SEAL PITCHERS 'DUCK SOUP' IN SERIES OPENER

Portland Wins, 8 to 5, With Bat Barrage — Angels Drub Stars, 13 to 3 — Mission Reds Blank Oaks

By the Associated Press.

Portland took the series opener from San Francisco 8 to 5 as four Seal pitchers paraded to the mound in vain efforts to halt the Beaver scoring attack.

The Seals obtained all their runs in a seventh inning rally but fell short of the number required to win the game or force it into extra innings.

Los Angeles started right out after another series last night and this time the neighboring Hollywood Stars were drubbed 13 to 3.

Seattle's Indians arrived in Sacramento just in time to share the little end of an 8 to 2 game.

The Mission Reds came through with an easy shutout victory over Oakland, taking the Acorns down by a score of 5 to 0. Bert Cole, mission pitcher, held Oakland to six scattered hits.

SALEM KIDS WIN EXHIBITION TILT WITH PORTLAND

Champions of Oregon Legion Junior Baseball Leave for Butte to Play in Northwest Area Finals

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 12.—(AP)—It was a case of too much Zimmerman and Portland's East Side Commercial club baseball junior champions went down before the runner-up Salem boys, 7 to 4, in an exhibition game here yesterday. Harvey Zimmerman of Hillsboro, right-handed twirler, for the second time this summer defeated the local team. He fanned ten of the new state champions and gave not a single walk. His teammates gave him errorless support. Zimmerman was ineligible for duty in the championship series because his name was not included on Salem's original roster.

Oliver Long started for Portland, but was taken out in the fourth inning after a good start and with the score 1 to 0 in his favor, to let Jack

WET FORCES VOTE IN CONGRESS

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Anti-prohibition forces were assured of a one-vote margin as the result of a vote on dates for two congressional districts in the first district, including Cincinnati, the Republican Democrats named David Longworth to fill the congressional seat caused by the death of Longworth. Both Hiram and Longworth are opposed to prohibition. In the 20th district, Martin L. Sweeney, Democrat, assured the election to the late Charles A. Moore. Sweeney is an advocate of prohibition.

EXIT by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS: Ironically, the gold Bruce and Colorado Hill had been seeking is discovered in the desert where they first met. The Colorado is a diamond over their water supply. Pierre a witness, plans to bring the money to justice and clear Bruce's father-in-law of a bank robbery and murder to which Bruce had confessed his guilt. But Pierre is so unscrupled on discovering that Colorado is his own father, Roy Donovan, that the man secures his gun. Later deputies bring Roy to Red Butte, where Bruce's wife, Ann, and Tony had come, hoping to persuade Bruce to return home. Bruce's slayer has the stolen bank money, and tells of his dealings with Pierre and starting on the desert. Then Pierre staggers in.

Chapter 35
HIS FINAL CUE

"PIERRE!" cried Ann, and there was gladness and love in her voice as she knelt beside him. His eyes were open now. "Pierre, don't you know me—Ann? And here is Father Tony—your Father Tony, Pierre."

They saw the light of recognition come into the deep sunken eyes. He looked wearily from face to face, then back to Ann, and they could see him questioning, thinking, thinking. And then they saw the great soul of Harriet Noel's son regaining its mastery over the des-

SUBSTITUTE A'S ADD PEPPER TO LISTLESS TEAM

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer.

Every so often during the fanning bees this season, the word has gone out that Connie Mack is about ready to break up his current baseball machine and start building a new team of Athletics for the purpose of winning future pennants. He did it, once, and those who believe the present Philadelphia team is nearing the end of the championship road are willing to believe that Mack will repeat that startling experiment.

But the Athletics lineup for the past three weeks indicates that Mack will not have such a long hard pull in rebuilding his team if he does decide to make important changes before next year. For about three weeks the A's have been theoretically crippled. Joe Boley and Jimmy Dykes have been out of action most of the time and a third infield regular, Max Bishop, has missed a good many games. Added to that Mule Haas was hurt, putting a serious kink in the outfield.

In that three weeks, however, the Athletics have won 15 games and lost seven, proving that Mack has some substitutes who can go along winning games in the accepted Athletic manner. Dibs Williams and Eric McNair have served well in the infield and Jimmy Foss has been able to move over to third when it was required while Roger Cramer is showing up well in the outfield.

The trio of "substitutes" was in behind Lefty Grove yesterday and helped produce an 8 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first game of the western tour. Grove did his

SCHAAF AWARDED TECHNICAL KAYO IN FIFTH FRAME

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Ernie SchAAF, a slow thinker but a very fast puncher, has boosted his pugilistic prestige another notch by winning a technical knockout last night over Angus Snyder of Dodge City, Kan., in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

The towering slugger, who after years of lackadaisical campaigning, crashed into the circle of topnotchers only a few months ago when he learned that his long right arm carried the sleep that means victory, piled into Snyder with the going to depict some very discouraging shots. SchAAF sprang at him in the fifth, straightened him up with a left and then curved a right to the jaw that spilled Snyder on the canvas. He rose to his feet at the count of nine, only to reel into a smash that again settled him on the floor. He was struggling, gamely but futilely, to rise and face the slaughter again when referee Johnny Martin stopped the fight and awarded it to SchAAF on a technical knockout.

With Rod and Gun

The question of the angler's right to become a commercial fisherman is arising again. Last year many fishermen visited the mouth of the Umpqua and were not satisfied with their limit catches of these fish, so took out commercial licenses to enable them to increase greatly the number taken from the river.

The commercial fishermen did not like this and immediately got out an injunction and took the question to court. The court ruled that commercial fishing was legal only when nets are used to take the fish from the river.

The commercial fishermen maintain that anglers, who fish on commercial licenses, give away the excess of fish and spoil the market.

This year's game code states that salmon shall not be taken from the river on rod and line in numbers to exceed the provision of angling licenses. In other words there will be no more commercial licenses granted sportsmen.

The angling population of course does not welcome this decision and many persons, who had planned to visit the Umpqua and return with great catches of salmon, will have to return to other sport or confine their catches to the proverbial three.

Pierre stepped backward, staggered and fell.

ert-tortured body and the bewildered and tormented brain. His voice came thick and harsh through his cracked and swollen lips: "Where am I?"

It was Jimmie Harrigan who answered joyfully: "Sure and ye are back in Red Butte, me lad, safe and sound after cooing" through what no other man has ever yet come through and lived to tell about it.

"Red Butte?" said Pierre. He looked at the sheriff, "Who are you?"

"I'm Sheriff Billings, son, but don't worry, my boy, everything's all right."

He stooped to put a glass of water to the parched lips. Instantly the thirst-tortured body asserted itself. The talonlike hands clutched the glass with desperate eagerness. An insane animal light flashed in the deep-set eyes; strange sucking, animal sounds came from the parched throat.

"Steady, boy!" said the sheriff, "steady. Just a little at a time does it. You can have some more in a few minutes, and pretty soon all you want."

His strong hand removed the glass from that despairing grip, and put it out of sight.

Once more the boy looked from face to face, and as he rested his gaze on Ann, they saw the Pierre Donovan, who lived within this flesh that was so near to death, asserting himself. They saw but did not understand that Harriet Noel's actor son was about to play still another part. They did not know that as he lay there looking into Ann's face, Pierre Donovan, the actor, was visualizing the character which for love of her he must create.

Acting this new role, he said in a stronger, clearer voice: "There is something I must tell you, Ann."

"Not now, dear. Wait until you are stronger."

"No, I must tell you now. I can't wait."

For a moment he was silent and they could see that he was arranging his thoughts and calling on the scant physical strength that was left to him.

"You remember that night we
