Six Rings Now Necessary For Fashionable Women; Lingerie Favors Empire

By Jane Eads.
NEW YORK, Aug. 27—(AP)—Pa... risian women are buying their rings by the half dozen this season. It is high fashion to wear six rings of matching line—three on each hand.
Semi-precious stones—coral, tur... quoise and jade, with sometimes lapis lazuli and topaz added—are worn.
Lingerie has gone Empire. Cost... ume slips are modeled on princess lines with embroidered tops and lace flounces. Chemise and step-ins are similarly influenced and gowns are so finely finished as to be proper for an afternoon tea. They have ribbons, sashes, lace incrustations and little puffed sleeves, long full skirts and modest lines.
Persian green, Caroub brown and Persian red, three colors chosen by a leading French designer, are being sponsored by the Retail Millinery Association of America for the fall season.
All that glitters this winter will not be gold. Evening gowns of sheerest chiffon, all-over embroi... dered in crystal, have a dazzling frostiness, while colored sequins are favored for wraps and gowns.
Many dresses have suit-like lines and are particularly adaptable for the first puffy days of October.
Some are modeled like coats with huge buttons in double breasted ef... fect and wide belts fastened with metal buckles. One has a detach... able bolero worn over a sleeveless blouse.
Muffs, quaint details of the old... fashioned silhouette, will be worn.
One had a spray of cockfeathers falling over the front, casting off a luscious sheen of green, purple and red tones. It matched a little tri... corn hat that almost "crowd" it so greatly resembles the bird whose feathers it bore.
