HOPE OF SPEARS BASED ON GREEN GRID MATERIAL

Only Eleven Lettermen Out for First Practice at Oregon—Bill Morgan Seeking Position in Line

By Frank J. Gorrie. (Associated Press Sports Writer.) EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 21.—(AP)—If an end can play quarterback and a halfback can handle a guard post, and sophomores can play football, the University of Oregon grid eleven will furnish some opposition in the Pacific Coast conference championship race this fall.

Cocher Dr. Clarence Spears, in his second year at Oregon, bases his hopes on green material this season. He found only 11 lettermen available on the first practice day and he figures on doing some experimenting.

In the first place the "Doc" plans to make a quarterback out of Mike Mikulak, a Minneapolis boy who starred as an end on the Oregon freshman team last year.

Mikulak is a big, fast and aggressive griddier and Spears thinks he is made to order for a blocking post at quarter. Under Spears' system a quarterback does a large portion of the blocking, running and interference work.

"Doc" needs a few more tackles and guards, having lost three giants in Austin Colbert, Jerry Lillis and George Christensen, and he is grooming Red Wilson, 182-pound substitute halfback last year, for a guard position. Wilson did well at his new job in spring practice. Captain Irv Schulz is back for one guard job.

Bill Morgan of Medford and Hank Hayden, reserve tackle last year, are on hand for two line places, but several sophomores are giving them a battle.

With Eric Forster, veteran center, and Orville Bailey and Steve Fletcher, regular ends of last season, on hand Spears is well fixed at those important posts.

Backfield Problem. The backfield is the big question mark of the squad. Sophomores are being counted upon to do nearly all of the defensive playing, with "Happy" Joe Lillard, sensational freshman negro of last season, leading the West-foot touchdown parade.

Lillard will likely do the chores handled by the great Johnny Kilmer last year.

Don Wast, a halfback who saw little action last season because of a shoulder injury, is another possible performer provided he is strong enough again. Others in the race for backfield positions included Ed Moeber, Sam Rotenburg and Jack Russell, veteran, and Mark Temple, Leighton Cole, Ray Kelly and Roy Bakarak, sophomores.

The schedule: Sept. 25—Monmouth College at Eugene. Sept. 26—Willamette University at Eugene. Oct. 3—Idaho at Portland. Oct. 10—Washington at Seattle. Oct. 17—Southern California at Los Angeles. Oct. 24—North Dakota at Grand Forks. Oct. 31—New York University at New York. Nov. 14—Oregon State at Eugene. Nov. 21—UCLA at Los Angeles. Nov. 28—St. Mary's at San Francisco.

WALTER JOHNSON

"A catcher like Gabby Street would be worth a million dollars to me," says Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators. "He would mean a pennant." Street and Johnson were battery mates in the "Big Train's" hey-day.

By Alan Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor) No. 7—Johnson On Gabby "Gabby Street," mused Walter Johnson, his old battery mate, "for two years was the greatest receiver I ever saw."

"Golly, how I wish I had his squal in there catching for the Senators today. He'd be worth a million dollars to me. He'd mean a pennant."

Johnson leaned back in the soft cushions of his arm chair and sighed. The Senators had just dropped a tough game to the Athletics. Memories of that "Johnson and Street" battery were particularly sweet at the moment.

"Gabby came with the Senators in 1908, after he hit it off right from the start," went on Johnson. "In 1910 and 1911 he was the greatest receiver I ever saw."

"During that time we pitched out less than any battery in the history of the game, I guess. We never wasted a pitch, never bothered with signals, I just threw them where Gabby held the glove. If we got one run that, was all we needed."

"You don't see Gabby's kind of a catcher any more. He never hit much, but what a receiver he was—big fellow, a perfect target, great arm, slow foot, but sly as a cat on his feet back of the plate, always talking, always hustling, full of pep and fight."

"Gabby was always jabbering, and he never let a pitcher take his mind off the game. When we got in a tight spot Gabby was right out there to talk it over with me. He never let me down."

CHICAGO (AP)—Football fans who like to argue about sectional supremacy will get plenty of debate ammunition from this year's inter-sectional line-up of Big Ten teams.

Fourteen inter-sectional tilts, all with highly-rated opponents, will be played by conference eleven-men at home, five away.

Six are with eastern teams, four with southern outfits, two southwestern schools are listed and two from the Pacific coast.

Indiana and Illinois are the only conference members not taking part in the long-distance battling.

Inter-sectional competition will get started early, with Pittsburg visiting Iowa and the Oklahoma Aggies at Minnesota October 3, the first "big" Saturdays of the season.

