

SMITH DECLARES OPEN WARFARE ON ROOSEVELT IDEALS

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—The opposition of Alfred E. Smith, suddenly and forcefully expressed, today stood across Franklin D. Roosevelt's path toward the presidential nomination of the Democratic party.

Roosevelt was not there. Other business kept him in Albany, but many of his supporters were in the throes of the "stop-gap" plan.

It was Roosevelt who only last Thursday in a radio address pleaded the cause of the "forgotten man" at the bottom of the economic structure.

Smith in Criticism Smith, who sponsors just such a project, quoted this word "stop-gap" in referring critically to exception taken to his plan in the recent speech of leading Democrat whom he did not name.

Today the democratic leaders were weighing the effect of this startling development on the party fortunes and upon the candidacy of Roosevelt who now is way beyond any rival on the road to nomination.

Smith flung into the meeting also a proposal for settling the war debts and stimulating American foreign trade by this government's offering the debtor nations to "forget" their obligations for 20 years.

Earlier the group had been started by the proffer of a compromise plan from the dry state of Virginia.

This, with Smith's renewal of his urging for a states' rights plank, allowing states to remain wet or dry as they chose, was one of the few references to prohibition in the party proceedings.

The gathering of more than 2,000, coming at the end of a day replete with rallies, speeches and campaign-planning, heard also Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, the toastmaster, and John J. Raskob, the party's national chairman.

In the text of his address prepared beforehand, Smith followed up his promise to take off his coat and fight with the assertions: "It would be better that the convention remain in session all summer and give to the people a vigorous, strong, clearly defined platform, and candidates capable of fighting for it, than to hurry away from Chicago with a half-baked proposal to offer to the people of the country."

But the sentences went unuttered. The paragraph and several others were skipped in Smith's rapid delivery. It was understood that Byrd and others, upon seeing the manuscript in advance, advised the New Yorker to "tone it down."

GREY RESUMES SLEEP WHEN HE THINKS FIRE REPORT IS PUBLICITY

When Herb Grey, advertising manager of the Mail Tribune was awakened at 1:45 o'clock this morning by his next door neighbor, O. O.

Alenderfer, who informed him his house was ablaze, Mr. Grey turned over for another nap, thinking it another publicity stunt by his friend E. C. "Jerry" Jerome, manager of the Texas Oil company.

"It took 'Ole' about five minutes to make Herb realize that Jerry was not trying to advertise Texaco's new Fire-chief gasoline and when Herb finally looked out, saw the back porch ablaze.

The city fire department (probably using Fire-chief gas) answered the call, and soon had the blaze under control. The fire started from some ashes in a pasteboard box on the back porch, which contained some live coals, according to Fire Chief Elliott.

For their quick and efficient response to the call, the firemen today received a box of cigars from Mr. Grey.
