cooperative, said today.

The concern, a nation-wide merger of similar firms now organized as a growers' cooperative, first started marketing concentrates in Milwaukee two years ago. Despite warnings of wine and beer selling gangsters not to enter Chicago, merchandising in that and other cities of the east followed swirtly Marketing in California was started this year.

of the enat followed swiftly Marketing in California was started this year.

Attacked by prohibitionists for selling products which could be mide into wine and at the same time borrowing from the Federal Farm Board, the cooperative countered with the statement that it has never used the word wine, never referred to it and only sold a product designed for the manufacture of grupe beverages in the home.

A grape juice in the same form as when the grapes are crushed and blended for certain wine flavors, constitutes the bulk of the sales. Cann said. The new products soid in cans, forming a concentrated syrup, were recently placed on the market and are rapidly gaining in flavor, according to Conn. The syrup is diluted by the consumer to make his 'bevrage.'

Just Whalesalling

Conn revealed that his concern now has given up the retail distribution of the concentrates, finding it more profitable to act as wholesaler only, with the retailing done by drug stores, grocers and chain stores.

The concern plans within the next three years to increase the sales until they will be a profitable outset for the entire surplus of California's $360,000,000 grape industry. No figures were given showing the amount of concentratees now being marketed.
