Spring days are gala days for high school people. As they realize that summer will soon arrive, bringing an end to school for many and a vacation to many more, they enter with enthusiasm into a whirl of social activities. The April Frolic, strictly a feminine affair, is one of the jolliest of all.

Numerous committees have been announced for the week, bringing into active participation in the events groups from all classes. The feminine ranks will also rule in the high school newspaper field, the Girls' league editing next week's issue of the Hi-Times.

Gardan Subordinate Bridge Tables These Days

A lull in social events continues this week in spite of the fact that the lenten season is ended. The first few affairs given in celebration of the Eastertide find no followers to keep the social wheels in motion. The only solution forthcoming is the "call of the garden."

Many of the city's most enthusiastic bridge fans have deserted their hands for trowel and rake—tea gowns for gingham, and are spending their days with flowers and shrubs that know not "depression."

Garden club members are not the only ones who are devoting their spring days to the oncoming blossoms. The interest threatens to be general until the days become too warm for so much activity.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—Making great strides toward the Democratic presidential nomination, Franklin D. Roosevelt today had a total of 111 delegate votes and immediate prospects of more, while his supporters moved to grasp the permanent post of keynoter at the national convention.

Iowa's 26 votes were filed in the Roosevelt column last night, along with those of Georgia, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Washington state. Maine Democrats today choose 12 delegates, in an atmosphere so friendly to the New York governor that the delegation is expected to be his even though uninstructed.

The post of keynoter, or temporary chairman of the convention, is to be filled next Monday in Chicago by the arrangements committee for the convention. Roosevelt men have settled upon Senator Barkley of Kentucky, who recently asked his state to vote for the New Yorker.

Roosevelt's opponents are centering on Jouett Shouse, chairman of the party's executive committee and exponent of the theory that delegations to the convention should come there without instructions. Roosevelt supporters, despite Shouse's denials, have regarded the proposal as hostile.
