ASK NEW TRIAL IN FRUIT SUIT

Motion for a new trial, and to set aside the verdict and judgment, was filed in the circuit court Saturday afternoon by Fred C. Sanders, architect, against the Suncrest orchards, and L. A. Banks. A circuit court jury Friday returned a verdict in favor of the Suncrest orchards, after 30 minutes deliberations. Sanders sued for $1000, alleged due on pear consignments.

The motion alleges certain errors in law by the court, in failure to give certain instructions requested by the plaintiff, and holds that the evidence in the case did not justify the verdict. The motion cites that there was no evidence introduced to show that the Suncrest orchards' custom was to pay $90 per ton for "jumble pack". The defense contended a portion of the consignments was "jumble pack."

PENITENTES LASH BOYS FOR SPYING ON STRANGE RITE

TRINIDAD, Colo., Mar. 28.—(AP)—Lashed and kicked when they blundered into a Good Friday secret torture ritual of the penitentes, strange half pagan religious cult, two Trinidad youths received injuries which may prove serious.

The youths invited by two Mexican boys to attend a penitente memorial service for their father, became confused in the darkness and followed a group into an isolated cemetery where the penitentes began to whip themselves to accompaniment of their weird chants.

When the penitentes began to dance in a circle lashing themselves, they noticed the boys were not of the cult. They were set upon, beaten and then carried back to Trinidad where they were dumped out, the boys said.

Penitentes, mostly Indians and Mexicans, believe that by self punishment they drive out their sins. Their rituals frequently result in death for the devotees.
