Western Thriller Is Rialto Feature

Suspense, action, thrills, dare-devil riding stunts, a dramatic love story and some extraordinary western background are the outstanding features of the western thriller, "Alias the Bad Man," playing tonight and Saturday at the Fox Rialto theatre.

Following Maynard in his work is his famous horse, "Tarzan," the trained mount that has been identified with the star for the past six years. In the supporting cast are Virginia Brown Feltre and Frank Mayo. Also included on the program are selected short subjects, and chapter nine of "Heroes of the Flames."

At Fox Craterian

"The Brat" is playing tonight and Saturday at the Fox Craterian theatre, starring Sally O'Neil as the little madcap who made blue-bloods see red. The story is from the popular stage play by Maude Fulton, the romance of a girl from the slums who found love on Fifth Avenue. The cast includes Frank Albertson and June Collyer. As an added feature on the stage tonight at 9:15, the J. C. Penney Co. present their "Parisienne Promenade Fashion Revue," featuring the modes of the moment, plus Dom Provost and his French Village orchestra and other novelties.

JENKINS' COMMENT

If that happens, MORE JOBS will be created and as more jobs are created unemployment will diminish and business will begin to move forward normally.

THAT, reduced to simple terms, is the meaning of this program that has caused such a flurry. What is hoped for it is that it will restore confidence in business in this country.

Whenever that is done, the end of the depression will be in sight.

Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4, the Humane Society will hold a free dispensary through their veterinarian, Dr. G. A. Clitzen, at the shelter on Table Rock road.
