POLICE JAIL FIVE FOR RUM, FORGERY

Three men were arrested last night for alleged liquor possession and transportation, police reported.

J. E. Day and Clifford Aman, living on West 13th street, were arrested when a 10-gallon keg of liquor was found in their possession. They are said to have poured part of it out before they were caught.

A. B. Kirkland, 741 West Jackson, is charged with transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor. He was arrested downtown when three gallons of moonshine was found in the great outdoors, reflecting an invitation to all in pursuit of education.

Hearings are expected to be held Monday morning in Judge Taylor's court.

F. Johnson and John Bauer were arrested for forgery after they were alleged to have passed a check at a grocery store. Both men told police they were from Klamath Falls.

They purchased groceries and gave the check for $6.19 signed by Johnson in payment. The clerk later became suspicious and arrest of the pair followed shortly.

EXTEND TIME FOR BABY SHOW ENTRY

The close of baby registrations in the American Legion Auxiliary Baby show, which was originally scheduled for August 5th, has been extended to Saturday, August 15th. The extension of time for baby registrations was made necessary by the large numbers of baby registrations which are being received at the headquarters from the towns throughout the county.

Two hundred and eighty-four official entries have been made to date, and plans are being completed for an eventual entry list of close to three hundred and fifty babies.

Due to the last-minute rush of entries and to the extension of registration time, the baby beauty and health shows will be held one week later than was first planned. The baby show offices at 412 E. Main st. will be open daily for new entries until August 15th.

Recent additions to the show include: Gertrude J. Medley, Kay Cole, Joan Blunkall, Donald Blunkall, Patricia Marks, Ruth Selton, Caroline Wynore, Phyllis Hart, Oreta Hardman, Ronald Quackenbush, Jeannine Ryan, Colleen Ryan, William McKinney, Maxine McKinney, Barbara Canooce, Raymond Dalton, Barbara Earl, Helen Schumaker, Jacqueline Franklin, Sammie L. Medford's New $210,000 Senior High Building Near Completion. Home Labor and Materials Used

Covering more than one and a fourth acres of ground, surrounded by giant oaks, whose very branches seem to convey welcome to students, Medford's $210,000 senior high school building at the corner of Oakdale and Dakota streets, today awaits the end of the week and completion.

It displays an unpretentious exterior of conservative modern style, which divides its attention to all passerby. Its 450 windows, opening to the great outdoors, reflect an invitation to all in pursuit of education.

It represents in material terms: 125,000 tons of steel, 500 yards of concrete material, 18,000 sacks of cement, 35,000 square feet of Nu wood, 110,000 feet of flooring, 55,000 square feet of roofing and the "work, work, work" of many men.

One hundred and ten have been employed by R. I. Stuart and Sons, general contractors, during the peak of the construction work. There are now 70 on the job. The minimum wage for laborers has been $4, the minimum for carpenters $6. Even with this standard, which assures all a fair wage, the building has been constructed at a saving of 20 percent over what could have been accomplished four years ago, school officials stated yesterday.

Between 90 and 95 percent of all labor employed during the construction work was composed of residents or property owners of Medford. Approximately 94 percent of all money paid on the construction for labor has gone to people living in this city or owning property within the district.

In some cases it was necessary to go outside the district for skilled labor in addition to that supplied in the city. On all bidding local mechanics and tradesmen were allowed a margin of five percent over outside firms. All contracts were awarded local bidders with the exception of one. The wiring contract went to Dimitre Company of Portland.

The general contract was awarded R. I. Stuart and Sons. The building was designed by Frank Clark, local architect, with Knighten and Howell of Portland assisting.

Contract for heating went to A. Schmedt, plumbing to Coffeen Bros., sheet metal to the Modern Plumbing, and Sheet Metal Co., plastering and stucco to Joe Brandt, and mill work to Trowbridge Cabinet works.

The painting is being done by the Medford school district with John Lock as foreman. The light fixtures are being furnished by the Peoples Electric store and the Brynllin window shades by Weeks and Orr, telephones by D. N. Bush, and the roof by the Medford Lumber company. Henry Turner is building inspector for the construction.

The Medford school board in whose charge the building has developed since its inception is composed of C. G. Lemmon, chairman, N. H. Franklin, Dr. B. E. Green, M. B. Jarman and Howard Scheffel. Their names with that of the contractor will appear on the bronze plate, which will soon mark the main entrance to the building.

