

GIVE POOR WORK, NOT MONEY, SAY RED CROSS HEADS

Conference Speakers Urge United Effort — One Agency — Less Gas to Tourists—Large Roll Call

Work—not charity—was emphasized again yesterday afternoon as the immediate need for relief of the poor in the closing session of the fifth anniversary regional conference of the American Red Cross. All speakers of the day urged Red Cross workers from cities of southwestern Oregon and northern California to instruct the public not to give money and food to transient or other members of the great unemployed population without giving them the opportunity to work for the same.

Adoption of a central index system, which will provide for registration of all in need of food and clothing, and keep a record of those giving work in return for what they receive from Red Cross headquarters or back doors, was advised.

Should Have Work. Distribution of gasoline and money to applicants without demanding something in payment, national, Pacific coast and state officials pointed out, only tends to demoralize the needy. To help a man retain his self-respect, they declared, he should be allowed and required to work for what he receives.

Plans for the approaching roll call campaign were given much space on the afternoon program at the Presbyterian church. The drive to be carried on in precincts outside of Medford, which are not included in the community chest will be organized in the near future. Local officials expressed intentions to carry the drive this year into communities which in the past have not been solicited.

Concentration Needed. Need for concentration of relief work was also emphasized throughout the conference. Communities were asked to co-operate by each caring for its own poor. Increased relief agencies are not needed, the Red Cross leaders stated. The work can be carried out more efficiently from the standpoint of the poor and the contributors through a centralized agency.

Those speaking on the afternoon program were J. C. Thompson, chairman of the Jackson county chapter, and Ralph Carlson, first aid and life saving field representative of the American Red Cross. Messages were also brought to the crowd again by speakers of the morning session. A. L. Schafer, manager of the Pacific branch; Dr. William DeKleina, medical assistant to the vice-chairman; Miss Alida J. Bigelow, field representative; Miss Mary Annin, executive secretary of Lane county; and Miss Elizabeth McKinley, field director of the naval hospital at Bremerton.

Among members of the California delegation returning to their homes today are Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Lockwood of Regu and Ruth A. Barklow and Rev. Charles D. Miller of the Siskiyou chapter. Mrs. Lockwood is president of the Del Norte county chapter. Miss Barklow, secretary, and Rev. Miller president of the Siskiyou county chapter.

PROSPECT FACING HOUSING PROBLEM DECLARES GRIEVE

In speaking of the crowded school conditions at the Prospect school, which necessitates a staff of ten teachers for the over 300 pupils because of the influx of Copco ditch workers with their families in that district, James E. Grievie while in the city from the Prospect resort late yesterday afternoon said:

"This influx has turned our usual quiet community somewhat topsy turvy. Housing conditions cannot meet the demand now that cooler weather has set in. Everything habitable has been taken in our community.

"Why, I have converted all my tourist tent houses temporarily into snug cabins—placed stoves and windows in them—which are rented to Copco workers at $15 a month. I have 40 of these small structures rented now, and could rent many more if I had them.

"Many workers with their families are still camped in the surrounding woods in the district and I don't know what they are going to do—how they will get along when the cold and rain come."

"This coming storm," said Mr. Grievie looking upwards (the rain downpour had not yet started) "may drive a number of them out from their flimsy habitations in the woods. However, I doubt it. They may remain, children and all for the most part, either because they cannot well help themselves, or because the parents do not care. All will want to hang onto their jobs and as near the latter as possible.

"We cannot plan very far ahead. Some time ago I erected a small building to be used by the Copco employes as a pool and card, or club room. I have turned it over, instead, to the school authorities to be used as an additional school room.

"This storm when it breaks and others following it, however, may drive some of the people with school children camped in the woods away from the district, and thereby decrease the school congestion. That is only problematical. We shall see what we shall see, and in the meantime we have to provide the best schooling conditions possible under the circumstances."

TILLER TO TRAIL ROAD BUILDING IS AIM NEXT SPRING

Initial steps have been taken by the residents of southern Douglas county for the formation of a road district, for construction of the Douglas county unit of the Tiller-Trail road. The federal road bureau and forest service constructed a portion of the road this summer. Douglas county hopes to have the legal preliminaries completed, so that work can be started next spring.

Jackson county's share in the route is still pending, following the filing of a petition last summer by 23 property owners of the district asking that an election for the voting of a special road levy be called. The Jackson county cost for the road would be between $10,000 and $12,000. The matter of special levy is scheduled for attention at the annual road levy elections to be held in November.

The Tiller-Trail road would shorten the distance between the Crater Lake highway and Portland by approximately 40 miles, and eliminate the crookedest stretch on the Pacific highway and several mountain climbs.

The finishing touches on the Crater Lake highway widening and straightening between the Butte Falls junction hill and Trail are now underway. The stretch was oiled and sanded last week.

RAY TO PERMIT ROAD FOR MINING PURPOSE

Following a conference with the county court yesterday, A. C. Clark, who recently started plans for the resumption of operations at the Braden mine in the Gold Hill district, and Frank H. Ray, of the Ray Gold Realty company, agreed to meet today and work out a plan whereby the road to the mine could be used. It crosses land controlled by the Ray interests, and is the only ingress. Ray told the county court he is willing to permit the use of the road, but there are certain details to be arranged.

Clark intends to operate the mine, and employ 18 men, or more, if conditions warrant. He has four men working at the property now.
