DR. HALL VOICES GREAT FINANCIAL NEED OF 'OREGON'

The immediate need for finances to carry on necessary work at the University of Oregon was voiced last night by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president, in his address to forty mothers and dads of Oregon students and alumni at the university at their annual banquet at the Hotel Medford.

Much important work, especially in the research department, has been discontinued this year because of lack of funds to operate, resulting from the decrease of appropriations by the legislature. Dr. Hall informed his audience. This discontinuance has brought about a cancellation of appropriations from outside foundations, which have added much to the advancement of the university during previous years. Presidents of other institutions, he explained, feel that they should not contribute to a cause, which Oregonians themselves refuse to finance.

Activities Reduced
Activities at the school, the staff and maintenance work have been decreased by the lack of money. Buildings are in need of repair, library facilities are very inadequate, and one of the most important branches, the Doernbecher hospital, is now operating on one-half its previous schedule. There are four hundred children on the waiting list, which can't be cared for unless more money is made available.

There are many popular misconceptions existing throughout the state, Dr. Hall explained, regarding the wealth of Oregon's university and colleges. Taxpayers have the idea that they are contributing great sums to the two institutions of higher learning. The largest item in this year's tax increase, Dr. Hall stated, is for the elementary and high schools. It amounts to 49 per cent, while higher education this year accounts for just one per cent.

These figures, he added, show that the people are still desirous of educating their children, but prefer to spend their money where they can watch it work or in local schools.

Library Feels Pinch
"The University of Oregon library," he stated, "has the largest circulation per student of any university library in the United States. In spite of this fact, its operating funds have been decreased to such an extent that the bindery has been closed and subscriptions to many publications used in various courses, discontinued."

To complete these files in the future, Dr. Hall said, it will cost the university much more than to continue them at this time.

The budget for the research department has been cut from $37,000 to $7,000. The cut is accompanied by the discontinuance of several appropriations, formerly made by outside foundations.

Burch Is Heard
Albert Burch, local member of the state board of higher education, spoke briefly of the board's undertakings. Following adjournment of the banquet session meetings for Oregon Mothers and Oregon Dads were held at the hotel.

Plans for attending Dad's day at the university this week-end monopolized most of the time at the meeting of the men. Among those from Medford, who will attend the festivities on the campus are: Chas. Campbell, R. E. Carley, E. E. Gore and Thos. J. Fuson.

The Oregon Mothers were addressed by Burt Brown Barker, vice president of the university, who gave them a vivid description of the status of the pioneer mother, which he is presenting the university for dedication at the Mother's day program next spring.

Mrs. F. W. Bond of Pendleton, president of Oregon Mothers, also addressed the group.

Other members of the state tour, arriving here were: Paul T. Shaw of Portland, former president of Oregon Dads; Mrs. Paul Ager, secretary to Dr. Hall and executive secretary of the Mothers' club; and Alfred W. Powers, dean of the University extension division.

Neah Kah Nie Quartet to Play at Voorhies Home.

Invitations are out for the concert to be played by the Neah Kah Nie string quartet at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Gordon Voorhies next Thursday evening. The concert is sponsored by the Medford Chamber Music society.

This famous quartet from the little resort of Neah Kah Nie played in concert at the Voorhies home last year and also presented a program at the St. Mark's Guild hall. The ability of each member is remembered by all music lovers, who have heard them entertain. The evening at the Voorhies home will be attended by many members of local society.

Oregon Mothers Plan

Study for Year
Members of the local branch of Oregon Mothers, who met last night with Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon and members of his tour, later outlined plans for study meetings to be held throughout the coming season.

The series of meetings will be devoted to the study of an outline prepared at the university for mothers in all sections of the state. Topics will be assigned for each meeting and the members plan to complete the book in this manner.

Chrysanthemum Group

YEOMEN TO MARK CHILDRENS MONTH

Yeomen lodge will celebrate children's month at the regular lodge session Thursday night at K. P. hall. Children play an important role in the work of the Yeomen, due to the fact that one of the finest children's homes, "City of Childhood," is operated by the Yeomen organization at Elgin, Ill., where children of Yeomen are given training and education.

In addition to this program there will be a regular lodge session, at which several new members will be initiated. District Manager Whitney has done some splendid work in this territory, and the contest between Ashland and Medford lodges has been the means of a big increase in the membership of both lodges.

With new officers in the chairs, both lodges are looking forward to some wonderful results in the coming months.
