WHO WILL BENEFIT?

YOUR insurance may be payable to your wife, but who will get the money after she receives it? Have you arrangements made to protect her from blundering advisers? Why not leave her a monthly income? Make the first payment big enough to clear the road for her and the others big enough to keep her going. She'll get more money out of your contract if you do that—and what she does get is not likely to be squandered.

But the next day and the day after that, it becomes a different matter. A bread rich in materials such as Fuhrer's Holsum will retain its moisture and freshness but a loaf made with price alone in mind soon loses its palatability.
