Ye Smudge Pot

The northeastern sky last night was full of shooting stars, and were viewed by many people...

The economic situation is being helped out no end, by tax mad gens who, when not indulging in miscellaneous lying, pout ferociously...

FOR SALE - Leaving town. 1929 Sport Model A Coupe. Rumble seat.

The upstate press is assiduously explaining why the American Legion delegates at the state convention at Corvallis, so wholeheartedly and throatily extended to the mayor of Portland an avalanche of catcalls...

OH YEAH! (Albany Democrat-Herald) But a girl may have a face that is a mere scramble of features...

Does anybody know how the Oregon branch of the Communist party is making it?

Henry French of E. Pt., a farmer, towned yesterday and did not act and talk like his lower 40 was the scene of an Armenian massacre...

The story, with affidavits, recounting how a fast-thinking Jackson county politician completely fooled an Oregon governor with a fake telephone conversation, would make good reading.

Local democrats who last fall were weaned away from their own candidate, when he had a chance to win, by effective hokum promising to abolish electric bills on the 1st inst., have started talking about a change in the White House and the local postoffice.

The dear hunting season opens September 30, and it will be illegal to shoot a hunter for a member of the alces cervus family, or before that date.

The depression sure squashed the local distribution of parlor stories, by bon hommie bon vivants.

We have no sympathy for the Astoria citizens who managed to get hornsawed by a Filipino slicker named A. Ferguson Flores.

HOG CALLING ENDORSED There is no more need for a lengthy discussion of republican corruption, as was indulged in in the 1924 platform...

Ralph Budd Has the Right Idea

RALPH Budd, head of the Great Northern, brings some cheering news to Oregon. The construction of the new line from Bend to San Francisco is far ahead of schedule.

By Christmas freight trains will be operating, and the following spring, there will be through passenger traffic from St. Paul to the Golden Gate.

The president of the Great Northern is too busy to worry over the fate of the rate increase, and too busy to join the mourners at the wailing post.

He calls attention to the fact the banks on the coast are full of money—the greatest total in savings deposits in recent history.

SUCH words of encouragement and optimism, coming from a man like Ralph Budd are particularly reassuring.

There are two general types abroad at the present time. On one side the quitters and squawkers, who do nothing but wail and mourn...

Mr. Budd belongs to neither group. He is essentially a man of courage, of vision and of action.

What he says, therefore, can't be dismissed as only another twitter from the Pollyanna chorus about "prosperity being just around the corner."

THE big thing about Mr. Budd is that he backs up his words with deeds, while some are grousing and others are hitting the pipe of make-believe.

It is too bad there are not more men like President Budd, and more railroads like the Great Northern.

No Time to Step On It

IN THE past few months we have frequently called attention to the fact that this is no time to play with matches or rock the boat.

There are two time-honored American sayings which we would like to see revived in this community, and every other, namely:

"Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes," and "Trust in the Lord and keep your powder dry."

WALK up and down Main Street, and you can hear all sorts of wild reports, rumors and accusations.

As a result, a heavy obligation rests upon the leaders in this community, in particular, and upon the rank and file in general.

THERE are dangers, no doubt, there are injustices and abuses and always have been. But the way to meet the first, and the way to eliminate the second is not by wild talk or ill-considered action...

Whether it is the county health unit, or local labor or something else, only harm can result from adopting the slogan of the old-fashioned speed eop "SHOOTING FIRST AND INVESTIGATING AFTERWARD."

Investigate first, and nine times out of ten—999 times out of a 1000—no SHOOTING WILL BE NECESSARY.

A statesman is a man who does foolish things to hold his job so he can do a few wise things.

Americanism: Clamoring for state rights, yelling for the government to lend a hand.

No cause is stronger than the truth in its propoganda.

Talks To Parents

ENCOURAGING SPEECH. By Alice Judson Pease. At about the age of two, the average child is acquiring new words every day.

When the child points to an object or cries for it, he should be taught to say its name.

At the time when he first becomes interested in trying to say real words, it is important that those about him should speak simply and clearly and try patiently to interpret his efforts to make himself understood.

Two and a half year old Anne was reduced to tears because her mother did not understand her repeated efforts to say the word "thrush."

An hour later, tense and anxious, she came to her mother saying, "Anne knows all the words, doesn't she, mother?"

Sensitive children readily get a feeling of defeat if their efforts to pronounce new words are laughed at or misunderstood.

I have seen many "modern" high schools but I have never seen one well planned for efficiency.

Some children are so interested in running, jumping, climbing, manipulating, looking and listening, that they do not become interested in words until much later than usual.

Attempts to compel them to speak before they are interested in doing so, serve only to build up resistances which may prevent them from learning until long after they otherwise would.

When the child points to an object or cries for it, he should be taught to say its name.

Once he has learned he should not be permitted to use the old baby method of pointing and crying.

Praises High School To the Editor: After a tour of the new high school building on South Oakdale by the Rotary club today, it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that after school begins a half day ought to be set aside for open house.

SUNDOWN STORIES

By Mary Graham Bonner. Peggy and John were very much pleased that they had learned a new word, and afterward when either of them acted in a dull, gloomy fashion the other would say: "You're in the doldrums."

And how well they remembered that as they had sailed a way in the vessel with the Little Black Clock and the captain and his men that the part of the ocean they had avoided—the part where the winds did not blow and where vessels were becalmed.

And the Little Black Clock had explained to them how the shape of this part of the ocean kept the winds out.

Once again the Little Black Clock had turned the time back, and they were on an old sailing vessel—but a different one.

"I had to turn the time back a good distance," the Little Black Clock said, "so you could appreciate the trade winds which are helping this boat we are on—just as they helped the last boat upon which we traveled."

"In our day, with modern machinery, they are not of much value, but in the olden days they meant everything to sailing vessels."

"Trade winds blow in a certain direction, north and south of the equator and help ships traveling west as we are doing. If I turned the time further back we could hear how some of the earlier sailors regarded these trade winds."

"Oh, let's do that," urged John. "Shall I?" inquired the Little Black Clock, and he used his magic to turn it back still further for their next adventure, for they were on a boat that looked more old-fashioned than the one before.
