

NOBLE MEISNER, WAR VETERAN, IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Noble James Meisner died at St. Vincent's hospital in Portland yesterday after a short illness. He had been working at Prospect 8 broke his leg. It got worse and he was sent to Portland, where everything possible was done for him, but his injury could not be overcome.

He had lived in this vicinity for about 10 years, and for the past seven years had made his home with Mrs. Florence Bousaun on Edward street, she being the only mother he has had for many years. Mr. Meisner was born March 24, 1867.

He was one of the first to enter the World war, enlisting October 6, 1917, and was honorably discharged June 25, 1919, having served as private in Co. A, 351st Infantry. He spent most of the two years in the front line trenches in France. He was known by his many friends as "Peggy."

He leaves his father, a sister and a half-sister, but their residence or names cannot be ascertained yet. The body will be brought to Medford for burial, and services will be announced later by the Peril Funeral Home.

New High School Trains Girls in Kitchen Arts

(This is the second of a series of articles on various departments of the new high school, which will hold open house Friday night of this week.)

The days when girls' cooking classes in high school learned to fry an egg and turn out a pan of biscuits and call themselves finished cooks passed out of style along with the horse and buggy.

A visitor who looks into the kitchen and cooking room of the new high school will find there a neat and orderly array of ovens, electric and gas stoves and mixing boards that would do justice to any college domestic science laboratory.

When the new school was built, school officials demanded and got an equipment different from any other school in the state. It was built especially for use in the Medford school, and gives it one of the finest workrooms for cooking instruction in the state.

Twelve individual electric plates, with 12 electric ovens to match, and gas stoves and refrigeration in the kitchen from the major equipment where the girls learn the tricks of getting up a meal.

Funch and cookies made by the girls in the foods classes will be served all visitors at open house Friday.

Girls taking the first year course in foods start in learning about table service and the food value of various foods. Cleanliness, sanitation and orderliness are stressed from the beginning. They learn to cook foods for breakfasts and serve them to each other in class. Following this, they are taught how to prepare lunches and suppers, the year being closed by a brief study of the girl's responsibility in the home and something on laundering.

Mrs. Gertrude Gates, instructor, begins the second year foods class with canning fruits. Food so preserved is served to the high school students who eat daily at the cafeteria operated in connection with the school kitchen. Several women of Medford have had special orders of canning put up by the girls in the classes.

The next step is cooking a seven-course dinner and learning to prepare meats and vegetables. The girls get actual experience serving family style or formal dinners by acting as waitresses at banquets about the city. Budgeting the food expenses and the study of balanced menus, hospitality and social etiquette conclude the second year work.

Third year cooks prepare the foods for the cafeteria and practice cooking in large quantities.

Besides cooking, Mrs. Gates also teaches a new course in practical house management this year. Students study the home and its development, budgeting expenses, correct clothing, food problems of education, travel and savings. They also plan and furnish a model home. Child care and guidance, home care of the sick and how to feed invalids and children are other things which are presented the girls in the class.

All foods courses are elective and the girls who enroll in them do so because they are interested in the work. All work is planned from the standpoint of practicability and only things that will be useful to them in their after life are taught to them.

VALLEY COUPLES MARCH TO ALTAR

A young Medford couple were married at Klamath Falls on Monday, and another Medford man was married at Roseburg to an Ashland girl last Saturday evening, according to newspapers of these cities.

Lydia Mary Barber, 18, and Leroy Albert Smith, 20, united at Medford obtained a marriage license at the Klamath county clerk's office Monday.

O. E. Lee, of Medford, and Vera E. Parks of Ashland were married here Saturday evening at the office of Justice of the Peace C. F. Hopkins. "The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Russell, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mr. Lee is employed as an insurance inspector at Medford, and his bride has been engaged as a stenographer in a law office at Ashland."

Reproduce Mazama For Exhibition in Sinnott Memorial

GRATER LAKE NATIONAL PARK, Ore.—(Special.) To be used as a unit of the exhibit to be placed in the Sinnott Memorial, observation station and museum, a reproduction of old Mazama, as it is believed to have appeared ages ago before it was destroyed by the fury of its own eruption, has been completed and for a time is on display at the information bureau at the rim.

The miniature mountain will be placed in a large table relief map, showing different elevations of the park and a portion of the surrounding country. The reproduction was carefully planned and indicates the vastness of the volcano when it dominated the Cascade range for height and size, reaching an altitude of approximately 15,000 feet.

CHARLES McNARY OFF TO CAPITAL ON SENATE DUTY

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Senator Charles L. McNary was on his way to the national capital today with a multitude of important matters awaiting his attention.

The senator and Mrs. McNary left Portland last night. They do not expect to return to Oregon until June.

Senator McNary said one of his most important tasks will be, as chairman of the senate committee on committees, to fill vacancies and reconstruct committees preparatory to one of the busiest sessions congress has ever had.

McNary said the death yesterday of Dwight W. Morrow, senator from New Jersey, and loss of eleven republican senators during the last national election, probably will mean that 48 republicans and 48 democrats will take their seats when congress convenes Dec. 6.

Senator McNary said he will attend the Oct. 19 hearing before army engineers on the survey for development of the Willamette river. He will urge canalization of the river.

Won His Wager But Lost Foot Beneath Engine

WINONA, Minn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Alfred Sherman, 29, won his wager by a split second but lost by a foot, as he explained it.

He and Joseph Singer, 28, after visiting a roadhouse near here, made a bet on who could sit on a railroad track the longer before evading an oncoming train.

They sat down. The train bore down upon them. They leaped. Sherman was a split second slow in getting away and he won. But in doing so he lost a foot, severed by the locomotive.

An eminent scientist writes the head chemist in our Research Department:

"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink"

THE WATER YOU DRINK is tested from time to time by expert chemists to make sure that it is free from all injurious substances—that it is pure.

So it is in the manufacture of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes. Expert chemists test all the materials that are used in any way in CHESTERFIELD's manufacture, to make sure that everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is just right.

THE LEAF TOBACCO IS PURE. Long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—scientifically "dry" and clean and purify the natural tobacco leaves by exact high-temperature treatment.

Then the shreds of cut tobacco, as you see them in your CHESTERFIELD, are again heated, cleaned and purified. From these pure tobaccos the cigarettes are made, and only the purest paper—the best that can be made—is used for CHESTERFIELD.

Cigarettes used to be made in an old-fashioned way, by hand. Now, no hand but yours touches CHESTERFIELD—another purity safeguard.

CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in clean, sanitary factories where even the air is changed every four and one-half minutes—purity again.

ALL THIS CARE is taken to give you CHESTERFIELDS as nearly perfect as cigarettes can be made. Delivered in a moisture-proof, sealed package, they reach you just as good, just as pure as when they leave the factory. Good... they've got to be good—they're just as pure as the water you drink!
