PRESBYTERY HOLDS MEET AT ROSEBURG

Meeting of unusual interest was held at Roseburg this week by the Presbytery of Southern Oregon, attended by laymen and ministers from Presbyterian churches extending from Oakland, Marshfield, Reedsport, Gold Beach and Bandon on the north and west to Ashland, Klamath Falls, Merrill and Malin on the south and east, with numerous representatives from intervening points.

Addresses of great interest were given by Dr. E. W. Warrington of the Oregon State college faculty, and formerly pastor at Roseburg, and by Dr. A. B. MacLeod of Grants Pass and formerly at Corvallis. These were on the main theme of "Depriving the Spiritual Life of the Churches," which is now receiving nationwide emphasis.

Steps were taken towards securing permanent grounds and camp site for the annual Young Peoples' summer conferences of this Presbytery which have been so successful for several years. The one held this last summer was attended by about seventy-five, fifty-five of whom were registered for regular attendance in study classes and athletic features for the full week of the conference.

Two other similar conferences of Presbyterian young people are held in Oregon each summer, one at Hillsboro, southeast of Portland, and one in the mountains near Walla Walla.

Plans were set on foot at the Roseburg meeting this week for a day or two's gathering a little later in the fall of all the ministers of the Presbytery for quiet study, prayer and conference, often called a "retreat." This will probably be held at some central point in the Rogue River valley.

One unusual feature of the Roseburg meeting this week was the report made of the death within two months of three of the ministers of this Presbytery. These were Rev. J. Snyder, pastor at North Bend; Rev. E. E. Makisher, a former pastor at Jacksonville, and preaching regularly for over a year past at Port Orford, and Rev. W. McAfee Wilson, a recent pastor at Rogue River, but living lately at Walla Walla.

All these men were well known and much esteemed in Oregon, having served many years in churches over the state. Mr. Snyder had so served for over 37 years, and was instrumental in the erection in most of his pastorates of new church buildings or manse, or both.

Among those in attendance at Roseburg this week from valley and other points were: Elders R. A. Brewer and H. F. W. Spilver of Medford; G. W. Frost of Ashland; Ray Cunningham and C. A. Garnett of Glendale, and E. L. Elliott of Klamath Falls; C. P. May of Marshfield; Henry Schroeder of Myrtle Point; Bartow Hallwell of Roseburg; A. P. Hoagland of Sutherlin; W. C. Hoagland of Reedsport, and Mrs. A. P. Sweet of Port Orford. Mrs. Sweet is one of the few women elders already chosen since the recent action of the Presbyterian church by which women may become regular ordained ruling elders in the local churches.

Ministers attending this week from near Medford were Rev. E. Iverson of Medford; Rev. H. T. Mitchellmore of Ashland; Rev. F. G. Schell of Phoenix; Dr. A. B. MacLeod of Grants Pass; Rev. J. M. Johnson of Central Point; and B. H. Jones of Jacksonville were prevented by illness in their families from going.

The next stated meeting of the Presbytery is to be at Grants Pass in April.

BOY SCOUTS HOLD JAMBOREE OCT. 16

The Boy Scouts will hold their annual Jamboree on Friday, October 16, at the Medford Armory. Plans are complete and the jamboree promises to be the most interesting held in recent years. The competitive events are varied and cover many phases of scout training, giving opportunity for public demonstration. Medford, Grants Pass, and Ashland troops will compete for the cup now held by Troop Five of Medford. Troops will have booths displaying their work in various types of scoutcraft such as leathercraft, bookbinding, woodwork, woodcarving, etc.

As the opening feature a line of scouts, with flags and banners at the head of each troop, will be led in a serpentine march, circling into the center of the floor and out again. Colored lights will be thrown on the line of march. The competitive events include wall scaling, a circle race, lettercraft contest, fire friction, signaling contest, fire by flint and steel, first aid contest, skin the snake, turtle race, and model airplane exhibit. A scout essay on the fourteen-mile hike will be read. This essay may be the same one used by the scout to gain his fourteen-mile hike advancement, or he may take a fourteen-mile hike before the contest closes, writing about his hike in the manner suggested in the handbook. The best paper will be read at the rally. All essays must be at Scout headquarters not later than six o'clock Thursday, October 15. An indoor camp fire will close the evening. This will be made as much as is possible like the outdoor camp fires held each evening at summer camp, with songs and stories as scouts sit around the fire. Honor and satisfactory camper awards will be given to the boys who earned them at camp.

All troops are making preparations for the jamboree, the first of the fall scout activities. A large attendance is anticipated, parents and the public being invited and urged to attend.

BUSINESS COLLEGE TO OPEN MONDAY

Registrations for the fall term of the Medford Business college which opens Monday, September 21 will continue throughout the week according to announcement made yesterday. The past week closed the twelfth year of the college under its present management during which time hundreds of students from Medford and surrounding territory have received training and are now successful workers in the business world both here and in many other cities.

The courses in specialized business training at this school have been revised to keep abreast of the times and offer the same standardized preparation as that available in larger centers of population. Definite objectives as to knowledge and practical skill are set for the student to acquire within an estimated time. An innovation in this field of instruction, offered for the first time this year, is a unique plan wherein each student may earn a discount of ten per cent on his tuition by achieving these objectives.