The immense structure, which includes approximately three acres of floor space is built in three units, one devoted to administration and classrooms, of which there are 28; the second to auditorium, which is a little theatre in itself, and the third to gymnasiums.

In addition to the classrooms are store rooms, rest rooms, laboratories, library and reading room. An especially interesting feature is the music room, which is lined with Nu wood, insulation board, which affords favorable acoustics and at the same time prevents the music classes interfering with others in session in neighboring rooms.

Both the new high school and the Washington school buildings are equipped with burners for hot fuel. This provision has been made for two reasons: first, two burners enable the district to save half over the cost of oil and second to help local industry. Fuel for the two buildings has already been purchased and stored for the coming year.

Approaching the building the public views the west side, facing Oakdale. The concrete structure with dashed finish has as its only hint of the ornate, three carvings in cast stone, one appearing over each of the two large entrances, and the third, adding interest to the expense between entrances.

Columns lend dignity to the main entrances, which lead to the first floor. There are 12 other entrances affording access to the building.

The southern entrance, at which the bronze plate will be located, leads into a large hallway, from which stairways incline and auditorium entrance grow.

There are three stairways and one leading to the second floor of the building. All exits have been made fire proof.

The auditorium, a room 60 by 110 feet, has a seating capacity of over 1000. The Nu wood wall covering provides it with most favorable sound conditions and attractive finish.

The stage, which is 35 by 66 feet, is framed in ornamental carvings, adding to decoration without sacrificing the modern appearance of the little theatre. At the back of the seating section is the projection room, which will enable the students to enjoy motion pictures as well as stage presentations within their own realm.

The boys' gymnasium, which is 100 feet square, now has a seating capacity of 800, which can easily be increased to 1200 by the use of knock down bleachers. Each seat in the gymnasium will afford a perfect view of the floor.

Showers, lockers and dressing rooms of the most modern type are provided for both boys' and girls' gymnasiums. The latter is also on the lower floor. It is approached by a stairway, neighboring the boiler room, which resembles a small factory.

The public speaking room, which is on the second floor has a little stage of its own, where all young orators may try out their voices. The windows face the east to afford them the necessary inspiration.

On the same floor is the journalism room and offices of the Hi-Times, over which Alfia Mae Pason will rule as editor of the school daily.

The class room unit, which extends toward the east has been constructed in such a way that additions may be made at any time. The auditorium and gymnasium have been constructed sufficiently in excess of the present need to supply the future demand.

The science department, typewriting, bookkeeping and shorthand departments are located in the southeast wing. The sewing rooms on the first floor are equipped with all requisites of dressmaking. A modern kitchen for the domestic science department is also in this section.

The classrooms are all 22 by 35 feet, the study hall 25 by 40, and the store rooms 20 by 25. Each class room is provided with a book case and teacher's closet.

The rooms in which congestion may occur, are equipped with automatic Sturtevant ventilators.

Wood finishings throughout the building are rich but not vivid, displaying a warmth that borders on gold.

Eleven miles Brogan road from Vale to Lancaster ready for rolling.

Dr. Jouett P. Bray will be in his office on Aug. 10th, to resume practice.

To help the hungry children of miners, said distinctly that feeding American children is not its business. That business is attending to "acts of God."

And you surely can't call "act of God," the speculating, reckless over production and over buying that brought on our depression. You may call it "war result," but God did not start the war.

There comes from the fashionable gambling resorts in France "bad news," that is good news. The gambling casinos are near bankruptcy, because American fools that usually enrich them are at home, worrying, and the money that Russian nobles once squandered in every European gambling hell is now building tractors and planting co-operative farms in Russia.

Dr. France, once senator from Maryland, says he will run for the presidential nomination against Hoover, will win, and promises "not to try to lead the republican party."

That is getting off with the wrong foot. What the people want is someone that WILL lead. Fabre's ring of caterpillars, crawling round and round the top of a stone vase, getting nowhere, because the way home had been cut off, is not the American idea of leadership.

Edward G. Robinson In Stage Gang Hit

"Little Caesar," now showing at the State theatre, gives a startling realistic impression of gangsters, from the lowest "rat," or petty thief, up to the "Big Boy," or heads of gangs.

The story deals with the rise of a gangster named Bico, played by Edward G. Robinson, from the level of a thug to a position as head of a powerful gang.