BEATED RUSH IN BIG LEAGUES FOR FAVORED PLACES

Final Week Finds Several Teams Jockeying for Position—Gehrig, Ruth Continue Home Run Feud

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer.) With the end of the major league season a week away and the two pennants firmly in the grasp of the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals, there still are several places in the major league standings to be decided in the last seven days.

The National league is in a fairly settled condition with the first three places clinched, but only three of the American league clubs can be sure of where they will finish.

The Yanks' belated rush in one of the season's best winning streaks put New York ahead of Washington for second place on Saturday and kept the McCarthymen there yesterday when each club won a doubleheader.

Home Run Feud Continues. Two second inning rallies, bringing five runs apiece, gave New York a pair of victories over the Cleveland Indians, 7 to 1 and 10 to 4, and enabled Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig to continue their race for home-run honors.

Gehrig hit his 44th homer in the first rally and Ruth clouted his 44th in the second game burst. Pat Caraway of the Chicago White Sox was the victim of Washington's double victory. He pitched the final inning of the opener and was nicked for the run that gave the Senators a 4-3 victory, then relieved Garland for the last four frames of the second game and granted two runs in the seventh that cost him the game, 6-4.

After clinching second place in the National league Saturday, the New York Giants yesterday dropped two games, 16-6 and 7-8, to Chicago, allowing the Cubs to make sure of finishing no worse than third. Brooklyn took a 6 to 1 decision from the seventh that cost him the game, 6-4.

An old familiar name appeared in yesterday's box scores. Gabby Street, the Cardinal manager, who was a big league catcher almost two many years ago to mention, donned a mask for three innings to replace Sylvester Johnson's plitches. The battery was not as successful as Clark and Lopez for Brooklyn and the Robins had a comparatively easy victory as St. Louis got only eight hits.

Keeping things moving for the one really doubtful National league position, the Cincinnati Reds sent the Boston Braves into seventh, behind the idle Phillies, by winning two games, the opener 5 to 2 and the second clash 14 to 5.

HUNTERS WARNED FROM PARK AREA CRATER LAKE NATIONAL PARK, Ore.—(Sp)—Hunters entering the Crater Lake park area during the deer hunting season are warned by park authorities to confine their activities to state owned and national forest lands. Every animal in the park is protected by law, the violation of which at the least will mean a jail sentence.

The park boundaries will be patrolled during the length of the season by rangers who are to make arrests of hunters who have wandered over the boundary or the arrest of persons who may claim they are not hunters, but who are nevertheless carrying unsealed guns.

The boundary is well marked and there will be little excuse for nimrods to hunt in the park. Violators will be brought before William G. Steed, United States commissioner, who promises a jail sentence of not less than thirty days and a minimum fine of $100. The maximum is $500 and six months in jail.

If deer carcasses are properly tagged and conclusive proof is available that the animals were killed outside, it will be permissible to transport them through the park. However, careful investigation will be made of each carcass checked by rangers.

Dixie's first football game of the season was played at Collinsville, Ala., August 28. The Collinsville high team licked the Pisgah high eleven 33-0.

Women's teams at Birmingham, Ala., played the first tenting match for the fair sex ever witnessed in Alabama.

With Rod and Gun

Deer hunting was very successful yesterday judging from the number of horns cars coming into the city last night from several quarters. No reports of buck fever have been brought in as yet but several tales of how "I missed my deer."

The major exodus to the mountains was accompanied by a minor one to the Rogue, several fishermen taking advantage of the absence of the majority to try their luck with the steelhead. They found the river raised a depth of eight inches by the rain, and milky colored. Spinner and single eggs proved the most profitable lure.

The recent rain is expected to bring the silverides up the river. The commercial season will soon close at Gold Beach and then anglers anticipate fine fishing.

Bill Oatman is the first to report the killing of a buck. He returned last night with one which weighed 175 pounds dressed.

Sheriff Ralph Jennings yesterday returned to Medford a little sadder than when he left early in the morning to bring in his buck. During his tramping the officer sighted a beautiful animal, but was unable to hit it.

The only evidence upon their return yesterday that three police officers had been fishing was the numerous "files" on the top of Captain Rexford's cap, which gave one the impression it was a fur hood.

Although State Police Captain Lee M. Bown took Captain Harry Niles, assistant state police superintendent, and Captain Rexford, traffic chief of the Multnomah district, to his favorite fishing haunts, they were unable to prove it was such a wonderful hole.
