The Oregonian, editorially, holds that it takes air years to produce a reporter, but only a week or ten days to produce a Journalist, if his pants are pressed and he can look wise. The metropolitan daily is ultra-conservative, in the length of time required. A journalist is not worth his uired. A journalist is not worth his sad pencil unless he has been a fixele at teaching, preaching, and blacksmithing. The last newspaper census of Oregon, there were 93 jour-nalists confined within the state, in the manner speaking. They centered in the Portland area, with a handful as the seats of higher learning.

Perfectly Insane!

HARRY F. POWERS, matrimonial bureau grafter and whole sale murderer, having confessed his diabolical crimes, will now offer insanity as his defense.

Of course, when a murderer has no defense, he falls back ipon the insanity plea, and the country will now be offered the elevating spectacle of one group of high-priced alienists, swearing the defendant is sane; and another group swesring he is insane.

Here is one glaring defect in our system of criminal procedure, which one would think could be speedily corrected.

Laws against crime are designed primarily for the protection of society. It seems to us a self evident fact, that from this standpoint, insanity should never be a defense, any more than drunkenness should be a defense.

IN FACT, there is every justification for the contention, that the homicidal maniac is a greater menace to society, than the sane and deliberate murderer, for the former may kill, at any time, without reason or provocation; while the latter, at least, can be depended upon to do his dirty work, with some regard for reason and common sense.

A MURDERER, SANE OR INSANE, SHOULD BE PLACED WHERE HE CAN MURDER NO MORE. That should be an invariable rule. If it were, then this nauseating practice of every murderer who has no defense to offer,-who admits the crime—falling back upon the insanity plea, would be done away with, and the effort to stamp out violent orime, would advance

The Good Old Days?

NOT so very long ago, interesting news features were built around the contrast between the prevailing cost of living, and the cost of living half a century ago.

The days of 10-cent eggs and 5-cent milk aroused as much wonderment and speculation, as a contemplation of the early '90 styles, when men wore tight pants and silk toppers, and women leg of mutton sleeves and bicycle bloomers.

The gentle reader sighed over those departed days, when one dollar would buy enough for three square meals, instead of representing a 10-cent tip for only one.

We are indebted to Professor Elmer E. Johnson, instructor of political economy in the New York preparatory school, for similar feature story, only it treats the subject with reverse English,-showing how much more a dollar will buy today than would back in 1882.

Eggs and milk have not changed so startlingly, but flour and sugar have. Here is the professor's table:

Two Little Words

THE failure of Dr. Willing of Portland to even qualify for the national amateur, in which he was the runner-up two years at Pebble Beach, is worth a word—in fact two many the planners have the ago at Pebble Beach, is worth a word-in fact, two words

Word number one: Don Moe should have represented Oregon in this tournament instead of Dr. Willing. Don won the western amateur title, and had been playing better golf all season than his fellow townsman. Obviously the winner of the western amataeur, next in importance to the national, should be allowed to at least ENTEL the qualifying round of the latter, rather than the man he had defeated.

Word number two: There is something seriously wrong with the heads of those who control the policies and practices of the amateur golf association in this country. They should be examined by a board of alienists, and either sent to Mattewan or be given their walking papers.

The rules adopted for this year's tournament were, from the standpoint of good sportsmanship, SIMPLY OUTRAGEOUS. The northwest was particularly discriminated against. As has been pointed out, there are more good amateur golfers in Portland alone than in the entire middle west. And yet the entire northwest was only allowed three entries, while the middle west was allowed eight or ten times as many.

Had the golf overlords any sense of fair play or good sportsmanship they would have waived the rules, at least as far as Moe is concerned, and given the winner of the western amateur an invitation to enter the national.

But while this was suggested to them, nothing was done.

Golf is a great game, and the national amateur one of the country's most thrilling sporting events.

But unless the association submits to a gen_ral housecleaning soon, and gets some men in control with better horse sense. the sport will suffer a loss of prestige and popularity from which it will take years to recover.

The larvae attach themselves to the skin of the feet of the person who makes the mistake of going barefoot in a region where the soil is so polluted. They produce wins is commonly called "ground itch," "dew itch" or "toe litch." Some of the larvae penetrate the skin of the feet and are carried through the circulation from the point of penetration (usually between the toes) to lodge in the duodenum (upper part of the intestine) just beyond the lower gateway of stomach. They cover the route in perhaps two weeks' time, and in that interval no symptoms are produced (except the toe itch), though sometimes the victim develops broncho-pneumonia.

In the United States, or more particularly in our southern states where climate, weather, soil conditions and the sanitary or unsanitary habits of the people of the community favor hookworm infestation, the majority of cases occur in children under 15, for after that age children are less likely to go barefoot, or perhaps they earn enough to buy a pair of shoes. The child labor evil is still prevalent in some of our southern communities.

Hookworm infestation may occur from drinking water polluted by the excrement of one who has the disease or by eating soild food, such as fresh vegetables or fruits which have been so contaminated. The common mode of infestation, however, is throw— kin of the feet and the best prevention is the weating of impervious footwear, shoes and atockings in dry weather, rubber boots when the soil is wet.

CRUELTY—A SYMPTOM

Our unthinking response, when we

Perhaps we even try to make him see how dreadful his behavior was by making him suffer in a similar man-diate situation, but it does not curb the child's desire to be cruel. Indeed. if we indulge in retaliation, we are likely to make him more cruel than Deliberate cruelty on the part of a child who is old enough to realize fully what he is doing is almost always a sign that he is suffering from feelings of suppressed hate and resentment towards somebody with whom he is in close daily contact. whom he is in close daily contact.

A harsh, unsympathetic father fills his child with feelings of resentment and antagonism. Because he does not dare express them directly, he takes them out on the first helpless being that comes his way.
