Ye Poet's Corner

My Dearie,
A little weak back,
Worn and weary,
But a heart that beats strong
For you, my dearie.

Strong with a love
That makes tired lips smile,
And speak cheery words
For you, my dearie.

Love that strengthens
A body so small,
That the load it carries
Seems nothing at all.

Another little woman,
Once worn and weary,
Gave just such love
To me, my dearie.

When I think of the fortitude
With which it was given,
It seems it must have been
Sent from heaven.
—Margaret Nealon Wilson.

Celebrating the occasion with him are 150 guests. Invitations have gone out to various cities of the state for the annual event, which is anticipated each year by persons, who have attended previous birthday dinners at which Grandpa Holst was host. Mr. and Mrs. George Zimmerman of Marshfield will be among the guests from coast points, Medford, Central Point and all leading communities of the valley will be represented. his daughter, Mrs. Max Shultz, and Mr. Shultz, eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. They are: Mortimer Holst, Irene Hollenbeck, Glen Holst, Henrietta Carter, Paul Shultz, Gladys Koger, Rosie Shultz, and Leona Shultz. Three great grandchildren are Leroy Carter, Bobbie and Shirley Ann Koger.

Mr. Holst has lived in the Sams Valley district for about 28 years. Before that time he made his home in the Dry Creek district near Medford for a series of years.

He was born in Germany and still retains many characteristics and customs of his native country. He writes poetry in German, is a great student of the Bible, and surrounds himself with works of beauty. Flowers and pictures are his hobbies. He has lived alone since Mrs. Holst died about 13 years ago but he continues to keep his gardens and house in beautiful order.

Wall hangings, hand woven by Mrs. Holst, wax flowers, fancy pillows, picture frames and many articles, reflecting a past vogue in house furnishings give character to his home. He is a friend of youth and every graduation at the Sams Valley schools finds him remembering each participant with a gift and his best wishes.

CALIFORNIA LINE FLAMES IMPERIL TOWN AND CREWS

Modoc County Blaze Fanned By High Wind Sweeps 2,000 Acres In Day—Long Haul For Water.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Reported under control Friday, the Fox flat fire just over the California line in Modoc county leaped barriers today and forced the firefighters to move their camps hurriedly.

The fire was reported spreading rapidly before high winds. It had burned over 2000 acres in the past 24 hours.

About seven hundred men were on the fire line. All available men in Modoc county and the entire steel-laying crew of the Great Northern was mustered for the battle.

The flames were reported bearing down on the little town of Adin. Water must be hauled about ten miles to the fire crews.

'LEG OF MUTTON' SLEEVE SLATED IN FALL STYLE

Variation of Old Offered by Paris Designers—Skirts Will Be Slightly Higher Coming Season.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(UP)—Redfern has an entirely new interpretation of the leg of mutton sleeve. It creates the impression of a somewhat full sleeve at the shoulder, having been hung up on a clothesline by two clothespins right at the tip where it joins the shoulder so that when it is taken down the two little peaks still remain where it was pinned to the line.

Now is this a bad effect. It gives a square line to the shoulder, which is approved by Patou, who creates the effect of broadening the shoulders instead of attacking the armpits. Redfern introduces a new blue called "Bleu de Paris," which is one of those practically impossible to describe because it is between a royal blue, a pencil and electric shade, neither sapphire, nor yet a turquoise—it is simply "Bleu de Paris" and that is all one can say about it.

Skirts slightly higher. Skirt lengths seem slightly higher than elsewhere for street and daytime wear, and only ankle length for the majority of evening gowns, a few granting the floor and one or two trains, but only for extremely formal moments.

Few ruffles, volants, or any of the other tendencies pointing to the past appear in the Redfern collection, and nothing ever hides or detracts the attention from the slimness of the silhouette. Sequin bands in black down the side of a white evening gown, resembling the satin stripe down the trousers of a man's tuxedo, was commented upon freely.

Captain Molyneux took his stand for a definite, but subtle influence of the 1920 epoch, adapting it to life for the modern woman, thus eliminating all forms of exaggeration. For the daytime gown will be his prevailing color, from the darkest bottle green to bright emerald. He says he also will use two greens in the same model. Black, here, is as chic as always, and is combined with green and other colors very smartly.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Norman McLeod, Pittsburgh, Penn., was elected president of Delta, Tau fraternity at its national convention here today. B. Jordan, Tampa, Fla., won the prize for coming the longest distance to the convention. You can buy Lady B's pies and cakes at Alexander's Grocery.

D. A. R. News

The first regular meeting of Orater Lake chapter D. A. R., will be held Saturday, Sept. 19 at the home of Mrs. W. D. Welch, 115 Mistletoe street.

During the past week the program committee finished the work of getting all material ready for the printers and the books will be ready for distribution at the first meeting. The publicity committee held a meeting the past week, and its work for the year outlined.

Wednesday afternoon the committee appointed to collect historical data and mark historical spots met. A scrap book is to be made so that all manuscripts and newspaper clippings bearing on the early history of southern Oregon may be preserved.

If any one has any material which he is willing to have preserved in this way, he is asked to send it to Jane Snedeker, Medford Bldg., Medford, Ore. If one wishes original manuscripts or clippings returned the committee will be glad to have copies made and will return the originals.

The membership committee met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Helen Snedeker for a luncheon meeting. The committee hopes that any one who is eligible or thinks she is and wishes to join the Daughters of the American Revolution, will get in touch with the regent, Mrs. J. O. Grey or Mrs. Snedeker.

The following poem was written by Mrs. Alice Applegate Sargent recently.

"A Tribute to the Fifteen Pioneers Who Built the Old South Road in 1840."

They climbed the mountains through forests dark,
Braved terrors the desert had;
The swollen tongues, the bleeding lips,
The thirst which drives men mad.

But they opened the road to the sunset red,
Then the covered wagons came,
And these valiant men, though they knew it not,
Had climbed the ladder to fame.

Then the covered wagons followed on
Wherever the wilderness led,
And grateful immigrants knelt to pray
In the light their campfires shed.

They have traveled the road to the great unknown,
These heroes, whose tale I tell;
They sleep at last in their long, long sleep,
In the land they loved so well.

Brisbane's Today (Continued from Page One)

with it, and if there should be proof of it, that would be bad for the Chicago union, and for other unions. Pushing racketeer-gangster methods to the extent of bombing theatres filled with women and children is something that Mr. Capone probably would not approve.

In New York, public schools, wisely, will probably postpone opening day because of infantile paralysis.

"When in doubt, refrain" is sound advice. But how children get infantile paralysis, nobody knows exactly. Fortunately, it is proved that a serum, made from the blood of patients that have recovered, and the patients may be monkeys, will save children's lives.

Dealing with such a mysterious disease, you are reminded of Upton Sinclair's anecdote about the man down south, determined not to get yellow fever. He stood outside the store until everybody had left it, then entered to do his purchasing. While he was outside, a mosquito bit him, and give him yellow fever.
