

FUHAT BURKAN IS ARABIC SPELLING FOR CRATER LAKE

In speaking of the biennial convention of the Dramatic Order of the Knights of Khorassan, held at Cincinnati, Ohio, last month, R. G. Beach, who attended as delegate from Fuhat Burkan temple of Medford, incidentally mentioned a fact not generally known or else forgotten, that the odd appearing name of that temple is Arabic for Crater Lake.

When the temple was organized years ago the charter members thought it would be the proper thing in selecting a name, to honor and advise Crater lake, and obtained the information from one of the higher educational institutions of the state that the name Crater Lake would be Fuhat Burkan.

The D. O. K. K. convention was very successful and largely attended by temples from all parts of the nation, though like all other national fraternal gatherings the past six months, not so well attended as previous conventions because of the nationwide depression.

One odd thing about the Cincinnati convention was that the big parade had to take place in the afternoon instead of at night, as previously scheduled, because of an ordinance of that city forbidding night parades.

Three temples, one from Winnipeg and another from Texas, which had made preparations months ahead for beautiful and elaborate electric marching displays, which would be the most spectacular feature of the convention, marched in the afternoon parade minus their electrical displays.

UNIQUE GRADER EASY ON FRUIT

The first combination pear and apple grader to be manufactured in the northwest is now in use and operation at the packing plant of Newberry & Sons at Phenix. It is a product of the Outlier Manufacturing company of Portland, and is so built as to give perfect and uniform sizing, and at the same time afford the minimum of protection from bruises, even of the most thin-skinned varieties of pears.

The grader is equipped with rotary bins, eight on a side, with a capacity of seven packed boxes, and under no circumstances will the fruit pile up in the bin. The pears or apples slide into the bins, without a drop of any kind. As the bin is filled it is automatically lowered.

The grader has attracted wide attention from local growers and packers.

COLOR PAGES FOR WEEK IN TONIGHT

Color pages printed in last Friday's issue of the Mail Tribune, must be in the offices here not later than seven o'clock this evening, in order to compete for the prizes which are given each week.

Names of the boys and girls who win the various awards will be announced in the Saturday afternoon edition of the Mail Tribune.

A large number of children in the city have brought their color pages in, and received their candy bars. Many of the boys and girls who live in the country and other towns in southern Oregon where they receive the Mail Tribune, have been mailing their sheets to the office.

ELKS TO PLAN EVENT FOR OCTOBER SESSION

The Elks lodge will conduct its meeting for September this evening in the temple on Fifth and Central streets, according to Exalted Ruler R. E. Kooser. The meetings have been held only once a month during the summer.

October first, when the next meeting after tonight will be held, is to mark the resumption of their winter activities. Exalted Ruler Kooser and other officers of the order are making plans for an initiation at the October meeting, and a large banquet and entertainment.

LOCAL FIRMS TO HAVE SPECIAL ON PEAR PIES

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary have taken action to further the pear pie campaign originated by the Mail Tribune, and through their efforts pear pie specials will start Saturday at Jarmila and Woods lunch counter in the drug store, Fisher's bakery, and Franklin's cafe.

Business firms in the city seemed quite anxious to do their part in aiding local consumption of the fruit, according to the report, and it is expected that the pies will prove popular at the eating establishments.

Gas Plays Part in Tribune Equipment

An error was made in the story of the new press in Tuesday's Mail Tribune. The paragraph should have read: "The 'mat' is then curved upon a gas heated cylinder known as 'the scorching' which dries every particle of moisture in the mat.

Old Washington School Bell Is Given New Role

(By Eva Nealon)

Supported by the same stones which formed the foundation of the building from which it sounded the hour for school through 35 long years—the old Washington bell, today, is still.

It does not swing with powerful stride from its socket, nor thrill to the stroke of its clapper. It can not urge onward the laggard nor shame the tardy, but awaits in silence the approach of thirty children at the new school grounds on Peach and Dakota streets.

It is only a fountain now and plays no part in the passing of time. Morning, noon and night it marks only with its changing shadow.

Gong Supplants Bell. An electric gong, which confines its echo, to the school and does not "wake the babies of the neighborhood," calls the children to their books and releases them from duty, supplanting the ding dong of the old bell.

Charles Pfeister, one of the few remaining followers of the art of stone masonry, laid the stones for the fountain. He laid them first in 1898 as corner stones in the foundation of the Washington school, recently razed at Main and Oakdale. The words "Public School" carved in the stones then, are still in evidence in the arrangement of the fountain.

The bell carries its original engraving, "Medford Public Schools, 1895." And its 600 pounds rest heavily upon the stone and concrete which support it.

Commemorates School. The fountain designed by Frank Clark, local architect, is erected as a marker and to commemorate the old Washington school for which many citizens of Medford, who received their first education there, hold the greatest affection.

Its base is four and a half feet square, made of the foundation stones which rise to a concrete table, constructed by Wm. Maulsby. The concrete has been molded and tooled to resemble the stone. In the center of the table the old bell is placed, leaving an octagonal arrangement, four corners of which support the polished copper bowls of the fountain. The plumbing has been done by the Modern Plumbing and Sheet Metal company.

