

BATTLE MARKED OLD FT. LARAMIE TO GLEAM ANEW

Place Where Pioneers
Sought Shelter On Old
Oregon Trail, Will Receive Coat of Whitewash

PORT LARAMIE, Wyo.—(AP)—Old Fort Laramie, battle scarred and weather beaten, will gleam again in whitewashed splendor.

Where once along the Old Oregon Trail the pioneers sought shelter from Indian arrows the motorist will come to marvel at mementoes of the white man's struggle for an empire.

Almost 100 years have passed since the first log was laid at Fort Laramie, first military outpost in Wyoming.

But before the anniversary of that century in 1934 the state government probably will have acquired the site and what remains of the old building of the Indian outpost for a permanent memorial to western pioneers and a Fort Laramie museum.

Glamour and Romance.

First steps toward acquiring and restoring the property were taken when the Wyoming historical landmarks commission moved to buy the land.

The history of old Fort Laramie actually dates back to 1820 and before, when Jacques LaRame, French-Canadian trapper, made his headquarters at the junction of what later were to be named the Platte and Laramie rivers.

Then in 1834 came Robert Campbell and Capt. William Sublette, who picked the site as an ideal one for a trading post.

After constructing several buildings and naming the place Fort William, they sold out the next year to a syndicate of trappers headed by the famous Jim Bridger and Milton Sublette.

Rebuilt in 1836.

Next it passed into the hands of the American Fur company, which rebuilt it in 1838.

The trading post soon became the control point for the Rocky Mountain region.

The post was purchased by the government in 1849 and remained a military post until 1890, when it was sold to private individuals.

Visitor Recalls Lake "Discovery" Many Years Ago

CRATER LAKE NATIONAL PARK, Ore.—(Special) D. Matheson, Healdsburg, Calif., paid Crater Lake his first visit in 1881 and recently was here again, recalling how he thought he had discovered the lake 50 years ago, not knowing that a young miner John Wesley Hillman, had first seen the lake in 1853.

Mr. Matheson was a youthful member of a hunting party encamped a few miles from the lake area and early one morning set out on his own hunt through the woods. His steps led him up the slopes of Garfield Peak, never suspecting what lay beyond. As he reached the summit, the scene of ancient beauty was before him and he hurriedly rushed back to camp to announce that he had discovered a sunken lake, only to learn later he had arrived several years too late.

SCRIP BOOK IS AWARD

This contest is sponsored by the management of the Holly theater in honor of the show, Alexander Hamilton, now playing there.

All essays must be handed in by Friday night and the winning one will be published in the Mail Tribune.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

—With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made especially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's real—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Genuine Castoria always has the name:

They call it "C and H MENU" Sugar now instead of just "C and H"

2 lb., 5 lb., 10 lb., and 25 lb. cloth bags.

The next time you ask for your favorite, "Berry" Sugar—in the original C and H refinery package, of course—you'll notice that the name MENU now appears with the familiar initials C and H.

Since C and H Sugar—"Berry", Brown, Desert, Confectioners Powdered, Cubelets, and the new Crystal Tablets—in fact all the C and H Sugars offer such wonderful opportunities for varying the menu—the name MENU just naturally seemed to belong with C and H—just seemed to go right with it.

And speaking of buying C and H MENU Sugar in the original refinery package—have you seen the new MENU "Berry" packages? There's a smart looking new cloth bag for C and H MENU "Berry" Granulated! Women who like to buy large quantities of C and H MENU "Berry" at one time will welcome this attractive new bag. And there's a smart new C and H MENU "Berry" sugar box with a clever pouring device! Women who like to buy boxed sugar will welcome this stunning new MENU "Berry" package which pours so conveniently—which opens and closes so easily—which protects the sugar until the entire package of it is used up. And, here's another wonderful thing about the new C and H MENU "Berry" package—it's wrapped in waxed paper to prevent caking. Yes, actually! You'll be interested to know, too, that C and H MENU "Berry" Sugar is domestic grown and refined. Quick-dissolving "Berry" Granulated—pure cane, every grain—made by the world's largest sugar refinery!
