

PREMIER LAVAL SILVER TONGUED BEFORE TRIBUNE

Coming Visit to America Will Show Different Type Frenchman Than Popular Conception of Citizens

By M. K. Whitteather PARIS (AP)—When the United States sees Senator Pierre Laval, premier of France, on his visit to Washington, it will look upon a type of Frenchman few Americans know.

He runs from speech-making and uses very few gestures to express himself. In this he departs radically from the methods of his teacher, Aristide Briand, who is a master spellbinder. Instead of preferring the rostrum where he can see his audience and watch the effects he makes on them, M. Laval likes best to talk from the floor in the national legislature and from there as rarely as possible.

His critics who love oratory often point out that he loses a great deal of effectiveness by mounting the tribune in the chamber of deputies or in the senate only when he has official documents to read, an inescapable task.

Tongue Wins Victories On these rare occasions the deputies or senators do not get harrassing, blood warming political speeches of the type the French love and sometimes need. M. Briand often has gone to the tribune with what seemed to be defeat staring him coldly in the face to come down after his silver tongue had wagged a half-hour, a glorious victor.

When the premier is in the tribune, his left hand, thumb outside, remains in his coat pocket from beginning to end. His other hand holds the document from which he reads. Sometimes he puts his papers down, and the hand, thus freed, comes into action, the index finger used as a pointer, as if to say in motion what he frequently says in conversation: "Avez-vous compris?" (Have you understood?)

Wants Quick Action His one occupation seems to be to get the affair over with as quickly as possible.

He avoids the flowery language of a Briand and tries to hammer his thoughts into the minds of his listeners by the force which comes from concentration of ideas and short summaries.

His listeners often get the impression that the speaker is walking a tight-rope and that if he flung out a hand or shrugged his shoulders he would upset.

There is one distinct effect M. Laval leaves with an audience: it is his manner of referring to his country. He says, "My country."

M. Briand says, "The country." Parliament on Vacation A warmer breeze blows from "my country" than from "the country." And the French like it.

One reason why M. Laval could so readily accept the invitation of President Hoover was that the French parliament was on vacation and not due to resume its sittings until he called it.

Ordinarily the French chamber and senate do not like to have their government chief quit the country, even for a short period. Consequently in the past when parliament was in session and the premier wanted to travel he had to obtain a formal vote of confidence.

Premier Laval has had no such trouble, but he will have to face a lot of criticism when he gets back. His enemies already have protested against his delaying the convocation of the national legislature until November 12 and accuse him of trying to run the government without the aid of parliament.

THEY'LL PONDER WORLD PROBLEMS

President Hoover (inset) is getting his official house in order so he can talk over the world's most pressing problems with Premier Pierre Laval of France, who is soon to be an official guest of the United States. Above is a recent picture of the French premier at his desk in the ministry of interior in Paris.

NEW TONIC BANISHED HER GRAY HAIR AND MADE IT BEAUTIFUL

She Was Troubled with Dandruff, Too, But It Also Vanished

REALLY WONDERFUL. THIS USER DECLARES

"It is simply wonderful the way Lea's Hair Tonic restores the natural color to gray hair and leaves it so pretty and nice. It also banishes every sign of dandruff and makes the scalp so healthy I can't say enough for it," writes Miss A. L. Landerer, whose picture appears on the right.

"Before I began using Lea's Hair Tonic my hair was rapidly turning gray and I was constantly troubled with itchy scalp and dandruff. That was two years ago. In a few weeks with Lea's the dandruff had gone and just as natural as anything in the world my hair had all turned back to youthful color and since then an occasional massaging of the scalp with Lea's keeps it lovely," continued Miss Landerer, whose address is 116 17th Avenue, North Nashville, Tenn.

Thousands of beautiful women distressed at gray hairs or off-colored locks, have learned Lea's Hair Tonic works so natural like when used at home that even experts fail to detect its use. One looks so much better groomed and it takes ten years off one's age, users declare. Socially or in business, beautiful hair is an asset worth many times the trifling time and expense of using Lea's Hair Tonic. Freedom from dandruff is another blessing that users say always come from using it.

THREE DETECTIVES WOUNDED BY FIRE OF N. Y. GANGMEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Three detectives were operated on today for bullet wounds, a gangster was dead, and police throughout the state were hunting for two men who escaped from a West 78th street apartment house during a pistol battle last night.

A traffic policeman, who thought he recognized one of three men who murdered Patrolman Jeremiah Bresnan, three years ago, summoned the three detectives to the 67th street house. They tried to force their way into a room where the three gunmen were staying, but were met by a shower of bullets.

The detective trio, Edward Will, Guido Passagno and James de Pararo, fell wounded. One of their bullets killed Enrico Battaglio, who, according to police records, had been a suspect in the Bresnan murder.

The two other men in the room clambered out of a window and made their escape.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Two daring robbers who held up a garage last Wednesday, kidnaped the attendant and escaped, returned early today, held up the same garage, kidnaped the same man, held up another garage and escaped under gun fire.

Clarence Grenalgh, who was kidnaped, said the robbers threatened to kill him on the other trip if he notified police before morning. He spread an alarm as soon as he was released. Fearing the bandits might have carried out their threat this time, one set of searchers looked for his body while others in Washington and north Idaho sought the robbers.
