The status was unveiled by the Right Honorable Stanley Baldwin, one of the heads of the British national government at the present time.

Through her legal training, practical experience in the women's movement, observations of world conditions at Geneva and in many men and women leaders in Europe, men and women leaders in Europe, she has exceptional qualifications to speak on the present world crisis and its remedy.

In her address Miss Pankhurst emphasizes the spiritual aspect of modern depression, social unrest, and war, and considers their solutions from the Christian point of view.

All club women of the city, as well as others who are interested in the address, are urged to attend the gathering.

FIRST BIG SMUDGE BLACKENS VALLEY LOSS AT MINIMUM

The first general hard smudge of the year in the valley came during last night leaving a pall of heavy smoke hanging over the valley most of today, which had not begun to dissipate by early this afternoon.

Lowest temperature reached in the coldest located orchards was 26 1/2, and as the general pear orchards could only stand a temperature of 28 without damage, there was some damage especially to the orchards which do not smudge. Roy Rogers, government frost expert, was inclined late this forenoon to think the commercial damage was comparatively little.

Fortunately, variable breezes prevailed during the night, which shifted the heavy smudge around and thus furnished protection to some of the orchards which did not smudge.

Thanks to Mr. Rogers' forecast, broadcasted early last evening, the orchardists were prepared to smudge. A few orchards in the south end of the valley lit up their pots as early as 11:30. Orchardists in the north end began smudging between 1 and 2 a. m., and by 3 a. m. there was a general smudging all over the valley. Cloudiness began to appear at 5 a. m., which soon removed further danger.

Mr. Rogers had forecast a temperature of 28 degrees in Medford and between 25 and 26 in other parts of the valley.

Before the business meeting those present were entertained by Mr. Youngs of Canada, who had moving pictures of Canadian wild life which were interesting. Everyone present was impressed by the beautiful scenery and was ready to leave for that country at once—that is, if they had not been detained by more urgent matters.

A report was made by Mrs. Zola Pick of the receipts from the play, "Diamonds." It was presented by the high school students and directed by Miss Beth Crocker for the P. T. A. fund, to purchase a new piano. About $30 was realized. Refreshments were served after a short business meeting.

NURSE IS DENIED CAR CRASH CLAIM

A circuit court jury late yesterday denied Miss Florence May, poor farm nurse, any damages in her suit against J. C. Ottinger, as the result of an auto accident last July. Damages of $8150 were asked.

Miss May claimed that her health was impaired as a result of the crash, which occurred when the auto of C. Taber, in which the plaintiff was a guest passenger, was hit by the Ottinger auto as the former attempted to turn into the poor farm driveway.

ENGLEHARDT ASKS RETRIAL, ALLEGING JURY MISCONDUCT

Affidavits alleging misconduct on the part of two jurors—George L. Treichler of Central Point and B. J. Palmer of this city—were filed late yesterday by Attorney P. J. Newman in a motion for a new trial for Prof. C. Englehardt of the Eagle Point district, sentenced to pay a fine upon conviction of an assault and battery charge.

In the affidavit made by Attorney Newman he declares that following the conviction of Prof. Englehardt he asked Treichler and Palmer, two of the jurors:

"How in the world did you arrive at such a verdict, in view of the evidence?"

They replied in effect, the affidavits affirm, they did not believe Englehardt guilty, but thought "he should be punished."

It is charged in the affidavit that Juror Treichler entertained prejudice against Prof. Englehardt but which he did not divulge during questioning, but which was revealed when Treichler was called and excused as a juror in the trial of Carl Steider, nephew of Englehardt. Attorney Frank DeSouza, attorney for Steider, makes affidavit that Treichler was prejudiced.

It is further alleged in the defense plea that the district attorney's office led the defense to believe that Steider would be returned from California at state expense but was not, which impaired the defense of Englehardt, "by accident or surprise against which ordinary prejudice could not guard," Steider makes affidavit that he is a poor man and was unable to come to testify at the trial of his uncle. The defense holds that his testimony would have thrown a different light on the result.

It is also alleged that the testimony of the complaining witness, John Domegalla, was uncorroborated and "ridiculous" and that the testimony showed Englehardt was not present at the time of the alleged assault.

The affidavits ask that a new trial be granted as "a rebuke to the jurors, and the righting of an injustice." Prof. Englehardt and Carl Steider were indicted and convicted upon a charge of assault upon John Domegalla, a neighbor, during a dispute over damages to a crop caused by the Englehardt hogs. Domegalla, he testified, was hit over the head with a long board and knocked unconscious.

MARKET BATTLE DAMAGE SUIT IN NORTON'S COURT

The personal damage suit of George M. Becker against Alex Anderson and Bill Gibson for $10,000 general and $5000 punitive damages started in circuit court this morning. The defendants, in a counter action, seek $1000 general damages and $5000 punitive damages on the grounds that the fight in the Ivy Street Market November 14, 1931, upon which the suit is based, was due to his own actions and any alleged damages were his own fault.

Becker sets forth in his complaint that Anderson and Gibson set upon him, hit him in the head with a meat cleaver, broke a rib and blackened both eyes, causing him "physical pain and mental anguish," and rendering him unable to work.

In answer, Gibson and Anderson plead self-defense. They allege that Becker appeared at the market, "intoxicated and boisterous," and followed Anderson to the butcher shop department and attempted to enter. Anderson remonstrated and further alleged Becker announced "I am going to throw money away in the market." Becker, it is alleged, "threw a piece of money behind the counter." When Anderson stopped to pick it up, Anderson alleges, Becker attacked him with his fists and he defended himself.

At this juncture, the answer says, Gibson appeared on the scene, in the role of peacemaker and endeavored to separate the combatants. He alleges he maintained a neutral attitude, "until Becker got his finger in one eye." Gibson avers "he feared the plaintiff would pull out said eye," whereupon he swung into self-defensive action.

The plaintiff is represented by Attorney Allison Moulton and the defense by Attorney Don R. Newbury. Jurors were asked if they entertained any prejudice against the filing of damage suits. The case is expected to last two days.
