

SYLVIA E. HARVEY, PIONEER RESIDENT, IS CALLED BEYOND

Sylvia E. Harvey, who passed away here March 29, was born near Santa Rosa, California, May 28, 1873. She moved to Oregon with her parents in 1890 and lived on the Harvey homestead, which is now a part of the west city limits of Medford, and attended the public schools here.

On Dec. 25, 1892 she was married to Paschal J. Halley, who preceded her in death on Feb. 12, 1919, since which time she has resided with her daughters in this city.

She united with the Methodist church at the age of sixteen, and was a devoted wife and mother.

She was a great lover of home, flowers and children, was generous and thoughtful of others, and was constantly sacrificing in order to make others happy.

Surviving are her daughters, Angie Halley of this city and Mrs. Lee Luy of Portland, Oregon; an aged mother, Sarah A. Harvey of Cottage Grove, Oregon, and two brothers, Homer Halley of this city and Worth Harvey of Cottage Grove, Oregon.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. A. G. Bennett at the Congregational church at 10:30 a. m. Thursday. The remains will be entombed in the Medford memorial mausoleum.

Whip Candidate Carries Campaign Into New York

"The control force of this nation is divided into three parts: Extreme mediocrity! hooey! and cowardice!"—is the latest discovery of George Edward Stewart, candidate for president of the United States on the Whip ticket, who sends from New York his message to the "United men and women of the states."

The Butte Falls aspirant to the highest position in the United States government has arrived in the financial capital on his campaign tour in spite of all obstacles, which threatened to halt his ambition. And his first announcement upon arrival there is: "Uncle Sam has stood to his feet."

"The Whip corrective ideal of sanity, and freedom for all—without abuse—is the greatest party ever organized in America," he continues with his message.

"The great American offensive against the control force of this nation is under way. The method of operation of the control force of this nation is a sixth grade schoolboy's idea of Halloween night," he declares, adding "the control force is a marked man and shall go—local, state and national."

His message concludes with hard words for the New Yorker: "I say no man from the state of New York shall be the next president." "Keep your Whip cracking!"

MORE ON VERGE OF CANDIDACY AS ZERO HOUR NEAR

James Stewart, who was elected Justice of the peace for the Medford district when he was 21 years old, and served two terms while "reading law," is seriously considering seeking the post anew, and will make up his mind between now and next Tuesday, when the filing period ends.

Stewart is well known and for years has engaged in bee culture and the production of honey.

William R. Coleman, former county clerk, and fish screen expert, who announced a month ago his "hat was in the air," is expected to leave it into the ring, or put it back on his head before next Tuesday.

Glenn O. Taylor, incumbent Justice, yesterday filed his declaration of intention to seek re-election on the Republican ticket. Fred Colvig and Everett Brayton are running under the same party label, and W. H. Canon seeks the Democratic endorsement.

It was predicted that another candidate for county judge and sheriff would appear on the political horizon before the end of the week.
