What the Girl Scouts Are Doing

Every Girl Scout, no matter how new she is in the organization, is keenly interested in the Golden Eaglet, the highest award of Girl Scouting. Since the Letter of Commendation was discontinued by vote of the national convention last year a logical substitute for this requirement will be found, and the program division has finally worked out the following requirements so that each aspirant for Golden Eaglet must:

1. Be a First Class scout.
2. Be recommended by her Court of Honor and her captain.
3. Have camped for at least two weeks in an approved Girl Scout camp.
4. Have trained a girl scout for the First Class rank, with the exception of proficiency badges and swimming.
5. Hold twenty-one proficiency badges, including the following, athletic, child nurse, cook, dressmaker, first aid, health winner, housekeeper, home nurse, hostess, junior citizen, laundress, pioneer, rambler, swimmer.

Application for this badge must be made to the National Program division through the local Girl Scout office, on a special form obtained there.

I think it would be a very good idea for you Girl Scouts to clip out these requirements and paste them in your Girl Scout Handbook where you will have them as handy reference.