Improvements Hurdled. The fountain stands under the walnut tree affording the hurrying children shade with their drinks. Other improvements of the Washington grounds are progressing rapidly for the opening of school next Tuesday. Small concrete walks are being built at both the Washington and new senior high school grounds. Most of the walks, however, will be of temporary wooden construction, utilizing lumber from the old Washington school, Supt. E. H. Hedrick said yesterday.

These walks are being built to give the earth time to settle where the grading and leveling has been done, before the concrete is laid.

B. P. W. CLUB WINS SPEAKER'S PRAISE AT SESSION TODAY

The destiny of the world is controlled by its womanhood. G. W. Newberry, president of the Medford Business college, told members of the Business and Professional Women's club today in an inspirational talk at the regular luncheon at the Hotel Holland.

"Man would never do anything, alone," Mr. Newberry explained. "In the beginning he did nothing. Eve had to suggest the apple to Adam. It has been that way all through life. Women can inspire men to whatever heights they desire. And they can, accordingly, drag them to the lowest depths."

Woman's influence in the business world, Mr. Newberry described as a very beneficial one.

"Be yourselves in business at all times," he told the club members, "and present what you consider your true concepts. There is a field for organized business women and I am happy to meet with this group today and as president of the Lions club invite you to meet with our organization at an early date."

The invitation of Edwin L. Knapp, business manager of the Mail Tribune, to visit the plant and view the new tubular press and other equipment installed at the newspaper was presented by Mrs. Alice Coppin. The club members voiced their appreciation of the invitation and plans for visiting the plant in a body were discussed.

The music for today's program at which Mrs. Edwin Weisman, president, presided was furnished by Miss Eleanor Curry, soloist and Miss Genevieve Brown, pianist.

BELLVIEW GRANGE TO GIVE DEGREES

BELLVIEW, Ore., Sept. 3.—(Spl.)—Bellview Grange met Tuesday evening. The lecturer's hour, which appeared first, was enjoyed by a large crowd of Grangers and friends. The program was as follows:

Song, by Grangers; monologue, by Mrs. Wade Wallis; poem, Mrs. Hazel Applegate; song by Grangers; playlet, cast including Leslie Kincaid, Dorothy Applegate; Rosa Crofton, Mrs. Nellie Crofton, Walter Longstreth, Mrs. Hilda Welch; closing song by Grangers.

Several names were read for membership. Regular degree work will be put on at the last meeting in October and the first in November. A large class will receive the degree work at that time.

The H. E. committee is preparing the program for September 15.

Those serving on the H. E. committee for next meeting are Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gowanland and Mrs. Jackson Oyger, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Brewer.

Popular dance music furnished by Mrs. Fred Holmes and Leslie Kincaid, and old-fashioned square dance music by the Lindsay brothers, were features of the social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weagant of Talent Grange were guests of the evening.

BUS ROUTES DRAWN BY BOUNDARY BOARD

The school boundary board, consisting of the county school superintendent and the county court yesterday approved of school bus routes for the coming school year.

The longest route approved extends from Missouri, Plate on the Lower Applegate, to Jacksonville, taking in Ruch, Thompson Creek and portions of the Little Applegate, a round-about distance of approximately 50 miles. A route from Jacksonville to Griffin Creek was also approved.

Other routes include the Willow Springs-Gold Hill route, the Sardine Creek-Gold Hill route, the Prospect-Laurelhurst route, the Eagle Point-Brownboro and Eagle Point-Trail routes.

Sixty Cent Silver in Sixty Days Is Solon's Prediction

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 3.—(AP)—"Sixty cent silver 60 days from today," is the prediction of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of a sub-committee of the senate foreign relations committee studying the white metal problem.

Addressing a banquet of the Northwest Mining association here last night, Senator Pittman said President Hoover would call an international conference on rehabilitation of silver values within 30 days.

"Within 30 days after such a conference," he added, "silver will be back to pre-war prices, 60 cents an ounce, and mines will be reopening throughout the country."

CHILEAN SAILORS SEIZE WARSHIPS TO ENFORCE PAY

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Acting President Manuel Trucco struggled to set up a new government today in the face of reported threats that the "revolving fleet" at Coquimbo might turn its guns on the nation.

The cabinet resigned late last night and Senator Trucco asked former Postmaster General Marcela Mora to form a new ministry. A special session of congress was called to decide on a state of siege against the rebels. Shortly thereafter strict censorship was clamped on news dispatches.

COQUIMBO, Chile, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Six fighting ships of the Chilean fleet were in the hands of mutinous crews today and their officers were being held prisoners until the government agrees to cancel scheduled reductions in pay.

A group of non-commissioned officers were directing the fleet's activities in the harbor from the bridge of the flagship La Torre. They have issued an ultimatum calling on the government to abandon the salary cuts within 48 hours.

The mutiny began early yesterday when the crews overpowered their officers and forced them to sign the ultimatum and forward it to Santiago. Later they returned to their posts and the officers resumed command. Trouble broke out again, however, and the mutineers once more took charge.

Dispatches from Santiago said the cabinet had met and decided to put down the movement with vigor, believing that the entire nation would lend its support.

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 3.—(AP) Allen H. Downen, 62, stage coach robber of the early west and known to the authorities of the '90s as "The Black Phantom," died in the prison hospital of the state penitentiary yesterday after serving 33 years of a life term for murder.

MABLE E. JAMISON OF EAGLE POINT PASSES

Mabel E. Jamison, resident of Eagle Point, passed away at a local hospital at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday after a lingering illness due to cancer.
